Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, Features Works by William H. Johnson and WPA Artists

The Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, is presenting its major spring exhibition, Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice, on view through Aug. 7, 2022.

This exhibition brings together 28 paintings by the South Carolina born artist, which have not been seen together for almost 75 years. Organized by the Smithsonian American Art Museum, the exhibition will premiere at the Gibbes before a national tour. Additionally, the Gibbes will host special programming and an accompanying exhibition, A New Deal: Artists at Work, which includes works from the museum's permanent collection by artists like Johnson that benefited from the Works Progress Administration's Federal Art Program in the 1930s.

"Nearly 50 years ago, the Gibbes exhibited a collection by William H. Johnson – which was the first solo exhibition by a Black artist at the Gibbes," says Angela Mack, executive director of the Gibbes Museum of Art. "We are proud to once again showcase the work of this great American artist, who was born in South Carolina, and reflect on our commitment to feature artists from diverse backgrounds and experiences."

Drawn entirely from the collection of more than 1,000 works by Johnson given to the Smithsonian American Art Museum by the Harmon Foundation in 1967, this exhibition is the first-ever presentation of this series in Johnson's home state of South Carolina. William H. Johnson painted his "Fighters for Freedom" series in the mid-1940s as a tribute to African American activists, scientists, teachers, performers and international heads of state working to bring peace to the world.

Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice celebrates these fighters and their accomplishments while still acknowledging the realities of racism, violence and oppression that they faced and overcame. This series includes some familiar figures – Harriet Tubman, George Washington Carver, Marian Anderson and Mahatma Gandhi – as well as other lesser-known individuals whose equally-important determination and sacrifice have been eclipsed over time.

The Gibbes will host several special programs to further analyze the themes in Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice, for more information, visit (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

To accompany Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice, the Gibbes will exhibit A New Deal: Artists at Work. The museum is one of a select group of institutions across the country that houses works from the Federal Arts Project. During the Great Depression of the 1930s, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt launched his ambitious Works Progress Administration (WPA) programs that sent millions of unemployed Americans back to work, including more than 5,000 artists.

From the WPA came the Federal Arts Project, which awarded opportunities to a diverse group of artists, including women, African Americans and recent immigrants from China, Russia and Germany. This monumental effort to put artists back to work resulted in a collection of artwork intended to capture the national spirit at the time and encourage creativity in the face of great challenges. A New Deal: Artists at Work is a collection of these works from a diverse group of artists during a very challenging time in American history.

Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice is organized by the Smithsonian American Art Museum with generous support from Art Bridges, Faye and Robert Davidson and the Jacob and Gwendolyn Lawrence Foundation.

Home to the Carolina Art Association, established in 1858, the Gibbes Museum of Art is recognized among the oldest arts organizations in the United States. Housing one of the foremost collections of American Art from the 18th century to the present, the museum's mission is to enhance lives through art by engaging people of every background and experience with art and artists of enduring quality and by providing opportunities to learn, to discover, to enjoy and to be inspired by the creative process.

Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

On Our Cover This Month

On our cover this month is a work by Susan Lenz, who will be taking part in the fourth annual Cottontown Art Crawl, with 114 other artists (115 in total) to show and sell their original work in the downtown Columbia, SC, neighborhood. The event will be held on Saturday, Mar. 12, 2022, from 10am to 3pm with more art, more artists, more food and more fun for visitors. The event brings artists and entertainment to front porches and lawns in a historic downtown neighborhood.

Lenz has become the most mentioned SC artist having exhibits all over North and South Carolina, as well as all over this country during the last few years. So, of course she will be taking part in this event in her own backyard in Columbia.

I've never heard of Cottontown before, but then a few gallery owners and yours truly invented a section of downtown Charleston and called it the French Quarter.

When working this month on our massive Calender listings I just threw my hands up and said, "Enough, is enough!", meaning I was tired of using the same old photos to make the 29 1/2 pages of galleries showing art a little more interesting than just words on a page. There is nothing worse in my book than looking at a page full of text with no images.

I save every photo that is sent to us every month and use them, when I can, to make the pages look a little better - easier on the eyes. But, this month I just got tired of using some of those same old photos, some I've used, maybe 5 - 10 times or more. I use the ones that pertain to current exhibits when I can - depending on how the listing falls on the page. You have to have room to put the photo in and the gallery listing after it, so there has to be room. Sometimes I have a great photo to use, but the spacing isn't right. I hate it when that happens. But on many of those pages I've had to use photos from a stock pool of photos I've used over and over.

So, if you are tired of seeing those same photos as much as I am - send us new ones. I don't want to use those old images any more. I'm glad I had them and they represent some great works of art, but they should be in history books or a book on the history of Carolina Arts - which I might stop doing all this and write one day, but not now. Some are hoping I die before I get the chance to tell that story, but we'll see what happens.

So here's the deal. First, if you're having an exhibit - at any venue in North or South Carolina - in the next month or so, send us a press release about it and a few high res images of art from that exhibit. If more than one artist is involved, identify the artwork. If you are represented by a gallery that is included in our Gallery listings, get the owner to send us some photos of artworks on display (identified). If your gallery or venue is not included, get someone to send us the info, you can find what info we need on our website at (www.carolinaarts.com) under the heading of "How the Paper Works".

What's a high res image? Well, it can be a Tiff or Jpeg, which is at least 3" wide by 300ppi. If you don't know what ppi means - look it up or just send a Jpeg that is at least 11" x 14" in size at 72ppi (the norm) and I can make it the right size and ppi.

Do not send images of yourself or you standing in front of your artwork, we are not People magazine - we won't use it. Do art along with the visual languages and traditions of Native people. In doing so, her work spotlights Native women, whose strength and fortitude over centuries have helped their peoples' languages and cultures to survive.

On view in Hear Her, White Hawk's video installation LISTEN presents a series of Native women speaking the language of their people. Each film takes place on the land of each participant's nation, and viewers hear the respective languages without translation. As such, White Hawk puts a focus not only on the resonance of each speaker, but she also reveals society's collective ignorance of the people, culture, and language of those native to the land on which we live.

White Hawk's photography installation I Am Your Relative confronts the gross stereotypes and distorted caricatures that dehumanize and commodify Native women. The exhibition serves as a true locus for the convergence of multiple Humanities including the visual arts, language, human geography, and history, all working in sync to give visibility to the invisible and fill a vital gap in our collective knowledge.

Dyani White Hawk (Sičąŋǵu Lakota) is a visual artist and independent curator based in Minneapolis, MN. White Hawk earned an MFA from the University of Wisconsin-Madison (2011) and BFA from the Institute of American Indian Arts in Page 4 - Carolina Arts, February 2022

Santa Fe, NM, (2008). She served as Gallery Director and Curator for the All My Relations Gallery in Minneapolis from 2011-2015.

Support for White Hawk's work has included a 2021 Anonymos Was A Woman Award, 2020 Carolyn Glasoe Bailey Foundation Minnesota Art Prize, 2019 United States Artists Fellowship in Visual Art, 2019 Eiteljorg Contemporary Art Fellowship, 2019 Jerome Hill Artist Fellowship, 2019 Forecast Public Art Mid-Career Professional Development grant, 2018 Nancy Graves Grant for Visual Artists, 2017 and 2015 Native Arts and Cultures Foundation Artist Fellowships, and 2014 Joan Mitchell Foundation Painters and Sculptors Grant.

White Hawk has participated in residencies in Australia, Russia, and Germany. Her work is in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, Walker Art Center, Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Denver Art Museum, Minneapolis Institute of Art, The Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian, Tweed Museum of Art, IAIA Museum of Contemporary Native Arts, and Akta Lakota Museum and Cultural Center among other public and private collections. She is represented by Bockley Gallery in Minneapolis.

So you're the Marketing Director of a visual arts organization, art museum, arts center, arts council or artist guild and you're wondering why you never see the exhibits presented at your facility included here. Maybe you're the owner of a commercial art gallery and you've never seen your exhibits included with others presented in your area. You might even be an individual artist who is having an exhibit in a non-profit space or commercial space and you don't see your exhibits included. My question to you is - How long will you put up with that before you ask someone, "Why that is the case?" If you're not included - it's your fault. Send your info about exhibits to "Carolina Arts" by e-mail to (info@carolinaarts.com). Our deadline is the 24th of the month "prior" to the month your exhibit starts.

Redux Contemporary Arts Center in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Susan Vitali

Redux Contemporary Arts Center in Charleston, SC, will present Correspondence, featuring works by Susan Vitali, on view in Gallery 1056, from Feb. 4 through Mar. 26, 2022. A reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 5-8pm.

The artwork in this exhibition investigates slow thoughtful cursive writing vs. today's digital technology. Writing a letter is a personal way to connect with another person: a slowing down and giving consideration to the words chosen, the mood conveyed. The slant and size of the letters and visual execution speak to the personality of the writer. Today few correspond by hand due to texting, phone calls and email. Cursive is a dying art.

Vitali is a collector of objects, images, and human experiences. Her work begins with gathering and researching aspects of the human condition expressed in collections of handwriting, ephemeral paper, photos and objects from nature. Then, utilizing that data, she produces poetic abstract paintings, prints, drawings, and objects. Using the irresistible sensuality of textures and materials, she creates physical and metaphoric spaces that are both intimate and expansive for intuitive, emotional responses. While some objects in her work are recognizable, most are ambiguous. Abstraction lies at the core of her work as an open-ended language of spiritual experience and human emotion.

Vitali holds an MFA in Print Media from Cranbrook Academy of Art. Her work is held in multiple private and corporate collections including the Ford Motor Company and Aflac Insurance. She has exhibited in Italy, Canada, Australia, and across the US.

City of North Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Morgan Serreno East and Marie Carladous

The City of North Charleston's Cultural Arts Department is pleased to announce that concurrent solo exhibitions of mixed media works by Morgan Serreno East and photographs by Marie Carladous will be on display at Park Circle Gallery from Feb. 2-26, 2022. A free reception hosted by the artists will be held at the gallery on Friday, Feb. 4, from 5-7pm.

In Natural Wonder, local artist Morgan Serreno East explores her fascination with the power, uniqueness, and sheer beauty found in nature through a series of mixed media portraits of women. The woman in each painting is purposefully clothed in a light dress, which, at some points, appears to blend in with the environment around her. This creates an airy, seamless world that invites the viewer to become one with it. Each painting is built up with layers of house paint, oil paint, tissue paper, and ink to create an organic texture that represents the constant ebb and flow of nature around us.

"While the images in this body of work are not self-portraits in the literal sense, they represent my connection with the Earth and the calmness I feel when I am physically connected with it—whether I am taking a hike in the woods, walking along the beach, or floating in the ocean," Serreno East explains.

Serreno East earned a BS in Graphic Communications with a minor in Advertising from Clemson University in 2006. For the next 11 years, she focused on her career in printing and publishing. In 2018, she completed an online program through the Visual Arts Passage for Illustration and attended the Illustration Academy in Kansas City, MO, that summer. In January 2019, she took a three-month sabbatical from her role as a Senior Program Manager for Amazon's self-publishing company in Charleston, SC, to focus on building her Illustration portfolio and to travel.

During her second round at the Illustration Academy in June 2019, with her teacher's guidance, she decided to focus mainly on Fine Art.

Serreno East currently resides in North Charleston, SC, and participates in group pop-up events around town including the Park Circle Art Walk, which she began organizing during quarantine in 2020. Her work can be found at The Station and Accent on Wine in Park Circle. An

Charleston, SC, based photographer Marie Carladous invites the viewer to dig deep into our cultural past through photographs of America and her native France in her exhibit An Exploration of Alternative Photography. The featured photographs embody a small part of the analog world of photography, exploring different techniques such as lumen printing, solarization, and instant photography. Carladous' photography work is very eclectic, ranging from portraiture, to architecture, to abstract imagery. The unifying element in her pieces is experimentation. "A lot of the techniques displayed here were discovered by accident, resulting from a mistake," she explains. "I explored them without much information being available, going in with both feet not knowing what the results would be, which makes it extremely fun."

