International African American Museum in Charleston, SC, Opens Its Doors on June 27, 2023

The International African American Museum (IAAM), in Charleston, SC, has set Tuesday, June 27, 2023, as the date that the long-awaited museum will open to the public. The opening will coincide with the observance of Juneteenth. The opening festivities will feature a number of community events in the days leading up to the launch, including an opening ceremony on June 24.

“We’re excited to open IAAM’s doors and showcase the incredible breadth of African American history,” said Dr. Tonya Matthews, president and CEO of the International African American Museum. “IAAM strives not only to provide a space for all visitors to celebrate and connect to this history, to these stories, and to this art, but also to find meaning within their own stories. The African American journey is far longer than the 20 years it took to build this museum and we are humbly proud to step up and play our part in this story. It is time.”

onstrates, Charleston isn’t just a city where history happened – it’s a city where history is still being made every day,” said Charleston Mayor John Tecklenburg. “I couldn’t be prouder of this extraordinary achievement, and of all the people who’ve worked so hard over the past two decades to make it a reality.”

The museum’s opening date coincides with Juneteenth, the annual commemoration of the day in 1865 when 250,000 enslaved people in Galveston, TX, finally learned that they had been freed by the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation – nearly two years earlier. The event has been long celebrated by many African American communities and was formally designated as a national holiday in 2021.

Through programming and a unique, authentic, empathetic storytelling, the IAAM activates its mission to honor the untold stories of the African American journey – celebrating the connections and contributions to American and global cultures – in unique and thought-provoking ways. Earlier this year, IAAM kicked off virtual and in-person programming in honor of Black History Month with a series of opportunities for both the local community and future visitors to engage with a variety of educational content. Next month, as final preparations for the official public opening begin, IAAM will host several in-person programs for the community to attend.

The International African American Museum (IAAM) explores cultures and knowledge systems retained and adapted by Africans in the Americas and the diverse journeys and achievements of these individuals and their descendants in South Carolina, the United States, and throughout the African Diaspora. IAAM is a champion of authentic, empathetic storytelling of American history and is thus one of the nation’s newest platforms for the disruption of institutionalized racism as it evolves today. IAAM honors the untold stories of the African American journey from Charleston, SC, at the historically sacred site of Gadsden’s Wharf and beyond.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the Museum at 843/872-5352 or visit (iaamuseum.org).

The attached “IAAM Interior - Transatlantic Crossings” is a shot from the TransAtlantic Exhibit, a four-minute, large-scale, immersive media experience taking visitors on a journey from African cultural roots, through tragedy of the Middle Passage, and into local and international diaspora scenes and traditions.

Originally scheduled for Jan. 21, the Museum’s opening was delayed while City of Charleston staff and contractors worked to stabilize humidity and temperature levels within the new building. With those issues now resolved, building operations will be transferred to the IAAM over the next several weeks, in preparation for the June opening.

The IAAM, which sits at the site of Gadsden’s Wharf – one of the nation’s most prolific former slave trading ports – includes nine core exhibition galleries and a special exhibition gallery, as well as a “floating” gallery that weaves contemporary art throughout the museum. The museum will open with more than 700 artifacts dating from the 17th century to contemporary objects, alongside 1000 image and media collection pieces – all of which help connect the African American journey to its roots and connections to African and African Diaspora communities and cultures. The museum also houses the Center for Family History, a world-class genealogy and ancestry resource center, which began hosting genealogy classes and workshops in 2020. “As this magnificent new museum dem-

Editorial COMMENTARY

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

On Our Cover

On our cover this month is a work by Junko Ono Rothwell, which was featured in an ad by Wells Gallery in our April 2023 issue. We were excited to see it as the painting included an issue of Carolina Arts, and I mentioned it in my commentary. We would have put it on the cover then, but other covers were planned. Rothwell was scheduled to be featured in an exhibit in June at the Wells Gallery, located at The Sanctuary at Kiawah Island Golf Resort, just outside of Charleston, SC, but since she delivered her works in Feb. and that ad ran in April, the gallery has sold all her works. I'm thinking - was it the power of advertising, my commentary, or the quality of Rothwell's work?

Rothwell is an Atlanta, GA, artist, but it didn't stop her from picking up a copy of Carolina Arts in Charleston when delivering works to the Wells Gallery, back in the day when we offered a printed version of our publication, and taking it back to her studio. We haven't been in print since 2010, so that issue has been hanging around her studio for some time and eventually found its way into this painting. To us, that's amazing.

Charleston is a city which is visited by people from all over America and all over the world, so lots of copies of our publication have traveled - more than I have. And, now that each issue is launched into cyberspace, it is still traveling all over the place.

I usually like to have a cover that is associated with an exhibit, but not always, and occasionally we do something for us - so this cover is for us. I think we've earned it.

Summer On Your Mind?

I think it is on a lot of people's minds - thoughts of vacations, thoughts of the long hot months to come, or just thoughts of the relaxing of norms during the Summer.

Summer came early to Carolina Arts as one day in May I was working on our June issue when I noticed it was a little warm. So I got up from my desk to check the thermostat and it read 79 degrees. That's not right, which led to a trip outside to check the upstairs's heat pump and it wasn't running when it should have been. Something was wrong which led me to turn the unit off and we made the call for repairs. Unfortunately for us it was going to take a couple days for them to come and see what was wrong, so we turned on the fans and opened the windows for an old-fashioned meeting with Mother Nature's Summer.

It wasn't so bad and it was only a couple of days, but it makes you wonder how anyone got anything done before air-conditioning in the South.

So in the Summer, things slow down, people move a little slower and publication deadlines are missed. But, make no mistake, things are still going on. Life in the art world goes on, even if we don't get to tell you about all of it.

July Marks Another Milestone

Next month in July, we'll enter our 36th year of producing an arts publication. That's a lot longer than I thought we would last. I thought by now one of the big publications would have put us out of business by taking up the visual arts - bigger and better than we ever could, but I guess the joke was on us - no one else wanted to cover the visual arts in the Carolinas.

Others have tried, but they didn't last long. We've had to make changes to survive, but we're still bringing you the most info about visual arts taking place in both North and South Carolina.

ana, she moved to the Charleston area to be with her family and continue her love of art. The Lowcountry's inspiring subject matter influence more recent pieces.

Diana creates works with several different mediums, with a primary focus on her first love, acrylic painting. Painting, pastel painting and photography are her three preferred mediums. Her style of painting is impressionistic, involving heavy application of paint, creating rich textures that rise from the canvas. Diana's unique technique is applied with palette knife or brush on the canvas. She captures a wide variety of subject matter with her paintings, often in bold, vibrant colors.

Diana is also a third-generation photographer. Black and white photography is her preferred choice, capturing perspective and contrast. Her painting and photography have consistently been accepted into prestigious juried art fairs and gallery exhibitions in South Carolina, Florida and Indiana, where she has been an award-winning artist in both painting and photography categories.

The gallery is located on East Bay Street in Charleston, SC.

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Kathryn Parker and Jennifer Kirk Hamilton

The City of North Charleston's Cultural Arts Department is pleased to announce that concurrent solo exhibitions of paintings by Kathryn Parker (Mt. Pleasant, SC) and Jennifer Kirk Hamilton (Rock Hill, SC) will be on display at the Park Circle Gallery, in North Charleston, SC, from June 1 - 30, 2023. A reception will be held on June 2, from 5-7pm.

In Light and Life: Scenes of the Lowcountry, featuring works by Kathryn Parker focuses on familiar Lowcountry landscapes as a means of exploring her expressive impasto style of painting. Though many of her paintings are initially inspired by a photograph or memory, she only loosely refers back to the original image and instead uses her subject as a means to explore the textural possibilities of her medium. Using a combination of oil and coldwax, Parker creates highly textured paintings with visible, expressive brushstrokes.

Work by Kathryn Parker

"I work to capture emotions through my color choices and brushwork," says Parker. She often listens to music while she works to influence her movement and brushwork and develops her paintings intuitively.

Parker earned a degree in studio art from the University of Colorado at Denver. Moving to the South Carolina Lowcountry in 2017 has given her countless inspirations and new networking opportunities. She is a member of the Charleston Artist Guild and the Mt. Pleasant Artist Guild. Her work is part of numerous private collections and has been displayed at Mount Pleasant Town Hall, the City Gallery at Waterfront Park as part of the Piccolo Spoleto Juried Art Exhibition, the Town of Mt. Pleasant Blessing of the Fleet Festival, The Sweetgrass Festival, and Untapped Art Fest. Her work is currently for sale at the Charleston Artist Guild Gallery in downtown Charleston.