Originally from Nice, France, Carladous moved to Charleston 10 years ago to complete her studio art degree at the College of Charleston with a focus in film photography. After graduating in 2013 she became a freelance photographer, as well as a Darkroom member at Redux Contemporary Art Center, where she processes all film and paper herself. In 2018, she established the French Dark Room and is now a

Art League of Hilton Head on Hilton Head Island, SC, Celebrates 50 years of Inspiration, Creativity & Resilience with Commemorative Art Calendar

The Art League of Hilton Head on Hilton Head Island, SC, announces the release of a special commemorative art calendar created in honor of the 50th Anniversary of the Art League. The calendar, which includes a history of the Art League, its Gallery and Academy with historical photos, also features the artwork of more than 30 artist-members of the League.

In addition, to honor the Art League's founder and Gallery namesake, acclaimed artist Walter Greer, one of his well-known artworks Two Egrets graces the cover and was provided with permission of the Greer Estate.

According to ALHH President Pat Batten, "The calendar includes milestones of Art League's 50 years as well as artwork that highlights our artists and represents all of our member artists who have played an important role in our continued success! This unique and exciting project also serves as a fundraiser to help support the programs of the Art League."

The 50th Anniversary Calendar Committee worked for many months reviewing ALHH archival materials, photographs and soliciting a 'Call to Artists' for Art League members' artworks to be included in the historical piece. The selected artworks represent the varied artistic approaches and aesthetic inspirations of the 450 talented members of the League.

The Calendar Committee included: Pat Batten, current Art League President; Linda Bloom, Board Member; Gabrielle Hoffmann, Board Member; Kristen

La Petite Gallerie in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Rose Cofield

La Petite Gallerie in Bluffton, SC, located in an intimate Old Town Bluffton shop featuring local art, continues to introduce you to the gallery artists. Works by Rose Cofield will be on view from Feb. 1 - 28, 2022.

For Cofield, art has been a life-long adventure. Her passion for exploring the possibilities of form and shape has been her prime motivation throughout her journey. Challenging herself with different materials has taught her to bend to the inherent attributes as well as the limitations of her chosen medium. Cofield's abstract works in mixed media include collage, acrylic paints, mixed media, canvas and found materials.

Work by Rose Cofield

Cofield's fascination with architecture is evident in her current work. Her experience in sculpture allows her to see the content of her mixed media pieces as form and shape. Born in Brooklyn, NY, she credits some of her images to that urban environment.

Cofield studied art at New York University and The Johnson Atelier Technical Institute of Sculpture. She has attended stone carving workshops at the Corsanini Studio in Carrara, Italy. She has taught sculpture workshops in schools and arts organizations through the South Carolina Arts Commission's "Artist in Education" program.

Cofield has displayed her work at galleries and museums across the region, and is a member of the National Association of Women Artists, New York, New York, as well as the South Carolina Chapter.

Editorial Commentary

not send a PDF of an image!

Some publications make you pay to have an image of your artwork included - we don't, as long as there is a place it fits. Now if it's a bad photo or something that doesn't look like it should be in a fine art publication, we won't include it, but I'm not that picky. I have no problem with nudity (male or female) or politically hot images.

Also, if by some strange chance that next month every venue in our, almost 30 pages, sends us high res images we won't be able to fit them all in it - it would take too long and look pretty strange. And remember, sometimes, when we have a photo to use, but the listing falls in a bad space on the page - we won't be able to use it, but that's only when the exhibit doesn't last for several months, as in those cases, we might be able to use it the next month or the month after that.

Photos of artwork that is just at a gallery or venue, which is not related to an exhibit, can be used any time throughout the year or for years - we've already done that in some cases. Of course, if you leave that gallery or venue, you should let us know - that has happened a few times. Still, like they say, all publicity is good publicity. I don't believe that, but they say it - whomever "they" are.

What you do NOT need to send me is images of your work and you are NOT having an exhibit or are represented by a gallery or art venue. And don't send images of work you have at a gallery or art venue without running it past that gallery owner - unless you want to be kicked out of that gallery or art venue.

And don't send me an image that you think would make a great cover on our next issue. I select the cover images and it's not easy working all those details out and I don't need to be explaining to a lot of folks why we are not using their image - as great as it is. And please don't mention that it's better than what we have been putting on our covers, as I have a list of those artists who will never have their work on our cover - no matter how important the exhibit or venue. We don't reward people for being rude. And, I've been told that I'm the King of rudeness and I don't want anyone taking my crown from me. I never knew that asking folks to supply complete info and to be given it on time was a rude act, but so be it.

Excuse me for wanting to publish on time and provide all the info people need to go see the art we tell them about.

The exhibition opens with a First Friday reception on Feb. 4, from 6-9pm. As part of GCCA's exhibition programming, there will be an ARTalk discussion on Mar. 8, from 6-7pm.

My Daughter Gathers Seeds is a collaborative exhibition between Rachel de Cuba and matthew anthony batty. The works in this show tackles large cultural concerns through tender moments and soft, powerful movements. Combining digital media and traditional craft the artists have worked to create a spectrum of pieces that will invite viewers to consider acts of empathy and tenderness. In Production Landscape, Dr. Meghan Kirkwood explores the path of the Dakota Access Pipeline in the four states it crosses: North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, and Illinois. Kirkwood uses landscape photography to question the nature and extent of social and environmental costs of this activity.

She commented, "I've seen many artworks over the years and I've always been impressed with the quality of artwork being produced by Greenville Tech students."

These place winners each received cash awards and enthusiastic applause from family and friends at the VAASE's ences concepts explored in Susan Sontag's 1992 historical novel The Volcano Lover, which documents, among other things, the obsessions of a wealthy art collector. Taken together, the works in this exhibition signify the "secret" life of objects and their existence beyond the intentions of the person who made them. Objects can be reliquaries for memory, but the catch is: whose memories are contained within them? While examining the "alter-objects" featured in this show, viewers are invited to contemplate an exchange first posed in the prologue of Sontag's novel: "Why enter? What do you expect to see? I'm seeing. I'm checking on what's in the world. What's left."

Tiger Strikes Asteroid Greenville (TSA GVL) was founded in 2019 and is the newest part of the Tiger Strikes Asteroid (TSA) network of artist-run spaces and joins locations in Philadelphia, New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago. Our goal is to collectively bring people together, expand connections and create community through artist-initiated exhibitions, projects, and curatorial opportunities. We seek to build an ethos of cooperative achievement in the visual arts, creating the physical and emotional space for artists to show their work and exchange ideas on their own terms. Our artist-run model expands the artist's role beyond that of studio practitioner to include the roles of curator, critic, and community developer and provides an alternate model to the conventions of the current commercial art market. TSA GVL will specifically focus on connecting the art communities in Greenville and the greater Southeast to the global art world. TSA was founded in 2009 in Philadelphia, is a 501c3 non-profit organization, and is a 2021 recipient of a grant from the Warhol Foundation.

Art & Light Gallery in Greenville, SC, will present Subject to Gravity, featuring works by Chris McAdoo and Jeremy Russell, on view from Feb. 1 - 26, 2022. The gallery will host First Friday at the gallery on Feb. 4, from 6-8pm to celebrate this new collection. Beverages are to be enjoyed in the courtyard around the

Feb. 1, online and in the gallery beginning at 10am EST and will conclude on Feb. 26, at 4pm.

Subject to Gravity is a collection of paintings that explores the joy, sorrow, and the challenge of the unknown in their lives, and their work. Having both recently experienced life-changing personal events, each artist pursues their passion for creating with a drive to be part of a bigger story - of rebirth, lightning strikes, and lessons learned.

McAdoo's ongoing "Vessel" series is a visceral, colorful collection of recognizable objects and shapes - put out of their context and paired with short hand-written original stories. He finds tremendous joy in the process of painting, and uses that experience to challenge our concepts of memory, narrative, and art-making.

As a long time abstract expressionist, Jeremy Russell has a strong relationship with his intuition. He has found success in interpreting and harnessing music and paints from a spiritual place. He has now turned back to observation and focus on the rich brilliance of the natural world. The water. The forest. The light. Russell has decided to combine the best of both disciplines to capture something that feels alive and very real to him. Something that he is a part of, but that is also much bigger than himself.

“Some of our artists have wanted to do this so they can have more room in their studios to make more art,” Martin continues. “Three-D artists are always experimenting with new ways of doing something in their medium. Some things are pleasant surprises, but with experimentation there is always a learning curve and those pieces are good but not up to what is wanted by the artist.”

“Seeing newer artists such as Tom Zumbach starting out in a new medium, fused glass, and wanting to try everything in glass, he will have some that he doesn’t care for, for example,” she adds. “As a veteran glass artist, there are many pieces I have kept for looking back on the journey of 15 years, and now is the time to make more room.”

Other artists who will have works on display and for sale include: Sydney McMath (painting), Patrick DeCrane (painting, drawing), Chuck Reback (photography), Jim Weber (pottery), Janice McElligott (painting), Nancy Williamson (pottery), Chuck Bishop (pottery), Judy Martin (glass), Sally Weber (clay), Ari Carver (pottery), Rosemary McLeod (jewelry), Joan Wheatley (clay), Mary Verandeaux (painting, fused glass) and Patty Wright (photography).

“Many of our artists have been at work in their medium for years,” Martin says. “Jim Weber has 50 years under his belt making pottery. Chuck Reback has years taking pictures. There are some artists that have changed or added a medium to their artwork. Mary Verandeaux is an accomplished painter and is now adding fused glass.”

“We hope people will get some joy from this show and will take some of that joy home with them to enjoy each day,” she adds.

The Artists Collective | Spartanburg, located on W. Main Street, provides a forum and home for the arts and creative population of Spartanburg, providing facilities and services to artist members for exhibits, performances and creation.

Artists Collective | Spartanburg in SC Features Works by the Late Roderice Cardell

Artists Collective | Spartanburg in SC is presenting The MADDARTIST: Roderice Cardell, on view in the Collective’s Solomon Gallery, through Feb. 26, 2022. During the Feb. 17 Spartanburg ArtWalk, members of Cardell’s band will perform from 8-10pm. for visitors to the gallery.

Roderice Cardell, who died in January 2021 at the age of 33, left behind him a legacy through his music, his art and, most importantly, his love of his community and his commitment to making it a better place. Nearly 100 of Cardell’s paintings – many never before seen by the public – will be displayed in this exhibition.

Cardell’s works – neo-expressionist abstract paintings done on canvas and wood – will be offered for sale, with the proceeds going to Cardell’s family foundation to help underprivileged children in the Upstate.

“When Rod left us, he left behind over 80 pieces of art at the Artists Collective,” says Beth Regula, chair of the Collective’s board. Cardell was a member of the Collective, where he had a studio.

as an artist was prolific, talented and passionate,” Regula says. “He cared deeply that people saw his work and respected him and his work. He wanted to show it and share it. As a person, Rod was kind, compassionate, and willing to help others. He saw and felt that injustice existed and was willing to speak up and show up to try to make the world a better place.”

Cardell’s mother, Tonya Gilliam, says her son’s body of work is important “because he chose to take his frustrations and emotions out on his pieces. He expressed himself and encouraged others, especially the youth that struggled with anxiety and mental hurdles, to have a positive outlet by utilizing the canvas. That’s why his slogan was ‘turning chaos into beauty.’”

Gilliam says visitors to the gallery should see that his art has deep meaning. “If you look closely at some of his pieces, you will see messages, words or the mention of his relationship with God. You will see his life as it evolved from the beginning, where he used eyes in a lot in his work, to the times of protesting, love and peace.”

“What I want people to know about my son and his art is that he was passionate in everything he did,” continues Gilliam, who says when her son first began painting, she thought it was just a hobby but saw it grow as he used it after recovering from a near-death experience in a motorcycle accident. “He said that when he painted – when he created – it allowed him to express himself and be free from anxiety and depression.

“From acting in stage plays, singing, dancing and the paintings, not to mention he loved his community, he cared for others and was actively helping them while struggling himself,” she continues. “He lived life to its fullest. He lived life the way he wanted to – unapologetically.”

“I absolutely love his art. He left us all a piece of him in his work. I can feel his energy and awe him in every piece. I can go downtown Spartanburg and he’s everywhere. I’m very proud of him,” Gilliam adds.

Cardell, a native of Spartanburg and graduate of Winthrop University, was outspoken about issues he saw in his home community and the changes he sought in improving it. He provided a voice for Black artists and community members and was an active voice in conversations on equality and access. In 2019, he helped orchestrate the painting of the Black Lives Matter mural on West Broad Street in downtown Spartanburg. It was the site of an impromptu memorial when the community learned of his death.

Cardell once said, “As people, we have to look and see that our color palette has more colors than just one, not just ones that match our skin tones.”

“Roderice believed art could change people,” Spartanburg Councilwoman Meghan Smith said shortly after his death. “He lived that passion. He was an example of channeling hurt and frustration into a craft to create a better world. He has left a real gift.”

Regula says, “Rod was an exceptional artist and a well-loved member of the Artists Collective. Through this exhibition, we want to honor him as an artist and give the community an opportunity to see a large body of his work displayed in our Solomon Gallery.

“Rod in many ways was a bridge between the different communities of Spartanburg,” she continues. “He worked with children, was a performer, and was passionate about social justice. He spoke up and showed up. I remember when we interviewed him for membership in the Collective, one of our board members asked him how we could reach out to the Black community. He sat still for a minute and then said, ‘You have to go to them.’ With that answer, he became our ambassador in the community.”

Work by Roderice Cardell

“Cardell’s family, per his wishes, will set up a foundation for underprivileged children with the proceeds from the sale of his works at the exhibition,” Regula says. “We hope that those who knew and loved Rod will be able to purchase a work and know that they are helping to fulfill Rod’s desire to help others. He was a member of this community and touched many lives. Through his art, more lives can be touched. We hope the community will support the family in making Rod’s wishes come true.”

Arts Council of York County in Rock Hill, SC, Features Works by Jo-Ann Morgan and Renee Cloud

The Arts Council of York County in Rock Hill, SC, will present two new exhibits including: Quilt Memorials: Saying Their Names in Fabric, featuring works by Jo-Ann Morgan, on view in the Dalton Gallery, and Last Looks, featuring works by Renee Cloud, on view in the Perimeter Gallery. Both exhibits will be on view from Feb. 3 through Mar. 5, 2022. A reception will be held on Feb. 17, from 5:30-7:30pm, with remarks by Jo-Ann Morgan with Mike Gentry at 6:15pm.

During a time of political and cultural unrest, Jo-Ann Morgan turned to quilt making, a medium that is familiar, comforting, and traditional, through which she was able to make strong, even provocative, statements in an approachable way. Crafting stories through quilts, Morgan continues the tradition of representing pivotal moments of the African American experience.

Morgan is Professor Emeritus of African American Studies and Art History at Western Illinois University, and author of The Black Arts Movement and the Black Panther Party in American Visual Culture (Routledge, 2019). Her book Uncle Tom’s Cabin as Visual Culture won the prestigious Seaborg Award for Civil War Scholarship in 2008.

On view in the Perimeter Gallery is the exhibit, Last Looks, featuring works by Renee Cloud.

“Our literate brains cannot ignore words; we see them as a string of letters that convey a meaning, and never just a series of marks. We are always reading, always consuming information without pause,” said Cloud. Her work aims to bring people closer together through shared experiences while using her personal experiences as a platform. Language is Cloud’s medium, and the semiotics embodied by written words fascinates her.

This series of etched glass mirrors offers the viewer an opportunity to reflect and connect with the language featured on the reflective glass surface. A wall of portals, the focus is on the self-seen in and through the mirrors.

Cloud (b. 1992) is a Charlotte, NC, native and received her BFA in Studio Art from Appalachian State University in 2015. Using a combination of text art and mixed media, Cloud creates work that focuses on the personal narrative, the Black experience, and the power of the written word. The text incorporated into her work provides only a fraction of the narrative, leaving the viewer to create the rest. Cloud is currently working as a freelance creative within her community.

The Arts Council is headquartered in downtown Rock Hill, a state-recognized cultural district.

“We locked the works away until the family was ready to decide what to do with them,” Regula continues. “Only a few members of the Collective and his family have seen this work since last January. Since then, we have been working with the family to bring the work back into our largest gallery so that the community could once again see his work.”

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture in Charlotte, NC, Offers Three New Exhibitions

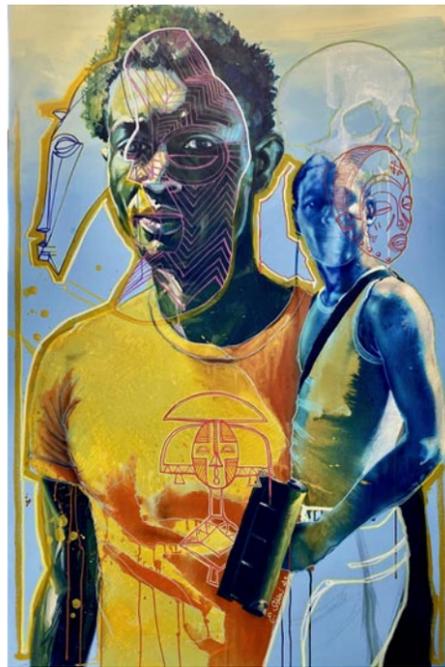

The Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture in Charlotte, NC, is presenting three new exhibits including: Reflections of a People: Photographs from the Archive of Jamel Shabazz, curated by Dexter Wimberly, on view through Mar. 6, 2022; Visible Man: Art and Black Male Subjectivity, curated by Michael D. Harris, PhD, on view through Apr. 24, 2022; and FuturePresent: Acquisition Highlights from the Permanent Collection, on view through June 26, 2022.

Jamel Shabazz is a rare photographer whose work stands as a testament to the lived experiences of Black people in America for over 40 years. His impressive oeuvre is engaging and highly recognizable. This exhibition brings together selections from Shabazz's extensive archive of photographs.

The son of a veteran, Shabazz was born and raised in Brooklyn, NY. He picked up his first camera at the age of 15 and soon after began photographing his friends and relatives. As Shabazz's practice evolved, the streets and the New York City subway system also became the backdrop for many of his photographs. Shabazz has drawn inspiration from noted studio and documentary photographers, most influentially Leonard Freed, as well as James VanDerZee, Gordon Parks, Robert Capa, and Eli Reed.

Shabazz has stated that his goal is to contribute to the preservation of world history and culture. Reflections of a People offers a glimpse into a past time and place, capturing moments of Black life for future generations.

Visible Man: Art and Black Male Subjectivity offers a creative look at the complexity of African-American males through cultural, racialized, and personal lenses.

Ernest Shaw, "Squeegee (Crossing Gods 2)", 2021. Mixed media, 72 x 48 x 3 inches.

For two centuries, African-American masculinity has been demonized or challenged visually in art and popular culture. Physical differences were turned into symbols of deviation or inferiority or a lack of civility, and the social position of African-American males was distorted into icons of inferiority. Images, both artistic and from popular culture, went a long way toward defining Black masculinity and creating tropes and symbols about character, identity, and social location in the Americas.

Michael B. Platt, "The Mist", 2009. Print on canvas, 36 x 48 inches. Permanent collection of the Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture. Generously donated by Patrick Diamond.

Visible Man emphasizes the creative expression surrounding the representation of Black males, elevating the voice of the subject, the diversity of perspectives and nuances of their representation - whether by self-representation or representation through observation - and the complexities of men in the African diaspora.

Rather than exploring the Black male body, this exhibition focuses on the multiple possibilities as seen and experienced from within the African diaspora and will privilege the voice of the subject as well as the voices of women artists who share the cultural and racialized experience of being Black. The artists are male and female, young and old, American and Caribbean, from the Midwest and the coasts, well-known and less so. It is an attempt to avoid notions of the 'Black body' and a discourse which emphasizes racial categorization in favor of a more nuanced and diverse cultural view.

Visible Man was organized by Bowling Green State University Fine Arts Center Galleries with support from the BGSU College of Arts & Sciences, the Ohio Arts Council and Ohio Humanities. It is dedicated to the memory of Dr. David Driskell and BGSU alumnus Edward Sewell.

FuturePresent: Acquisition Highlights from the Permanent Collection examines the Harvey B. Gantt Center's legacy of collecting.

Since the organization's inception in 1974, the Gantt Center has primarily built its collection from works gifted to the institution. Over the decades, John and Vivian Hewitt collected paintings, prints, and drawings from artists near and far. And in 1998, Bank of America acquired the collection from the Hewitts and pledged it to the then-named Afro-American Cultural Center.

The Hewitts' stewardship culminated in a collection of artwork by 19th and 20th century masters including Romare Bearden, Elizabeth Catlett, and Henry Ossawa Tanner. Although the media and scale of creations by African-American artists have evolved, the Gantt Center's focus for its collection remains the same - to build on the cultural foundation of John and Vivian Hewitt by supporting future masters and creative leaders of African-American art and art history.

FuturePresent embodies this idea through the presentation of works that are pioneering in their concept and execution. Artists such as Stacy Lynn Waddell and Radcliffe Bailey push the boundaries of the traditional canvas and frame while Phillip Thomas explores landscapes and societal themes through a contemporary lens. From John and Vivian Hewitt's collecting past, to the institution's present mission, this exhibition visualizes the future of art at the Gantt Center and beyond.

Since its establishment in 1974, the dream of the first visionaries has elevated to unforeseen levels. Located in the heart of Uptown Charlotte, October 2009 marked the opening of the Afro-American Cultural Center as the Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture. The naming of the new facility is in honor of Harvey Bernard Gantt, a well-respected community leader and businessman. He is a trailblazer as the first African-American student admitted to Clemson University and later served as Charlotte's first African-American mayor. This humble leader continues to impact the lives of the local citizenry and individuals well beyond the borders of Mecklenburg County.

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, Features Works by Lee Hall

Jerald Melberg Gallery in Charlotte, NC, is presenting The Quarry Paintings, featuring works by Lee Hall, on view through Feb. 19, 2022.

Jerald Melberg Gallery is pleased to present our sixth solo exhibition for Lee Hall, focusing on paintings Hall made over fifty years ago of a quarry in Maine, several of which were exhibited at the Betty Parsons Gallery in 1975.

"Whether it is the play of light and shadow on the craggy blocks of an abandoned quarry or the drifting sea fog covering and uncovering the shore of an island in Maine...Hall may spend weeks and months telling in images the different aspects and moods of her object. What she is speaking of are adventures of her eyes," said Wolfgang Zucker in an essay he wrote.

Lee Hall (1934-2017) was a North Carolina native and renowned Abstract Expressionist, whose muses were the American and Mediterranean landscape. Loosely titled by the locale they represent, her poetic landscapes are iterations of the tradition of abstraction derived from meditations on nature, whose forebear-

Hall's legacy is one of an exceptional painter as well as a respected educator and writer. Hall stood with the great artists of the New York School, earning herself representation at Betty Parsons' famed New York gallery. She also served as President of the esteemed Rhode Island School of Design, and she has written a number of books, including biographies of Willem and Elaine DeKooning and Betty Parsons.

Hall generously left her estate to the Bechtler Museum of Modern Art. The proceeds from acquisitions of her work through the gallery directly fund the museum's educational programs.

Hall was born in Lexington, NC, in 1934 and pursued her academic career at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, where she studied with the painters John Opper and George Ivy. She received her MA in 1958 and her PhD in 1965, both from New York University, and continued her post-doctoral work at the prestigious Warburg Institute at the University of London with research fellowships from the American Philosophical Society.

In New York, she forged close relationships with leaders in American modern painting, including Elaine and Willem de Kooning, and exhibited alongside Jackson Pollock, Mark Rothko and Robert Motherwell. Hall was represented by Betty Parsons, one of the most important gallerists of the period, and eventually became her close friend and biographer.

Hall's work was reviewed frequently and favorably in the central periodicals of the day, including ArtNews, Art in America, The New Yorker, Artforum, Arts Magazine and The New York Times by the widely respected critics Clement Greenberg, John Russell and Hilton Kramer, among others.

Hall's works are held in the permanent collections of several museums, including the Indianapolis Museum of Art, the Montclair Art Museum, the Seattle Art Museum, the Newark Museum, the Hudson River Museum, the Weatherspoon Art Museum, the Mint Museum (Charlotte, NC) and the Johnson Collection (Spartanburg, SC) as well as in many corporate collections such as Chase Manhattan Bank, Citibank and Prudential.

She was the recipient of many awards, including an Honorary Doctorate of Fine Arts from the University of North Carolina, the Childe Hassam Purchase Award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters and the Athena Medal from the Rhode Island School of Design. In 2016 she was awarded an Alumna of Distinction Award by the College of Visual and Performing Arts at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Alongside her lifelong devotion to making art, Hall also pursued a career in academia beginning in 1958. She taught at the University of New York, Potsdam and then Winthrop College in Rock Hill, SC. She spent almost a decade at Drew University where she left as full professor and Chair of the Art Department. She then served as the Dean of Visual Arts at the State University of New York at Purchase where, in 1975, she left to begin her tenure as President of the prestigious Rhode Island School of Design. There, she served for eight years before becoming the Director of Arts and Communication and Senior Vice President at the Academy for Educational Development in New York City.