If Color Could Talk, Would it Move? Would it Walk?, featuring paintings by Jennifer Kirk Hamilton is also on view. Hamilton's walking dog series If Color Could Talk, Would it Move? Would it Walk? developed organically during the painter's daily walks with her dogs. She was taking photos while walking her dogs when she noticed how interesting the dogs looked in motion and she decided to paint them. After doing several paintings of the dogs, she decided to create a series from the perspective of the walker.

"This developed into years of study," explains Hamilton. "That study became more and more about not just the dogs, but about the actual psychological part of the walk." For many, walking is a tool for contemplation and daydreaming. Hamilton pursues this dreamlike, meandering quality in her paintings about walking her dogs. She is interested in how paint can be used to describe movement on a still image, not just the movement of the dogs, but the forward, shifting perspective of the daydreaming walker. Hamilton credits this creative problem with leading her to new ways of painting.

"As the years and paintings continued, my work evolved into more abstract, expressionistic, and introspective versions. I use colors, brush strokes, and paint drips to mimic emotions, actions, and movement... I found myself manipulating each stroke as deliberate as a step."

Hamilton lives and works in Rock Hill, SC. She has been a professional artist since 1976 and maintains her art studio at the Center for the Arts on Main Street. She began her art career working primarily with watercolor and explored a variety of subjects, including landscapes, florals, and figures in the landscape. She found her signature style in 2001 when she began painting her two dogs walking in the park.

Hamilton's work is collected throughout the east coast and Canada and she has won numerous awards in the state including Best in Show 2008 SCWS Annual Exhibition. In 2016, after years of self-study and tutelage from nationally known instructors, she returned to Winthrop University to pursue her BFA degree with a concentration in Sculpture.

The Charleston Museum in Charleston, SC, Continues Celebration of 250th Anniversary

The Charleston Museum, located on Meeting Street in downtown Charleston, SC, is pleased to announce its 250th anniversary exhibit, America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating, on view in two parts through Jan. 7, 2024. Part 2 of the exhibition will go on view starting on June 17 and continuing through Jan. 7, 2024.

The Museum's collection celebrates the natural and cultural history of the South Carolina Lowcountry. Today, the Museum's collections, which include over 2.4 million objects, are unmatched in their interpretive value to South Carolina history and the nation.

Part one of America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating began on Dec. 17, 2022, and displays objects that span its impressive history. As a key seaport in the American South, the Museum's collections came in from every corner of the globe before they took on a more Lowcountry South Carolina focus in the 20th century.

Accordingly, the exhibit reflects diverse collections. Highlights include objects from ancient Rome, Sumerian cuneiforms, a chief's helmet from the Sandwich Islands acquired in 1798, Japanese Samurai armor, the earliest known Charleston sampler, the suit worn at the Court of St. James by Thomas Pinckney when minister to Great Britain, and exquisite fans made by African American craftsman Tobias Scott.

Commemorating two and a half centuries since its founding and spanning nearly 4.6 billion years of history, we are pleased to present America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating - Part 2. This year-long exhibit will feature a wide array of objects that tell the story of this impressive institution and its remarkable collections. Part one will highlight objects from ancient Rome, a Chief's helmet from the Sandwich Islands acquired in 1798, Colonial dress, and Japanese Samurai armor. Opening on June 17, part two will showcase a church pew made by enslaved hands measuring 20 feet in length, centuries old Archaic carved bone pins, a skull from the largest known flying bird and a couture Fortuny gown.

"It is an incredible privilege for all of us at the Charleston Museum to curate and offer an exhibit as special as this," said Carl Borick, Director, The Charleston Museum, and primary author of The Charleston Museum: America's First Museum. "Bringing in objects from our five major collections and a tremendous group effort by our curatorial and exhibits team, this engaging exhibit not only highlights the history of the Museum but also documents the history of our area, both the positive and the difficult, through these wonderful collection pieces."

The Charleston Museum, founded in 1773 and considered America's first museum, is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization located at 360 Meeting Street in downtown Charleston. The Museum is home to the most extensive collection of South Carolina-related natural and cultural history materials known, two National Historic Landmark Houses and the Dill Sanctuary, a 580-acre wildlife preserve. The Museum's mission is to educate Charleston area residents and visitors about the natural and cultural history of the South Carolina Lowcountry through collections, exhibitions, preservation, conservation, research, and related programming. Museum exhibits provide a comprehensive overview of the South Carolina Lowcountry, while its historic houses offer insight into the families that owned the properties, the people they enslaved, and historic Charleston architecture. The Dill Sanctuary is only available for special scheduled programs.

Charleston Crafts Cooperative in Charleston, SC, Offers New Exhibit

Charleston Crafts Cooperative in Charleston, SC, will present Inspired Globally; Created Locally, featuring works by LuAnne Rosenzweig, Raquel Quiroz, Regina Semko, and Fairoozan Abdullah, on view from June 1 - 30, 2023. Our highlighted artist will be on display during Charleston's Second Sunday event, on June 11.

Charleston Crafts Gallery is spotlighting four of our artists producing fine craft inspired by the global environment. While these talented artists will be featured, the work of all Gallery members will be on display and available for purchase, including jewelry, wood puzzles, encaustic paints, fiber art, mixed media collage, apparel and accessories, plus functional and decorative objects in wood, ceramic, and glass.

LuAnne Rosenzweig learned sewing and garment construct from her mother. Her wearable art began with cotton origami jackets consisting of 6 separate squares of fabric sewn together, and through folding and minimal cutting, the squares evolved into a swing jacket with raglan sleeves. Rosenzweig repurposes vintage clothing into sling purses, long, multi-paneled knit vests, bow ties and hand-dyed silk scarves.

Regina Semko creates decorative, sculptural pieces handcrafted using traditional Origami and Kirigami cutting techniques. By using various papers, including Japanese Chiyogami and rice papers, high quality gift wrap, and recycled paper, she produces beautiful sculptural showpieces, and playful jewelry.

Fairoozan Abdullah is a paper artist and illustrator from Baghdad, Iraq. Her craft technique is known as Quilling. Using the paper quilling technique, she draws with paper instead of on paper. By using thin colorful strips of paper, she creates intricate, decorative wall art and three-dimensional stand-alone creations such as vessels and sculptural pieces. Abdullah's art forms are intriguing and modern.

Charleston's destination for Fine Craft since 1989, the gallery is located on Society Street, just steps from King Street, in the city's shopping, cultural and dining hub.

The Charleston Crafts Gallery will be moving to 140 East Bay Street this summer. We'll keep all informed so calendars can be marked to come by and see our beautiful larger space full of new work by our

Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Savannah Kemper

The Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, will present Colors of the World, featuring photographs by Savannah Kemper, on view from June 5 through July 2, 2023. A reception will be held on June 7, from 5-7pm.

Kemper's upcoming photography exhibit captures the unique colors and textures from her travels. Kemper is a self-described opportunistic photographer who does not seek out her subjects, but instead scenes that stand out to her. She credits her photography style to her family's travels early in her life and their encouragement to see beauty in the world. Many of the photos from her exhibit reflect her unique take on nature scenes as well as interesting architecture in bustling cities.

Work by Savannah Kemper

"Since my father grew up on a ranch in Texas, he was very in tune with nature and I think he definitely instilled that love and appreciation for the outdoors in me," Kemper said. "I grew up being taught how significant the world outside our homes was and that's why I find my work more often reflecting my travels rather than where I live because whenever I travel somewhere I'm always trying to take in all the details."

Kemper exclusively prints on aluminum and acrylic which maintain clarity and sharpness to show the fine details of her work. While she likes the modern feel that aluminum and acrylic affords, she doesn't use photo editing software to overly edit her work as we often see today. She only edits to reflect what her eye saw through the camera lens.

Kemper is in her final year at Clemson University, majoring in international business and Italian. She heads to Florence for a study abroad in the spring which

La Petite Gallerie in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Lauren Terrett

La Petite Gallerie in Bluffton, SC, will be featuring works by Lauren Terrett, from June 1 - 30, 2023.

Lauren Terrett is a painter with a wonderful impressionistic style, glorious palette of color, and free flowing brush strokes. She will often let the painting find its own composition, with the texture of the paint itself contributing to the overall harmony and rhythm of the piece.

Work by Lauren Terrett

Early on, Terrett discovered two passions in her life. While her left brain loved science, her right brain wanted to create. She received her degree in Fine Arts, but then moved on to a rewarding career as a Registered Nurse. Now retired, she pursues her love of painting full time.

These days, the lowcountry is at her door step, begging to be put on canvas. You may find her painting in the sunshine reflecting off the marsh or in her home studio. The people, landscape, architecture

Davies has a 'beginners mind' and loves exploring different mediums, subjects, and techniques as she continues her artistic journey. Currently she is working on collage and abstracts, pastels, and local landscapes in oil and acrylic.