Notwithstanding her many accomplishments as an academic, historian, university leader and teacher, throughout all of her life, Hall was first and foremost a painter. She drew great inspiration from her engagements with the landscapes and history of Greece, Rome and her love of the New England countryside. She continuously experimented in drawing, collage, oil and acrylics. Her interests were expansive, deep and informed by her pragmatism, empathy and seductive sense of humor.

Hall's growth as an intellectual and artist was persistent and enduring. As she wrote once, "A painter should live a long time. It takes decades of work, of arduous search and fretting, to know that labels don't matter, and to find what will suffice."

Jerald Melberg Gallery is located on South Sharon Amity Road near the intersection with Providence Road.

The Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, Features Works by Christopher Lane and Nikolai Oskolkov

The Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, is presenting Peacemakers, featuring works by Christopher Lane and Nikolai Oskolkov, on view in the Bassett Gallery, through Feb. 24, 2022.

Born in Minnesota in 1968, Christopher Lane spent these formative years inspired by regional artists Thomas Hart Benton, Andy Warhol, Georgia O'Keeffe, and Roy Lichtenstein. His early teenage years were spent in Cairo, Egypt where his work was influenced by the great architecture, sculpture, symbolism, hieroglyphs and the expressive colors used in their paintings. During this time period Lane discovered he had dyslexia and furthered his education at the GOW School in South Wales, New York. It was here that he received encouragement and guidance from Fine Arts teacher Bill Parsons.

Upon leaving the GOW School, Lane

Work by Christopher Lane

spent a year living in Paris, France, which fueled his creative instincts further. He returned to the States and pursued an art degree at Eastern New Mexico University.

Lane has now made his home in South Carolina where he continues to use fantastic imagery to turn his life experiences into visual stories that primarily focus on people and their relationships with one another. They often offer historical, political or spiritual narratives as he is passionate about these subjects.

Lane is a storyteller. His work is so intricately detailed that it provides the viewer an opportunity to discover something new each time they view the work.

Work by Nikolai Oskolkov

His work has been shown in galleries across the United States and as far abroad as New South Wales, Australia.

Nikolai Oskolkov, known as NikO, lives and works in Columbia, SC. He has been involved in fine art since early childhood and has made painting a career since high school. He has traveled far and wide from Russia to Canada and the US, and throughout Europe and the Caribbean.

Defining himself as a "visual musical composer," NikO constantly expands his own creative vocabulary through his observation of nature and use of imagination. He also believes that regular practice is the only way of hopefully mastering the lyrical instrument of painting.

NikO sends everyone a message of simple optimism and good humor with a motley palette of dancing satyrs, figures at rest, lush landscapes, and towering clouds!

After earning a BFA degree at the University of South Carolina, NikO concentrated on rustic depictions of the rural American South and its colorful folk musicians. In more recent years, NikO has developed into broader, independent subject matter, spontaneously painting everything from mood landscapes, still life, historical portraits, and mythical allegories.

with South Arts, the umbrella organization for state arts agencies in nine Southern states. South Arts launched the Southern Prize & State Fellows awards project in 2017, the first two years without an exhibition component. The inaugural 2019 exhibition traveled from 701 CCA to the Bo Bartlett Center in Columbus, GA, which since also has hosted the 2020 and 2021 exhibitions.

"Each year that South Arts makes these awards, we are awed by the depth and artistry in our region," South Arts president and CEO Suzette M. Surkamer, a former head of the South Carolina Arts Commission, wrote in the exhibition catalogue.

When South Arts in 2017 launched the first cycle of Southern Prize and State Fellowships recipients, Surkamer wrote, "we did not know what to expect and were positively blown away by the response." The current cohort, Surkamer wrote, reminds us "what it means to be resilient." The emotionally taxing times of COVID-19, political upheaval and urgent calls "for long overdue justice and equity" did not stop the 2021 South Arts fellows, Surkamer added. "Each artist took what 2020 gave them and declared that 2021 will be brighter and stronger."

For the Southern Prize, artists from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and Tennessee can submit a portfolio of their work. An independent jury selects one fellow from each state, from which a second jury panel selects two finalists for the Southern Prize. Each state fellow receives $5,000, the Southern Prize runner-up receives an additional $10,000, and the winner, an additional $25,000. Both finalists also receive a residency at the Hambidge Center for Creative Arts and Sciences in Rabun Gap, GA. South Arts has so far awarded $400,000 through the project to contemporary artists living and working in the South.

In addition to Williams and Plaisir, the artists in the current exhibition are Tameca Cole of Alabama, Raheleh Filsoofi of Tennessee, Joyce Garner of Kentucky, Myra Greene of Georgia, Jewel Ham of North Carolina, Ming Ying Hong of Mississippi and artists duo Keith Calhoun and Chandra McCormick of Louisiana. The 2021 cohort of South Arts fellows is the most diverse group to date. Of the six American-born artists, all but Garner are African American. Filsoofi is from Iran, Plaisir was born in France but has roots in Guadeloupe and Hong was born in China but raised in Los Angeles.

For visitors to the gallery masks and social distancing is required.

2022 Cottontown Art Crawl Takes Place in Columbia, SC - Mar. 12, 2022

The fourth annual Cottontown Art Crawl will welcome 115 artists to show and sell their original work in the downtown Columbia, SC, neighborhood. The event will be held on Saturday, Mar. 12, 2022, from 10am to 3pm with more art, more artists, more food and more fun for visitors. The event brings artists and entertainment to front porches and lawns in a historic downtown neighborhood.

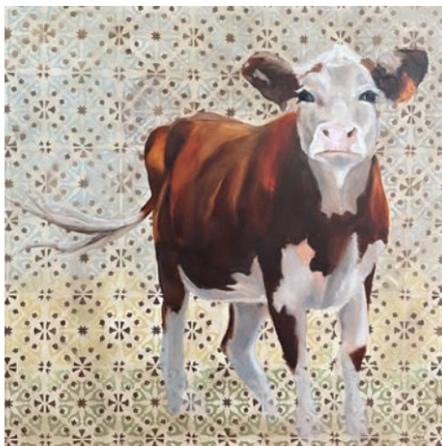

In 2019, the historic neighborhood in downtown Columbia held the first Cottontown Art Crawl. The event drew hundreds of people to explore the neighborhood and its businesses and garnered the 2019 Neighborhood Program of the Year from the Columbia Council of Neighborhoods. The event has seen significant growth since. The 2022 event will be the largest yet sponsored by the neighborhood.

"The Cottontown neighborhood is looking forward to supporting the Columbia arts scene on Mar. 12," said organizer Julie Seel. "Artists will be selling their work throughout the entire neighborhood. Some of the artists are emerging, some are quite accomplished, and some are award winning, juried artists. So, we truly have something for every level of art enthusiast," said Seel.

This event is entirely outdoors and spread over several city blocks, but social distancing and masks are encouraged. The organizers of the event are committed to creating a safe and welcoming environment for all and providing an opportunity for artists to showcase and sell their work safely.

Due to the success of the last three Art Crawls, this year boasts many more artists than previous years, as well as an accessibility and entertainment corridor on the 2200 block of Sumter Street with artists, food vendors and entertainment. While artists are located throughout the neighborhood, the corridor is intended to be more accessible to individuals with mobility issues.

The event is FREE and open to the public and will also feature live music featuring

Rob Shaw Gallery and Framing in Columbia, SC, Offers Works by Rob Shaw

Rob Shaw Gallery and Framing in Columbia, SC, will feature an exhibit of works by Rob Shaw, on view from Feb. 4 - 28, 2022. A reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 6-9pm.

The February show will feature a collection of Shaw's newest works, at the center of which are large, colorful abstract paintings that move in a bold new direction defined by loose strokes and fresh colors.

"Abstraction is the next logical step for me as a painter. My landscapes have always been impressionistic and, thus, abstract to an extent, and now I am pushing the boundaries of the subject matter even further," says Shaw.

Since opening his gallery in April of 2019, Shaw has showcased the work of many other South Carolina artists. This reception launches the first monthly art show of 2022.

ARTSVILLE Collective in Asheville, NC, Showcases Two Guest Artists & More at Its First Gallery Exhibition

ARTSVILLE Collective, at the new Marquee in Asheville, NC, opens its first public exhibition showing guest artist Micah Mackenzie's mixed media and Rhona Polonsky's ceramics along with the works of founding artists Daryl Slaton, pop animation and Louise Glickman, mixed media. Between the Lines will be on display from Feb. 1 through Apr. 24, 2022, at 36 Foundry in the RAD. The styles of each artist differs greatly but connect through thoughtful storytelling, coming alive in a mix of mediums, paint, clay, textiles and animation. The viewer is encouraged to consider how they come together, to read "between the lines."

Micah Mackenzie mixes media with mark making into imposing layered abstracts mimicking memories from childhood: playfulness and whimsy with splashes of color, seemingly with abandon. A closer look reveals balance and harmony within the chaos. Coatings of storytelling lead us to consider the human condition from the subversion of mythology to the magic of science. He invites us to see inside what is intrinsically beautiful and empowering.

Rhona Polonsky's pottery uses the language of lines and spaces that merge and connect to reveal their meanings: lines as boundaries to be crossed or parallels to read between. Her doodling since childhood grew in expression as she traveled the world, teaching young international students for over thirty years in Asia and Africa, from Indonesia to India. Her sgraffito vessels, lively and offbeat, evoke amusement, playfulness, whimsy and enthusiasm. They speak to us in a special language that warms our hearts with both simplicity and sophistication.

Daryl Slaton's work is overtly whimsical as he introduces his newest anthropomorphic character Gallagher, a playful tiger cub who entertains us through animation and augmented reality. Over twenty panels speak to us through the digital powers of augmented reality and the eyes and antics of Gallagher, a character staunchly loyal to people and place. These narratives bring both smiles and amazement evoking warm memories for adults with their own stories to tell their families.

Louise Glickman's storytelling is revealed through weaving of nets and textures where lines move over, under and around using bits of fabric, paint and plant materials. Her highly textural works are largely connected through her own life experiences and a love of nature and travel. Select pieces reveal her special interest in understanding the yin and yang of countries and cultures that have informed her worldview, from her childhood in New Orleans to travel with the Penland School

Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, Offers Works by New Members

The Asheville Gallery of Art in Asheville, NC, will present Time for Renewal, featuring works by three new gallery members: Kathy Goodson, Margie Kluska, and Johnnie Stanfield, on view from Feb. 1 - 28, 2022. A reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 5-8pm.

This show represents a seasonal reset. What is to come will be better. We have had our time to pause, and now it is time to refresh. For the earth, this is Spring, a time for new growth. In February, the light begins to change, and shadows shift. Underlying it all is the promise of our renewal.

Color is one of Kathy Goodson's visual languages. She captures the drama of her botanical flowers and leaves so they appear to leap off the painting...a visual feast in silk and dye or encaustic. The thrill of creating something unexpected is an elixir to her, with reds and fuchsia being her favorites. When creating an abstract, she begins by thinking about color, then a story begins to grow, which leads to a visual symbol or image, loaded with meaning related to the story. All of this happens before she puts the first brush stroke on the silk or the wood. Her process is interactive and she lets the painting create, then lead her.

Work by Kathy Goodson

"Color captivates me especially when winter begins to change into spring. The Lenten Rose is the first to emerge in late winter, with subtle and muted colors... unlike the later flowers of spring and summer," says Goodson.

Margie Kluska has been drawing since she was a child. She enjoys studying the works of the classical artists and Hudson River School painters, and she has only recently taken up oil painting. Her inspiration is taken from nature; landscapes, wildlife, and flora. Living surrounded by the beauty of the Blue Ridge Mountains has inspired her to paint views that take one's breath away. Distant mountain ranges, glorious sunsets, soaring hawks, and ever-changing weather patterns offer her extensive references which she captures on canvas. Her style, “loose realism”, captures the reality of each scene with a slight bent towards Impressionism.

“Light affects our moods. Whether it’s a sunrise, sunset, or storm clouds parting to expose a blue sky, our moods are instantly transformed,” says Kluska.

An award-winning artist, Johnnie Stanfield is known for her colorful, vivid watercolor and acrylic paintings of horses, fishing lure studies, and local landscapes. She is inspired by the emotion created when she sees an object or something in nature that recalls a past memory. She is then compelled to paint it, to convey and share that feeling with the viewer.

Stanfield will paint a subject in watercolor to give it a softer feel so the viewer can devote their own emotion to the painting or add to the emotion she has created. If it is detailed, she will usually use acrylic or oil. Her paintings hang in private collections throughout the Southeast.

Her work, Sheltering in Place, was inspired by her cat, during the shelter in place mandate in Spring, 2020. “Like all of us, we waited for the sunshine, to renew our spirit and celebrate its warmth, while wondering when we could go back out into the world and resume our life as usual,” said Stanfield.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Offers Work by the Wyeth Family

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, will present The Wyeths: Three Generations / Works from the Bank of America Collection, providing a comprehensive survey of works by N. C. Wyeth, one of America’s finest illustrators; his son, Andrew, an important realist painter; his eldest daughter, Henriette, a realist painter; and Andrew’s son Jamie, a popular portraitist. Through the works of these artists from three generations of the Wyeth family, themes of American history, artistic techniques, and creative achievements can be explored. This exhibition will be on view in the Asheville Art Museum’s Explore Asheville Exhibition Hall, from Feb. 12 through May 30, 2022.

N. C. Wyeth (1882–1945) has long been considered one of the nation’s leading illustrators. In the early 1900s, he studied with illustrator Howard Pyle in Delaware. In 1911, he built a house and studio in nearby Chadds Ford, PA. Later, he bought a sea captain’s house in Maine and in 1931 built a small studio, which he shared with his son, Andrew, and his daughters, Henriette and Carolyn. The exhibition includes illustrations for books by Robert Louis Stevenson and Washington Irving as well as historical scenes, seascapes, and landscapes.

Andrew Wyeth (1917–2009) is one of the United States’ most popular artists, and his paintings follow the American Realist tradition. He was influenced by the works of Winslow Homer, whose watercolor technique he admired, as well as by the art of Howard Pyle and his father, N. C. While Andrew painted recognizable images, his use of line and space often imbue his works with an underlying abstract quality. The exhibition includes important works from the 1970s and 1980s as well as recent paintings.

Henriette Wyeth (1907–1997) was the eldest daughter of N.C. Wyeth and an older sister to Andrew Wyeth. Like other members of her family, her painting style was realist in a time when Impressionism and Abstraction were popular in the early 20th century. She studied painting at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and was an acclaimed portraitist, though perhaps not as widely known as her father and brother. Most notably she painted the portrait of First Lady, Pat Nixon, which is in the collection of The White House.

Jamie Wyeth (born 1946), like his father and grandfather, paints subjects of everyday life, in particular the landscapes, animals, and people of Pennsylvania and Maine. In contrast to his father - who painted with watercolor, drybrush, and tempera - Jamie works in oil and mixed media, creating lush painterly surfaces. The 18 paintings in the exhibition represent all periods of his career.

This exhibition has been loaned through the Bank of America Art in our Communities® program.

The Bank of America Art in our Communities® program was established in 2009 in order to share the company’s art collection with the widest possible audience. Comprising the art collections of the predecessor banks that are now part of Bank of America, the program offers museums and nonprofit galleries the opportunity to borrow complete or customized exhibitions at no cost. Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Features Works by William Waldo Dodge Jr.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, will present Useful and Beautiful: Silvercraft by William Waldo Dodge features a selection of functional silver works by Dodge drawn from the Museum's Collection, on view in the Debra McClinton Gallery, from Feb. 23 through Oct. 17, 2022. Organized by the Asheville Art Museum and curated by Whitney Richardson, associate curator.

William Waldo Dodge Jr. (Washington, DC, 1895–1971 Asheville, NC) moved to Asheville in 1924 as a trained architect and a newly skilled silversmith. When he opened for business promoting his handwrought silver tableware, including plates, candlesticks, flatware (spoons, forks, and knives), and serving dishes, he did so in a true Arts and Crafts tradition. The aesthetics of the style were dictated by its philosophy: an artist's handmade creation should reflect their hard work and skill, and the resulting artwork should highlight the material from which it was made. Dodge's silver often displayed his hammer marks and inventive techniques, revealing the beauty of these useful household goods.

members of the English Arts and Crafts Movement, William Morris, who said, "have nothing in your house that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful." Not only did Dodge follow this suggestion; he contributed to American Arts and Crafts silver's relevancy persisting almost halfway into the 20th century.

"It has been over 15 years since the Museum exhibited its collection of William Waldo Dodge silver and I am looking forward to displaying it in the new space with some new acquisitions added," said Whitney Richardson, associate curator.

Established by artists and incorporated in 1948, the Asheville Art Museum is committed to being a vital force in community and individual development and to providing lifelong opportunities for education and enrichment through the visual arts. The Museum's mission is to engage, enlighten, and inspire individuals and enrich community through dynamic experiences in American art of the 20th and 21st centuries. The Museum is dedicated to advancing diversity, equity, access, and inclusion - now and in the future - and we welcome all visitors without discrimination. The Museum acknowledges that it is situated upon the ancient, southern Appalachian ancestral homeland of the Cherokee Tribe and that this region is still the home of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians today. The Museum is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization accredited by the American Alliance of Museums.

The Arts and Crafts style of England became popular in the United States in the early 1900s. Asheville was an early adopter of the movement because of the popularity and abundance of Arts and Crafts architecture in neighborhoods like Biltmore Forest, Biltmore Village, and the area around The Grove Park Inn. The title of this exhibition was taken from the famous quotation by one of the founding

There is much to love about a small painting: the diligence and thought poured into the imagery, the intimacy created with the careful attention can be seen as well as felt. A miniature painting tends to be quite affordable, so new collectors can purchase original art, and experienced collectors

The Arts Council of Winston-Salem & Forsyth County in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting Women in the Arts Exhibition, celebrating 250 years of alumnae at Salem Academy and College, on view in the Main Gallery of the Milton Rhodes Center for the Arts, through Mar. 26, 2022. Salem Academy and College's commitment to educating and nurturing women as creatives. An artist reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 5:30-7pm in the Main Gallery.

The exhibition, curated by local photographer and printmaker Kimberly Varnadoe, will feature Women in the Arts as part of activities highlighting Salem Academy & College's 250th anniversary year and Community Day on Mar. 26, 2022. Salem's Community Day will welcome visitors to campus for a day and showcase how academics, athletics, fine arts, and civic engagement impacts the Winston-Salem community and beyond.

"An artist call for the exhibition was sent out in early November, and the response was extremely positive," said Varnadoe. "My goal is not only to showcase the artistic excellence of these women, but for them to share how their time at Salem has impacted their creative journey from then to now."

Approximately 40 women will participate in the exhibition representing both the Academy and College across 50 years of alumnae, six states and two countries.

The Arts Council of Winston-Salem & Forsyth County is the chief advocate of the arts and cultural sector in Winston-Salem and Forsyth County. Arts Council's goal is to serve as a leader in lifting up, creating awareness and providing support to grow and sustain the arts and cultural offerings throughout our region, ultimately bringing our community together and making it a great place to live, work and play.

In 1772, Salem Academy and College was founded on the revolutionary idea that girls and women deserve a rigorous education to prepare them to lead the way for a better world. Over the last 250 years, Salem has built upon this foundation and pushed boundaries for women, empowering them to be leaders by preparing girls and women from all around the world to effect change, shatter expectations, and lead through the challenges and triumphs of their times.

During the 2021-22 school year, Salem will celebrate its 250th anniversary, a formidable achievement in the history of American education. Established even before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Salem has pushed boundaries for women at every juncture, enabling them to live their lives in ways that catalyze positive change. The public is invited to help Salem celebrate this milestone. More than two years in the planning, Salem's 250th anniversary series of events honors the institution's history and points proudly to its next bright horizon as a pre-eminent school for girls and the nation's only college dedicated to elevating and expanding the role of women in health leadership.

Alamance County Arts Council in Graham, NC, Features Works by Sia Yazdabfar

The Alamance County Arts Council in Graham, NC, will present Accidental Traveller: Sia Yazdabfar, on view in the Sisters Galleries, at the 1873 Capt. James & Emma Holt White House, from Feb. 7 through Mar. 19, 2022.

Yazdanfar is a freelance photographer, born and raised in Iran, with extended time throughout his formative years spent in Spain, Pakistan, and Nigeria. He has resided in the United States for most of his adult life. A few years ago, he went back to his motherland to explore the timeless traditions and trades of different regions in the country. His series of exhibitions upon his return stateside served as a visual tapestry of the millennia-old architectural wonders of Iran.

Yazdanfar's current exhibition took form over the course of explorations of various Persian Gulf islands and coasts, from August through December of 2021. He had once again returned to Iran during this seemingly endless pandemic, intending on trekking around the provinces of East and West Azerbaijan, in the north-west reaches of the country. When travel restrictions forced him to cancel, fate and chance recommendations landed him in the opposite direction, on the subtropical southern fringes of his motherland.

Boasting some of the most colorful landscape and locals he had ever encountered, Hormozgan Province borders the gulf where it meets the Strait of Hormuz, the preeminent strategic chokepoint on Earth. He believes these voyages yielded some of the most kaleidoscopic and engaging photos he has had the privilege to shoot, capturing some of the lesser known parts of the Middle East.

Travelling to distant places and exploring ways of life different than our own informs our worldview. Even prior to the pandemic, there was a sense of fragmentation in our common fabric. The Coronavirus disease and necessary self-isolation seemed to magnify some of our existing societal ills. As our society opens back up, there is no better time to embrace our differences and similarities than now.

The guiding philosophy and the impetus for this exhibition is twofold. First, through sharing photographs and stories from a misunderstood side of our planet, Yazdanfar hopes to dispel preconceived ideas of life seldom shared with a western audience. Second, he wants to insert the viewer into a world far away, and allow them to draw comparisons with their own everyday routines.

"We all seek familiarity, & I use the medium of photographic storytelling to deliver that," Yazdanfar said.

For further information check our NC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Council at 336/226-4495 or visit (www.alamancearts.org).

The deadline each month to submit articles, photos and ads is the 24th of the month prior to the next issue. This will be February 24th for the March 2022 issue and Mar. 24 for the Apr. 2022 issue. After that, it's too late unless your exhibit runs into the next month.

Burroughs-Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, Features Works by Bill Scott

The Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, opens its 2022 exhibition season – and 25th Anniversary Year – with a bold, expressive exhibit to inspire and delight audiences. Bill Scott | Where I Long to Be will be on view through Apr. 2, 2022.

Philadelphia-based abstract painter and printmaker Bill Scott presents Where I Long to Be, a retrospective exhibit of works on paper and etchings from 1980 to 2021.

Scott's signature style invokes brightness and light, with geometric patterns and layers of vivid color. In brilliant hues of blue, yellow, red and purple punctuated with black lines and strokes, Scott's works achieve luminosity with their saturated color. His pieces evoke environments within the natural world while reaching beyond it, allowing the viewer simultaneously a sensory and emotional experience.

Work by Bill Scott

"Bill's work exhibits a masterful employment of both color and opacity that creates a sense of depth and place," said Art Museum curator Liz Miller. "One might first be drawn to the work by Scott's attractive palette and composition, and secondly by the layering effect created by his translucent applications of color. The longer one holds their gaze, the more they will reap in terms of what the works might conjure in their minds."

The artist's corresponding narrative brings an additional dimension to the artistic experience.

"What I love most about this exhibition – aside from the art itself – is the commentary Scott has written for each painting and prints," said Miller. "Scott takes us on a journey by offering the viewer wonderful glimpses into his life and past experiences that correlate to what he was doing and where he was when he created each piece."

Scott has a connection to the Grand Strand via local collectors Charles and Sally Brodhead of Pawleys Island, SC. The Brodheads introduced Scott's work to the Grand Strand in 2017 when the Art Museum presented Grand Strand Collects, an exhibition of art selected from private collections of residents in Horry and Georgetown Counties.

Miller noted that Where I Long to Be was selected specifically as the 2022 opening exhibition, which will be paired with Synchronicity with works by Alice Ballard and Brian Rutenberg, for the new year.