Bob Taft has been creating pottery for over eighteen years, and can always be surprised by the outcome. Sometimes firing a piece doesn't go as planned because the kiln will always have its say. A piece you think is great going in, can die in the stress of the fire. A good piece can rise to greatness. It's a gamble, and that keeps the process interesting to him

Taft enjoys the fact that the creative process of creating pottery yields an actual product and he typically creates wood-fired stoneware forms, as well as raku and porcelain pieces. His work leans toward the traditional southern pottery style and he is particularly skilled at throwing large vessels and lidded jars.

Taft believes that fire was the first magic technology humans learned to control. It made the nights warmer and safer. It changed the nature of food, making it safer and tastier. It transformed clay from mud into vessels and gods, helped to make tents to protect us and jars to keep wine and grain safe. While potters can still fire pieces in bonfire pits, the majority of today's work is fired by the electric kiln.

Occasionally Taft has opportunities to fire in the raging fires of an anagama or groundhog wood fired kilns. Whatever method, as a potter he conspires with luck, heat, time, and the chemicals of glazes to create a piece. And if everything aligns, he has created something greater than what went in.

Taft is a founding member of the Greenwood Area Studio Potters, a local potters guild with over 25 members. He studied wheel throwing with Gary Clontz at Piedmont Technical College's Creative Economics Program in Edgefield, SC. While the program is no longer available, in the years that it was active, it produced over 30 potters who still live and work in South Carolina, Georgia, and North Carolina.

Greenville Center for Creative Arts in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Virginia Russo and Joseph Smolin

The Greenville Center for Creative Arts (GCCA) in Greenville, SC, will present Invisible Planet, featuring works by Virginia Russo and Joseph Smolin, on view in the Main Gallery, from June 2 through July 26, 2023. A reception will be held on June 2, from 6-9pm and an Artist Talk will be offered on July 11, beginning at 6pm.

Invisible Planet is an imaginary world that represents untouched beauty and the raw wonder of creation. Russo created "The Planet" which aims to be a refuge for neurodivergent people who suffer from sensory issues and overstimulation. This world in her work is a mysterious and ethereal land filled with mountains, cliffs, mushrooms, and an ever-present orange sun.

Smolin's experience growing up half-Jewish in the Deep South - Birmingham, AL - is reflected in his symbology and exploration of identity issues. His flamboyant and androgynous characters, as visitors on "The Planet", challenge gender norms and societal expectations. Smolin's work delivers condensed psycho-symbolic imagery that deals with themes of identity, religion, oppression, and conformity.

Work by Virginia Russo

Kara Virginia Russo is a visual, performance, and multimedia artist based in Greenville, SC. Upon her adulthood diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder, she embraced her inner imaginative world and the elements and symbolism that compose it. Endlessly combining circles, torn paper, and warm colors to create fantastical planet-scapes, she works similarly to a

University of South Carolina Upstate in Spartanburg, SC, Features Works by Leah Mulligan Cabinum

The University of South Carolina Upstate in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting reflect, featuring works by Leah Mulligan Cabinum, on view at the Upstate Art Gallery, through Aug. 5, 2023.

Cabinum's unique work lures the viewer into a labyrinth of playful complexity. The relationship of materials, symbolism and concepts are intertwined as a process and as metaphor for growth and discovery. Cabinum said, "My work is a means for me to explore my identity. While it is inevitable that memories and perspectives shift and morph with time, I believe that self-reflection is a vital part of life. My hope is to offer an opportunity for the viewer a personalized experience."

This collection includes a combination of drawings and sculptural installations in which the tree is an iconic symbol, both literal and figurative. Drawings from the burn series mimic the recordings of heart monitors, illustrating the ups and downs of individual lives, and were inspired by tree rings. The reflect series depicts specific trees through highly textured mixed media imagery, and acts as markers of personal history.

Adapted from the original larger installation, sow II, is made from discarded paper products and wood, exhibiting the cycle from tree to paper and mirroring the relationship between humanity and nature. The largest installation, clear II, offers an immersive experience. Comprised of light-infused acrylic tubing and mylar, the viewer is invited to experience an ever-changing, morphed perspective from within a reflective environment. The repetition and physicality of this piece merges the form with the concept.