"New Year, new exhibition," said Miller. "We haven't shown abstract work in a while, so we're excited to kick off the new year with something fresh for our viewers. And I just love the way that Scott's work presents concurrently with that of Brian Rutenberg – so much brilliant color and abstraction. The galleries are really going to pop."

The Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum is a wholly non-profit institution located on South Ocean Boulevard in Myrtle Beach. Components of Museum programs are funded in part by support from the City of Myrtle Beach and the South Carolina Arts Commission, which receives support from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Arts Council of Wayne County in Goldsboro, NC, Offers Works From the Rosepot Collection & Maximillian Mozingo

Arts Council of Wayne County in Goldsboro, NC, will present two new exhibits including: Rosepot Collection: African American Culture Arts, on view from Feb. 4 through Mar. 5, 2022, and Emergence, an exhibit of artwork by Maximillian Mozingo, on view from Feb. 4 through Mar. 18, 2022. A reception will be held on Feb. 4, from 6-8pm.

For her first public showing and in celebration of Black History Month, Goldsboro native Mollissie Peterson will bring a sampling of her vast collection of art and artifacts to share with residents of her hometown.

“Who we are as a people is the sum total of the stories we tell ourselves, handed down from generation to generation in a painting, sculpture or even a chair,” explains Peterson. “I’ve been moved to start collecting in an effort to pull together the stories of the past. In my journey, I realized there’s pain in our history, but also there’s so much strength, joy and celebration to be remembered and passed on. This Black History Month, I’m excited to share this work in my hometown because Goldsboro is where my story began, and I’m hoping to stir the soul of conversation and remembrance.”

The founding arts and cultural curator of the Rosepot Collection, Peterson seeks to tell the story of the African diaspora through her vast collection of art and artifacts that spans centuries, starting from the early 12th century to present day. Today, the Rosepot Collection consist of more than 1000 pieces, including ceremonial masks from West and Central Africa, antebellum slave writings, art procured by famous American literary icons, such as Maya Angelou and Alex Hailey, and fine art by internationally acclaimed artists Ernie Barnes, Charly “Carlos” Palmer, and Margaret May Dashiell.

While Peterson has been collecting pieces for over 30 years, her love for cultural preservation started with her grandfather William Henry Peterson, a community man and 32rd degree mason from North End District of Goldsboro. From her grandfather’s 1850s Planters Clock, the Rosepot Collection has grown into an homage to the thriving and resilient heritage of African Americans.

Peterson, a 1982 graduate of Goldsboro High School, currently resides in Burlington, NC.

Emergence, an exhibit of artwork by Maximillian Mozingo, will also open at the ACWC on Feb. 4 and will be up through Mar. 18. This is his second exhibit in the ACWC’s main gallery. His work also has been shown in Kinston, New Bern, Raleigh and New York.

Born in Goldsboro into a creative family of musicians and authors, Mozingo’s artistic process began as a child sketching cartoons and comic book heroes. He is self-taught and relies on instinct to guide his bold and attention grabbing creations.

Mozingo designed the mural Together We Rise that’s located on the exterior of the Arts Council building and led community members in its painting last year.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, Features Metal African Works

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, is presenting Peace, Power & Prestige: Metal Arts in Africa, on view at the Ackland Art Museum, through Apr. 3, 2022.

The exhibition explores the roles of metal objects in sustaining, unifying, and enhancing life in African communities while demonstrating the aesthetic and expressive power of metal arts. For millennia, African metalsmiths have drawn upon the inherent power and beauty of metal to create dazzling and enduring objects, including body adornment and currency items, for proclaiming wealth and social status; staffs, scepters, weaponry, and other regalia as emblems of leadership and authority; and amulets and sacred objects used in spiritual meditation and healing.

The exhibition of over 140 pieces includes a diverse range of iron, brass, bronze, gold, copper, silver, and alloyed works created by artists in Sub-Saharan Africa between the twelfth and twenty-first centuries. The selected objects are from the collection of the Harn Museum of Art at the University of Florida and from private collections, most notably that of Drs. John and Nicole Dintenfass.

Peace, Power & Prestige: Metal Arts in Africa was organized by the Samuel P. Harn Museum of Art at the University of Florida and curated by Susan Cooksey, retired curator of African Art.

The exhibition in Raleigh is made possible through a partnership between the City of Raleigh, Consulate General of Mexico in Raleigh, Jorge Marín Foundation, and the Dix Park Conservancy.

With more than 30 years of career, Marín is one of the most known figurative artists in Mexico. With his bronzes, he has ventured into different sculptural dimensions, ranging from miniature to monumental sculpture, formats that he has exhibited in Mexico and abroad, redefining public space, generating an unprecedented dialogue between art and audience.

Marín creates an aesthetic experience where the perfection of the human body is mixed, in balance, with allegorical forms and fantastic beings.

Originally exhibited in Marín’s home country of Mexico, Wings of the City has toured more than 20 major cities around the world since 2013. The Jorge Marín Foundation was established in 2017 to preserve and protect the artist’s work and to further Marín’s belief that “art is an indispensable tool to generate more reflective and peaceful societies”.

The City of Raleigh owns and operates Dorothea Dix Park, located at 2105 Umstead Drive in Raleigh. The Conservancy is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit that exists to support the City in its efforts, serve as its philanthropic partner, and help ensure the creation and long-term success of Dorothea Dix Park.

North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh, NC, Offers Exhibition Focused on Architect Phil Freelon

The North Carolina Museum of Art (NCMA) in Raleigh, NC, will host Container/Contained: Phil Freelon Design Strategies for Telling African American Stories, on view from Feb. 26 through May 15, 2022.

The exhibition celebrates the accomplished North Carolina architect Philip G. Freelon (1953–2019) and his remarkable career of over four decades designing public buildings with his firm, The Freelon Group, and later as design director of Perkins&Will North Carolina.

“We’re honored to help tell the story of Phil Freelon and his incredible accomplishments. The symbolism and metaphors in the buildings he designed celebrate Black communities and histories in a lasting way,” said Museum Director Valerie Hillings. “Freelon served on the North Carolina Museum of Art Foundation Board from 2008 to 2012, so we are especially pleased to present this exhibition focused on his groundbreaking career.”

This exhibition, organized by a team of faculty and students led by Dr. Emily Makas from the School of Architecture at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, debuted at the Harvey B. Gantt Center for African American Arts and Culture in Charlotte, NC. It examines Freelon’s work, which includes museums, libraries, cultural centers, and public parks, with a focus on projects that embrace Black communities and identities. Freelon often noted that architecture should be more than a container - it should help tell the story of and be integral to the content of public institutions. To explore the relationship between the container and the contained in Freelon’s architecture, this exhibition analyzes connections among the forms, materials, and meanings of his projects and the histories and cultures they celebrate.

Freelon’s notable designs include the National Museum of African American History and Culture in Washington, DC; the National Center for Civil and Human Rights in Atlanta; the Museum of the African Diaspora in San Francisco; the Harvey B. Gantt Center for African American Arts and Culture in Charlotte; the Mississippi Civil Rights Museum in Jackson; and the forthcoming Freedom Park in Raleigh. Freelon and his team drew on histories of neighborhoods, connections to African American communities, and African pasts to create designs rooted firmly in place and time. Activism and celebration of heritage are subtly present in Freelon's work.

He was a master of formal symbolism and design metaphors that are thoughtful and thought-provoking and reference culture and history. Freelon's work, for example, examines the multiple functions and meanings of skin - as both a protective covering and a visual form of identification. In his designs for African American communities and institutions, he expanded the idea of skin with complex building exteriors that explore the use of color, pattern, and material.

The exhibition was researched, curated, and designed by a team of faculty and students led by Dr. Emily Makas from the School of Architecture at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. This work was made possible by support from UNC Charlotte's School of Architecture, College of Arts and Architecture, Chancellor's Diversity Grant Program, and Office of Undergraduate Research, as well as from Perkins&Will. In Raleigh, additional support for this exhibition is made possible, in part, by the North Carolina Department of Natural and Cultural Resources; the North Carolina Museum of Art Foundation, Inc.; and the William R. Kenan Jr. Endowment for Educational Exhibitions. Research for this exhibition was and oral history influence a reflection on the past. The works curated go between physical material and digital elements in order to fully realize their concerns at hand. Each artist works to ensure their space in a collective cultural memory that is at once collapsing and being built. For further information call the Furman Department of Art at 864/294-2400.

"Election Night", ca. 1935 - 1937, by Minnie Lois Murphy (American, 1901 - 1962). Wood-block print on paper, 8 x 10 1/2 inches. Gibbes Museum of Art, Gift of the WPA 1943.006.0017

Gibbes Museum of Art, 135 Meeting Street, Charleston. Gallery 8, Through Aug. 7 - "Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice". William H. Johnson painted his Fighters for Freedom series in the mid-1940s as a tribute to African American activists, scientists, teachers, performers and international heads of state working to bring peace to the world. He celebrated their accomplishments even as he acknowledged the realities of racism, violence and oppression they faced and overcame. Some of his fighters—Harriet Tubman, George Washington Carver, Marian Anderson and Mahatma Gandhi—are familiar historical figures; others are less well-known individuals whose determination and sacrifice have been eclipsed over time. Drawn entirely from the collection of more than 1,000 works by Johnson given to the Smithsonian American Art Museum by the Harmon Foundation in 1967, this exhibition is the first-ever presentation of this series in Johnson's home state of South Carolina. "Fighters for Freedom: William H. Johnson Picturing Justice" is organized by the Smithsonian American Art Museum with generous support from Art Bridges, Faye and Robert Davidson, and the Jacob and Gwendolyn Lawrence Foundation. Gallery 9, Through Aug. 7 - "A New Deal: Artists at Work". During the Great Depression of the 1930s, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt launched his ambitious Works Progress Administration (WPA) programs that sent millions of unemployed Americans back to work, including more than 5,000 artists. The Federal Art Project, formed under the WPA, afforded opportunities to a diverse group of artists, including women, African Americans and recent immigrants from China, Russia and Germany. This monumental effort to put artists back to work resulted in a collection of artworks intended to uplift the national spirit and encourage creativity in the face of great challenges. The Gibbes is one of a select group of institutions across the country that houses a historic collection of Federal Art Project prints. Gallery 2 & 3, Through Feb. 20 - "Light Effects: The French Impressionists". The works of French masters Edgar Degas, Paul Cézanne, Auguste Renoir, Paul Gauguin, and others drawn to the short loose brushstrokes, bright colors, and focus on modern life that became the language of Impressionism are highlighted in this exhibition. Featuring artworks from private collections located across the country, including Charleston, this show is part of the Gibbes collectors' exhibition series and is organized with the assistance of The Fine Art Group. This exhibition is made possible by support provided by Lynch Cracraft Wealth Management of Raymond James; UBS; PURE Insurance, The Cuddy Family; Jack Hoey; Hall and Christine McGee, and Judith Green and Dr. Michael Fritz. Feb. 25 - Oct. 9 - "William Eggleston Photographs from the Laura and Jay Crouse Collection". It is said that William Eggleston's unique ability to conflate the epic and the everyday has made him one of the most impactful figures in late 20th century photography. A native of Memphis, TN, Eggleston first photographed his local environs in the 1950s in black-and-white but became one of the first fine art photographers to use color to record his observations in a more heightened and accurate way. Today, his strikingly vivid yet enigmatic images of parked cars, billboards, storefronts, diners and other artifacts of the ordinary world are considered groundbreaking. The photographs presented in this edition of the museum's Charleston Collects exhibition series were selected from the Laura and Jay Crouse Collection and represent many of the pioneering artist's most notable works. The exhibition will be accompanied by a full-color catalog with an essay on the artist by Simon Constantine, Ph.D., professor of photographic history at Birkbeck, University of London, and Sotheby's Art Institute. Galleries 1, 4, and 5, Permanent Exhibition - "18th and 19th Century American Paintings and Sculpture". American paintings, from colonial portraits to Civil War-era landscapes, occupy the Gibbes Main Gallery. Portraits of leading political, social, and military figures include works by Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Benjamin West, Gilbert Stuart, Thomas Sully and Samuel F.B. Morse. The gallery also features landscape and genre scenes by Angelica Kaufmann, Louis Mignot, Eastman Johnson, Conrad Wise Chapman, and William Aiken Walker. The paintings collection is complemented by examples of neoclassical sculpture on view in the Campbell Rotunda, and decorative art objects on loan from the Rivers Collection. Gallery 5, Permanent Exhibition - "Miniature Portraits". The first American miniature portraits were painted in Charleston, and today the Gibbes is home to one of the most prestigious portrait miniature collections in the United States. Containing more than six hundred objects, the collection spans nearly two hundred years and represents the work of over a hundred artists. Small enough to fit in the palm of the hand, these tiny portraits were treasured remembrances of loved ones in the age before photography. Presented in state-of-the-art display cases, and in viewable storage drawers featured miniatures include works by Mary Roberts, Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Charles Wilson Peale, Pierre Henri, Edward Greene Malbone, George Engleheart, and Charles Fraser. Gallery 6, Permanent Exhibition - "20th Century American Regionalism and the Charleston Renaissance". At the turn of the twentieth century, American artists looked to their European counterparts and beyond as they developed identifiably American artistic movements. Two particularly strong influences during this time period were French Impressionism and Japanese woodblock prints. Another prevailing theme during this period was the growing interest in American subject matter. American regionalism and social realism played important roles in the development of art in Charleston, which flourished as a destination for artists, particularly during the years of 1915 to 1945 a period now known as the Charleston Renaissance. Gallery 7, Permanent Exhibition - "Modern and Contemporary". Modern and contemporary art in America encompasses a wide range of styles, subject matter, and media. As a whole, the diversity of modern and contemporary art reflects the rich and varied heritage of our nation and the lowcountry region. Works in this gallery were created over the past forty years by artists who are native to the area, who have worked here, or who have created objects that reflect the complex story of the region. The works are grouped to reflect several themes including the southern landscape, the human figure, abstraction, and the legacy of slavery in America. Ruth and Bill Baker Art Sales Gallery, Katy Mixon, Session I: Feb. 21 - Apr. 3 - Mixon, born in Orangeburg, SC, is a visual artist working in painting, sculpture, quilting and photography. Halsey Institute of Contemporary Art, The Marion and Wayland H. Cato Jr. Center for the Arts, College of Charleston School of the Arts, 161 Calhoun St., Charleston. Through Feb. 26 - "Hear Her," featuring an exhibition of work by Sićanĝu Lakota visual artist and independent curator Dyani White Hawk. White Hawk's work illuminates society's consistent ignorance of Native people. With her video, photography, and works in other media, she aims to use the language of visual art to bring light to the deep chasm between our understanding of history and the truth. Her work weaves together forms from the canon of Western art along with the visual languages and traditions of Native people. In doing so, her work spotlights Native women, whose strength and fortitude over centuries have helped their peoples' languages and cultures to survive. On view in "Hear Her," White Hawk's video installation "LISTEN" presents a series of Native women speaking the language of their people. Each film takes place on the land of each participant's nation, and viewers hear the respective languages without translation. As such, White Hawk puts a focus not only on the resonance of each speaker, but she also reveals society's collective ignorance of the people, culture, and language of those native to the land on which we live. Hours: Mon.- Sat., 11am-4pm; until 7pm on Thur. and by appt. Contact: 843/953-4422 or at (<http://halsey.cofc.edu/exhibitions/>).