Lewandowski Classroom Gallery, through July 8, 2023. A reception will be held on June 15, from 5:30-7:30pm.

An artist dreams and then pulls from the ethers stories, history, and symbols — then, as if by magic, creates what was envisioned. Primarily working with cultural references from Africa and the Diaspora, Joyce Morrow Jones creates 3D art forms that express many issues relating to the struggle and history of being African American.

Jones is not limiting her time here in York County to just the exhibition at the Center for the Arts. She is also participating in an artist residency to take place while she is in town for the installation of and reception for AnceSTORY. Programming during the residencies focuses on the creation of visual arts inspired by storytelling, and on Reclaiming Visual and Spiritual Power of the African Diaspora.

The first session of her residency, May 18 – 20, included Coffee with the Artist at FARMacy Community Farmstop, Family Storytime and an artist-led book discussion at the York County Library's main campus in Rock Hill, and a special discussion and multimedia presentation led by Winthrop University's Associate Professor of Art History Alice Burmeister in Emmett Scott Center's Community Room.

The second, June 15 – 17, includes a reception in honor of the exhibition at the Center for the Arts, Corn Husk Doll Workshops at FARMacy Community Farmstop, and Floral Crown Classes at The Mercantile. More information and registration details can be found at (<https://yorkcountyarts.org/2023ancestory#ancestoryevents>).

Special thanks to our programming partners: Clinton ConNEXTION Community Action Plan, FARMacy Community Farmstop, York County Library, Alice Burmeister, The Mercantile, and Victory Gardens International.

Jones graduated from the College of Wooster, with a double major in Sociology and Religion, with a concentration in Black and African Studies. After graduation, she began working with non-profit organizations and continued for 28 years in positions of program development, grant writing, communications, and fundraising. She has held artist residencies at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Cleveland, Ohio and Karamu House: A Room in the House. She is also a teaching artist, working at the Cleveland Museum of Art and Art House - Urban Bright Arts in Education Program & Orange Recreation Center.

On view in the Perimeter Gallery is Dialing Out, featuring works by Dylan Bannister. This exhibition consists of selected works from Dylan Bannister's ongoing Pay phones on Film series, in which he is photographically documenting the remains of public telephones, strictly using 35mm film. Most are in disrepair, some have been reclaimed by nature, though a select few still yield a dial tone. The resulting images are presented here as photo transfers on shaped panels.

Dylan Bannister is a visual artist whose multi-disciplinary works are based in memory, nostalgia, and antiquated tech. He maintains his studio practice in Rock Hill, SC, where he engages with the town's growing arts community. Bannister earned his BFA from Winthrop University in 2016, where he then taught as an Adjunct Instructor of Fine Arts for two academic years. Having exhibited throughout the southeast, he has also organized and curated exhibitions, designed web-based galleries, and assisted other artists.

In 2022, Bannister joined the ArtPop Street Gallery staff as Project Manager of its Inspiration Projects division, where he contributes to the nonprofit's mission to make art more accessible to the communities it serves, while bringing paid opportunities to local artists.

On view in the Edmund D. Lewandowski Classroom Gallery is Compass Prep Photo Exhibit. Compass Prep is a multifaceted environment where we partner with home-school parents to give students grade 9 through 12 a place to grow socially and intellectually. The structure of Compass Prep fosters growth and academic success, and also offers opportunities to encourage the whole person. Classes are provided by independent instructors and are at instruction levels needed for college preparation. Social activities for peer-group interactions are planned monthly alongside meaningful, community service projects throughout the year. This well rounded approach satisfies the home-schooled, high school students' need for independence and fellowship.

The Center for the Arts is located on East Main Street, in the Cultural District of Downtown Rock Hill, a state-recognized cultural district.

for life's journey. As his paintings on wood panels are almost always bas-relief, it was a natural progression for him to begin making sculpture. Taking the boat and figural images into three dimensions he creates a new experience for the viewer and expands his own technical prowess, employing both wood and bronze. In this exhibition, Diaz also explores his chosen imagery with painstakingly-created handmade, moulded works on paper.

addresses political and social concerns as well as his expressionist landscapes of the Carolina coast and mountains. Kirk is also one of the founding fathers of NoDa; Charlotte's Historic North Davidson Street Art District.

Kirk's first professional job as an artist was as a newspaper editorial cartoonist in Virginia. From there he moved on to work as a graphic designer and illustrator then art director for various advertising agencies, all the while exhibiting and selling his paintings in galleries and festivals. He was also the owner of his own gallery, the short-lived but award winning, 'Sanctuary Art'.