This exhibit showcases colorized photographs of remarkable snow days captured by residents of Charleston dating to the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Ongoing - "Becoming Americans: Charleston in the Revolutionary War". Charleston played a critical role in the Revolutionary War. South Carolina was the wealthiest of the thirteen rebellious colonies and Charleston was its key port to maintain its trade with the outside world. Their defeat at the Battle of Sullivan's Island on June 28, 1776 was a crucial patriot victory, which convinced many that independence could be achieved. The Siege of Charleston, meanwhile, was the longest siege of the Revolutionary War and the largest battle in South Carolina. These events and others are chronicled in the new exhibit, which will also feature artifacts and period images that have not been exhibited at the Museum before. Ongoing - Featuring the most extensive collection of South Carolina cultural and scientific collections in the nation, it also owns two National Historic Landmark houses, the Heyward-Washington House (1772) and the Joseph Manigault House (1803), as well as the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. Work by Joann Quiñones

Lee Gallery, 1-101 Lee Hall, Clemson University, 323 Fernow Street, Clemson. Through Mar. 9 - "An Archive of Loose Leaves," an exhibition based around questions of the influence and hierarchy of memory within contemporary art. Featuring the works of Rachel Lin Weaver, Joann Quiñones, Cristina Molina, Allison Janae Hamilton, April Dauscha, & matthew anthony batty. This exhibit hopes to explore how artists address silences in the traditional archive or collection, as well as investigating how ephemera and oral history influence a reflection on the past. The works curated go between physical material and digital elements in order to fully realize their concerns at hand. Using collected material, passed down objects and narratives, the works begin to create a new archive of sorts that no longer relies on a privileged lineage. Each artist works to ensure their space in a collective cultural memory that is at once collapsing and being built. The exhibition has several artists talks taking place during the exhibition along with a panel discussion. On Feb. 7, a consortium of regionally based experts will participate in a panel discussion focusing on the contemporary influence of systems and archives in a communities history. Interrogating how institutions and creative production in the contemporary struggles to address the role of memory in a community. This panel will consider broad themes while examining the current points of inflection in the Upstate region of South Carolina, and how their work and fields influence the understanding of community memory. The panel discussion will take place at the Watt Center for Innovation and Technology at 6pm in the large auditorium and will be moderated by curator Rachel de Cuba. Columbia Area

Columbia Museum of Art, Main & Hampton Streets, Columbia. Feb. 19 - May 29 - "Anila Quayyum Agha: Let a Million Flowers Bloom". Pakistani American artist Anila Quayyum Agha's immersive installations upend traditional ideas about sculpture. Brilliantly lit from within, they cast their own images onto the walls around them like lanterns and create intricate patterns that dance over visitors as they move through the exhibition. The works in "Let a Million Flowers Bloom" use floral and geometric shapes inspired by Islamic architecture to explore notions of masculine and feminine, public and private, religious and secular, and particularly space and refuge, taking on the pain of losing one's home and agency and the hope of establishing them both anew. Agha's unforgettable art envelops viewers in an enchanting visual environment that inspires awe and invites contemplation about sanctuary and belonging. Feb. 19 - May 15 - "Rodin: Contemplation and Dreams / Selections from the Iris & B. Gerald Cantor Collections". Auguste Rodin saw the body as an envelope for the spirit, and the flickering surfaces of his modeled forms express this tension. His sculptures' poses, directly inspired by Michelangelo's powerful marble works, capture the human condition in all its elation and anguish. Rodin holds a prized place in the history of art, straddling the decades of the late 19th and early 20th centuries when the world was striving for a new modern form of expression. Visitors will learn about his processes for drawing, modeling, and casting as they immerse themselves in more than 40 examples of the artist's works in bronze. Guignard Gallery, Through May 22 - "22 South Carolinians" features the work of Cameron Alexander, Tarleton Blackwell, Jai-Anna Carter, Ija Charles, Robert Coffey, Angela Corbett, Michael Dantzler, B. Craig believes that architectural structures acting as both repositories and as vehicles for memory profoundly influence culture and identity by providing a tangible framework through which facets of a society can be expressed. Consequently, he has been inspired to build a body of work dealing with how identity is influenced by the types of architectural edifices present in a given landscape. Craig's work is not merely a method of documentation, but a sociopolitical/socioeconomic commentary on the effects of hubris, avarice, free trade, outsourcing, deregulation, deterritorialization, neoliberalism, obsolescence, and international-finance-capital upon communities throughout the world. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-4:30pm. Contact: Olga Dickey, Gallery Director, at 803/422-4289 or e-mail to (yukhno@mailbox.sc.edu).

Work by Brian Rutenberg

Franklin G. Burroughs • Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Through Apr. 16 - "Synchronicity: Alice Ballard + Brian Rutenberg". The rich beauty and wonder of the South Carolina landscape permeate the work of ceramist Alice Ballard (b. 1945 Florence, SC) and painter Brian Rutenberg (b. 1965, Myrtle Beach, SC), who both share a deep connection with and great love of our region's natural surroundings. Synchronicity is a nod not only to this thematic tie that harmonizes their markedly different art forms, but perhaps even more so to the serendipitous connections - both geographical and philosophical - that the artists continue to discover about the paths their lives and work have taken. Rutenberg remarks: "Synchronicity is when two people respond to one another from two different vantage points to make one expression. It is that personal response to nature that the viewer will come away with. We do it in very different ways: my work is 2D and filled with saturated color; Alice's is 3D with focus on value/monochromatism. We land in the same place, but in the middle, we diverge. It's that place in the middle where viewers will have the biggest takeaway with their experience." Through Apr. 2 - "Bill Scott: Where I Long To Be". American artist Bill Scott (b. 1956) of Philadelphia, PA, is an abstract painter and printmaker, whose compositions - while inspired by nature - evoke imagined spaces into which one might enter in order to temporarily escape reality. Scott's color, paint application and composition yields exquisite imagery that ignites the senses. His work compels viewers to delve into his utopian settings, which are fully realized by the sensory experience more so than by literal representation of reality. Jennifer Samet, who interviewed Scott in 2016, attests, "They feel like experiences multiplied, rather than synthesized." It is this kind of emotional and contemplative interaction with Scott's paintings and etchings that leaves the work lingering in viewer's minds. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm & Sun., 1-4pm. Spartanburg

Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. The downtown cultural district area is often bustling with events and pedestrians, and the pedestrians rely heavily on a multitude of crosswalks to safely traverse the downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. For more info visit (<https://www.chapmanculturalcenter.org/pages/blog/detail/article/c0/a1555/>).

His ties to the Spartanburg community originate from his longtime employment at Milliken and Company. Tait was born in Old Town, Maine in 1917 and graduated from the New Hampshire Institute of Arts and Science. In the late 1940s, he moved to New York City where he designed an exclusive line of ladies' handkerchiefs for the department store B. Altman, now considered vintage, collectible items. He also became associated with the American Artist Group designing Christmas cards, an occupation which he kept up throughout the majority of his artistic career. Krisel was a distinguished artist, architect, and teacher as well as a loving father and husband. Though Krisel may not be a household name among Spartanburg residents, he has made a significant artistic contribution to the Spartanburg community. Born in Brooklyn, NY in 1920, Krisel's interest in art and design started at a young age. He attended the American Artist School in New York City as a teenager where he met renowned modern artists, including Piet Mondrian, who greatly influenced his abstract style. After studying architecture at the New Bauhaus in Chicago from 1946-1949, he received his graduate degree from Illinois Institute of Technology in 1952. The following year, he began working for architectural firm Skidmore, Owings and Merrill when Roger Milliken hired them to design Milliken's new research facility in Spartanburg. Upon realizing Krisel was also a sculptor, Milliken hired him to design the spray fountain outside of the facility which functions as a recycler of air conditioning water. He then went on to design the Trident Fountain located outside of the Papadopoulos building on Wofford College's campus. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-7pm & Sat, 9am-3pm. Contact: 864-278-3228 or at (<https://www.mayfairartstudios.org/>).

Blowing Rock

Blowing Rock Art and History Museum, corner of Chestnut and Main streets, downtown Blowing Rock. Rankin West Gallery, Through Feb. 19 - "Emergent Landscapes: Mountains, Music, & Improvisation in the Paintings of Abie Harris". Abie Harris paints the mountains—he also paints the equally dynamic landscape of Bluegrass music. He is often doing both of these things at the same time. Rooted in Harris's iterative approach to painting, the pictures in "Emergent Landscapes" arise from repetitive close study—of the vistas surrounding his family's 19th-century home in the town of Blowing Rock and of the vernacular music traditions that aurally describe the region. Fort Gallery, Through Apr. 16 - "Potters & Patrons: The Gorelick Collection at BRAHM". Carol Gorelick (1939-2019) began building her collection of pottery in 1970. Along with her husband Shelton (1929-2014), the Gorelicks were drawn to the medium's texture and tactility and built a substantial collection of predominantly North Carolina pottery and ceramic objects over the preceding decades. The Gorelicks purchased what they liked, with Carol once saying, "I collect by the seat of my pants." As the couple collected, they formed long-lasting friendships with the artists from whom they purchased work. Amassing a collection representing many of the state's most prominent ceramic artists, the pair left an indelible mark on the tight knit pottery community as tireless and compassionate patrons. With works by Steve Abbee, Michel Bayne, Herb Cohen, Josh Copus, Christina Córdova, Burlon Craig, Kim Ellington, Mark Hewitt, Daniel Johnston, Matt Jones, Stacy Lambert, Charles Lisk, Alex Matisse, The Owens family, A.V. Smith, and many others, the Gorelick collection serves as a testament to their fidelity to and love for the medium and to the individual makers who enliven it. Atwell Gallery, Through Feb. 26 - "Storyland: A Trip Through Childhood Favorites," is an immersive adventure through three beloved children's picture books: "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" by Beatrix Potter, "The Snowy Day" by Ezra Jack Keats, and "Where's Spot?" by Eric Hill. From idyllic country gardens to urban snowscapes, this exhibit engages children and adults alike in the joy of literacy. With text presented in English and Spanish, "Storyland" provides practical tools for cultivating literacy through everyday activities and argues that it is never too early to cultivate a love of reading. Picture book illustrations are transformed into three-dimensional play and learning environments highlighting the six major literacy development areas: print motivation, print awareness, letter knowledge, sound awareness, vocabulary, and narrative skills and comprehension. Children will explore these foundational literacy skills through imaginative, interactive experiences and dramatic play inspired by classic stories. Schaefer Gallery, Through May 8 - "Wildflowers: Glass Sculptures by Ronnie Hughes". Born and raised in the Blue Ridge Mountains, Ronnie Hughes' passion for working with glass came as a surprise. Despite his aptitude for fine detail, Ronnie's technique of frameworking durable borosilicate glass is largely self-taught. Initially inspired by an unexpected field of Pink Lady Slipper orchids during a hike in 1980, Hughes has devoted his studio work exclusively to wildflowers native to North Carolina ever since. His sculptures are characterized by an exacting attention to accurate flower structures and the organic forms that support and reinforce these delicate compositions. Seen here in clear glass, the artist's forms, while drawn from Nature, are almost ethereal in their ability to capture and diffuse light. Ongoing - the BRAHM will host exhibits, educational programs and classes that promote the visual arts, history and heritage of the mountains of western North Carolina. Admission: Yes. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., noon-4pm. Contact: 828/295-9099 or at (www.blowingrockmuseum.org).

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Mezzanine Gallery, Through Feb. 5 - "98.6 – A Creative Commonality," featuring artworks created by chimpanzees at Zoo Knoxville. Humans and chimpanzees share 98.6% of the same DNA. Both species have forward-facing eyes, opposing thumbs that accompany grasping fingers, and the ability to walk upright. Far greater than just the physical similarities, both species have large brains capable of exhibiting great intelligence as well as an incredible emotional range. Chimpanzees form tight social bonds, especially between mothers and children, create tools to assist with eating and express joy by hugging and kissing one another. Over 1,000,000 chimpanzees roamed the tropical rain forests of Africa just a century ago. Now listed as endangered, less than 300,000 exist in the wild because of poaching, the illegal pet trade and habitat loss due to human encroachment. Often, chimpanzees are killed, leaving orphans that are traded and sold around the world. In the case of chimpanzees and other great apes, research has shown that certain individuals respond to color and enjoy painting as a type of enrichment. Like human artists, each chimpanzee has a unique reaction and approach to their canvas. While most chimpanzees enjoy using their hands and feet, occasionally even their lips, some have even learned how to use a paintbrush. Mayer Gallery, Through Feb. 5 - "Matters of the Heart (and Other Abnormalities): Shawn Morin". The exhibition explores concepts of human relationships. It seems to me that since 9/11 and Y2K, there has been a fundamental shift in the way many humans act, react and navigate the world. Add to that the current worldwide pandemic and proliferation of clinical depression, especially amongst our youth, and it is easy to perceive that the world has changed dramatically. Consequently, some humans are now far kinder and more loving than they once were, while others have grown desperate, indifferent, angry, and resentful. Gallery A, Through May 7 - "To Remain Connected: Jenny Irene Miller, Raven Moffett and Shauna Caldwell, Guest Curators". By bringing together work grounded in Inuit artmaking across generations, as well as through multifaceted and evolving practices, we hope to kindle conversations around the meaningful stories that are deeply rooted in community, placemaking and engage with ongoing legacies of creation. The featured artworks were selected because of the stories they tell and the connections they visualize. Our curatorial model stems from an embrace of the collective and highlights community through thoughtful portraiture as well as collaborative, familial and multigenerational art making. To Remain Connected presents rich layers of stories told through a multitude of interwoven voices rooted in land, memory and Inuit ways of being. While Inuit are linked together through art, language, food, and more, there are many unique Inuit communities, dialects, and lifeways across lands that have been renamed Alaska, Russia, Greenland, Canada and beyond. Gallery B, Through May 7 - "In the Garden of Healing: Dara Mark". "The paintings in this exhibition were made over the five year period after my husband died. Each of them reflects my emotional state during the process of grieving and healing and describes in abstract terms an arc of personal growth. The paintings were not conceived of as therapy per se, but as the only way forward for me as an artist. The medium – watercolor on Yupo paper – and the formal issues of transparency, flow and balance, were and are a continuation of my longtime studio practice. Color is always key. For the first year I used black, white and blue exclusively, because that felt right. Two years later, diagnosed with breast cancer, I was drawn to the warm colors of the spectrum: red, pink, orange, yellow," said Mark. Hodges Gallery, Through June 4 - "The New West: An Old Story, Photographs by Joan Myers and Steve Fitch". Photographers have been reimagining the American West ever since cameras were ferried across the Mississippi River in the 1850s; photographs being the primary way people in the East could see what wonders lay in the then uncharted and mythical territories far to the West of the "Great River." According to the Native Languages of Americas website (www.native-languages.org/state-names), "Misizilbi" is the native name of the river in the Ojibwe language. Since the 1860s when the first photographs of Yosemite Valley were made, photographs—both still and moving images—have been instrumental in promoting the West as an unexplored wilderness and the land of opportunity. Although unacknowledged when convenient, as it often was, the lands west of the Mississippi were traditional homelands to many First Peoples and a diverse cross-section of Hispanic peoples who moved into the land with the Spanish Friars and Conquistadors funded by the Spanish Crown long before the West was Anglicized. Community Gallery, Through June 4 - "To Be & Become: Corn Wagon Thunder". "My photographic self-portraiture is borne of a fascination with the Existential questions 'Who am I?' and 'Why am I?'. I am interested in dissecting the mode and manner of my own being. With a nod to the absurd, I use symbolism to visualize the riddle of life. Yet, with tenderness toward the mysterious edges of self-discovery. I use language to dance with the visual, to provide wayfinding but also to reinforce mystery. I focus the camera on myself as a method of examining my personal mythology and to consider how one constructs and transforms meaning in relation to existence. "To Be & Become" (Lost in the Becoming) chronicles my journey into midlife. Becoming the thing I didn't want to be – yet became, was becoming. This project began as the ten-year anniversary of my mother's death approached. I was thirty-five years old when she succumbed to cancer. As my adult life unfolds in her absence, I long intensely for her guidance and support. This work is an effort to summon her wisdom and guidance from beyond the grave and acknowledges the mysterious presence of absence." Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-6pm; Fri., noon-8pm; & Sat., 10am-6pm. Contact: 828/262-3017 or at (www.turchincenter.org).

Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Through Feb. 13 - "Clouding: Shape and Sign in Asian Art". This year-long installation explores the diverse forms and functions of clouds in the arts of Asia, juxtaposing works of art in different media and from different time periods spanning the Bronze Age to the present. Through Apr. 3 - "Peace, Power & Prestige: Metal Arts in Africa". The exhibition explores the roles of metal objects in sustaining, unifying, and enhancing life in African communities while demonstrating the aesthetic and expressive power of metal arts. For millennia, African metalsmiths have drawn upon the inherent power and beauty of metal to create dazzling and enduring objects, including body adornment and currency items, for proclaiming wealth and social status; staffs, scepters, weaponry, and other regalia as emblems of leadership and authority; and amulets and sacred objects used in spiritual mediation and healing. The exhibition of over 140 pieces includes a diverse range of iron, brass, bronze, gold, copper, silver, and alloyed works created by artists in Sub-Saharan Africa between the twelfth and twenty-first centuries. Through Apr. 17 - "Focus on the Peck Collection: Idle Sleep". Artists have depicted the theme of sleep for centuries. The meaning of such images can be numerous depending on who sleeps, where and how they sleep, and their reasons for doing so. Using a drawing attributed to seventeenth-century Dutch artist Jacob Duck of a slumbering youth as inspiration, this Focus on the Peck Collection installation explores the ways in which artists have assigned moral judgments to people who have fallen asleep unintentionally. Ranging in date from the fifteenth to the nineteenth century, these works warn against sleep obtained through idleness and laziness, illustrating how slumbering without earning it can have detrimental effects. Through July 3 - "Ghost of a Dream: Aligned by the Sun (through the revolution)". In a time of travel bans, immigration debates, climate change, and a global pandemic, the artist team Ghost of a Dream has created their multi-faceted project Aligned by the Sun in an effort to bring hope to our collective experience and unify our fractured planet. To assemble the footage necessary for this endeavor, Ghost of a Dream has collaborated with artists in over 220 nations by asking them to capture a short video of the sunset. All but seven of the 195 countries recognized by the United Nations, as well as many non-UN nations and territories, are represented by these videos. These videos provide the source material for many iterations of the project, including large installations, video collages, and still-image composites. Through July 25 - "Ancestral Altar Ram Heads from the Collection of Rhonda Morgan Wilkerson, PhD". This fifth installment of the Ackland's ongoing series of presentations featuring important works of art from the distinguished collection of Rhonda Morgan Wilkerson, PhD, showcases three ram heads carved for ancestral altars in the cultures of what is now south-central Nigeria. Formally inventive and stylistically diverse, these powerful heads would have been the focus of honoring and commemorating paternal ancestors within a chief's shrine. Museum Store Gallery (Franklin and Columbia Street), Store hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5:30pm & Sun., noon-5pm. period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Falk, Sr. Galleries, Through Apr. 2 - "Make My Presence Known". As humans, we are subject to the perception of others at any moment. And yet, what they see—our physical, outward appearance—is not synonymous with our identity. We are more than our faces, our bodies, and the clothes we wear. We are the sum of our lived experience. The artists whose work is exhibited in "Make My Presence Known" challenge notions of identity as visible by using sculptures that both interrogate and celebrate the unseen self. Artists Magdalena Abakanowicz, Nick Cave, and Alison Saar are each represented in the show by a single, dynamic figurative sculpture. Working from deeply personal perspectives, the artists employ everyday objects and materials recognizable to many. With wood, beads, canvas, bottles, and even ceramic bird figurines, their artworks collectively underscore the complexity and diversity of lived experience. We invite you to make your presence known in the gallery by engaging with these sculptures and finding your points of intersection with the stories they offer and the content they engage. This exhibition is curated by Angelica Henry '22, with support from Dr. Emily Stamey, curator and head of exhibitions. 1st Floor: Weatherspoon Atrium Mural, Ongoing - "Pause and Breathe, We Got This," a mural by Sheena Rose. After evaluating numerous exceptional applications, SECCA selected Duane Cyrus for the guest curator position based on his proposal for Black@Intersection. The exhibition features Black and African Diasporic artists from North Carolina and beyond. The artists simultaneously exemplify and defy—yet continue to redefine the perceived norms around concepts of Blackness as we see it in our world. They resist the nullifying commodification of blackness into a type of monolith and do so by creating works that reify the world on their own terms. Ongoing - Founded in 1956, the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art offers a front-row seat to the art of our time. ALTERNATE ART SPACES - Charlotte

The Gallery at Carillon, 227 West Trade Street, Charlotte. Ongoing - "Four Views of Abstraction," continues the debate over abstract art by offering examples of four artists who use abstraction in the creation of their work. There remains, however, those who are convinced that "my five-year old child could paint that!" While abstract art is often defined as art that does not depict a person, place or thing in the natural world by taking away all likeness of figure and content, others define it as art that removes elements of a subject to make it less complicated and more simplistic. The debate of what actually defines abstract art has continued since it was introduced in the early 1900s. This exhibition presents painting by four artists who have created work with varying degrees of abstraction. While the paintings of Javier Lopez Barbosa, Sheri Skeahan, and Bill Jensen are totally abstract, another artist, Carl Plansky, reduces certain components of subject matter in the creation of his paintings. The exhibition is sponsored by Hines Charlotte Carillon LP (<https://www.hines.com/properties/carillon-charlotte>). Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-8pm; Sat., 8am-7pm & Sun., noon-8pm.