Kirk works from his home studio in Charlotte, producing paintings of various themes in a unified and unique style of bold colors and hard lines that shows the influence of both German Expressionism and Picasso. Over a decade ago, Kirk turned his attention towards landscapes in an attempt to bring a different perspective to a somewhat tired genre and the result has been some of his most dynamic and successful paintings. Using both mountains and coastline as inspiration, Kirk creates meticulously detailed renderings that are alive with vibrant light and deep shadows.

For his own purposes, Kirk relies heavily on the internet to attract most of his business, which includes commissions and the direct sale of art.

The Gallery at Carillon in Uptown Charlotte, NC, Offers A New Exhibit

The Gallery at Carillon in Uptown Charlotte, NC, is presenting Curator's Choice, featuring works by four esteemed American artists: Carol Augthun, Patrick Glover, Carl Plansky, and Daniel Tu, on view through Aug. 31, 2023.

The paintings in this exhibition have been selected to honor the exceptional skill sets of each artist, as well as their contribution to teaching and leading by example.

In 1977, Carol Augthun (1942-2022) moved from New Jersey to Spartanburg, SC, to teach art full time. She had a profound effect on her students. Throughout her 40-year career, Dr. Augthun remained focused on inspiring young minds to be creative and helping them to reach their full potential. In 1994, she was awarded a Smithsonian Fellowship to study the Harlem Renaissance in Washington, DC. In 1996, she earned a prestigious Fulbright Memorial Fellowship to study in Japan.

Patrick Glover (1965-2017) was a 1987 graduate of the Cooper Union art school in New York City. Speaking of his work Glover said "I choose to work with imagery that is mostly taken for granted: imagery that has a predictable appearance, standardized use, meaning and/or social context." He worked in New York City and Charlotte as a freelance illustrator, designer, muralist and decorative painter while continuing to pursue his fine art interests.

Carl Plansky (1951-2009) was born in Miami, FL, and grew up in Baltimore, MD. He studied at the Maryland Institute College of Art and the New York Studio School. He studied with and was mentored by artist Joan Mitchell. Plansky was a respected and influential teacher who guided students at several American colleges and universities.

In addition, he was founder of Williamsburg Handmade Oil Colors for Artists.

Daniel Tu was brought up to be focused on Art. After migrating from China to America, he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in computer engineering and then an MFA from the San Francisco Academy of Art University. "While I pursue realistic and figurative painting, disclosure of the subject is not my intent. Even with the ordinary and mundane, I want to captivate, compel, excite. The worst is to bore the audience."

For over eighteen years Larry Elder has worked with individuals, corporations, and public organizations to select original art for homes, offices, museums and other public and private institutions. Elder was founder and CEO of Elder Gallery until he sold the business in 2017.

University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, Offers Exhibit Focused on Women's Needlework

The University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, is presenting Needlework: Women's Unspoken Art, an exhibition which celebrates women's artistry and imagination through needlework, on view at the McKissick Museum, through Aug. 31, 2023.

More than a required skill for girls and women in the 19th century, hand sewing was an act of creative expression. From functional household textiles, to clothing, to home décor accents, small embellishments made a big statement as an indicator of women's artistry and imagination.

The exhibition was guest curated by art history major and USC staff member Rachel McKeown. This exhibit celebrates the individuality and craftsmanship of historic textiles from McKissick Museum's permanent collection. The exhibit examines the embellishments as fine art, contending that the aesthetic qualities and skillful mastery of techniques are of greater historical significance than the textile's function. Viewers are thus encouraged to closely examine the quality of the needlework, rather than the type of textile, on display.

Through the exhibit, McKeown aims to educate the public about the art of needlework and examine how women's work in textiles might be understood as a high art form. "Being an art history major, I have studied what society considers 'high art.' Historically women have been unseen in the art world. I want to spotlight the creativity that our great-grandmothers embodied through embellishing clothes, blankets, doilies, handkerchiefs, and curtains."

The University of South Carolina's McKissick Museum tells the story of Southern life: community, culture, and the environment. The Museum is located on the University of South Carolina's historic Horseshoe with available parking in the Pendleton Garage at the corner of Pendleton and Bull Streets. All exhibitions are free and open to the public unless otherwise stated.

Merett offers the following statement, "I am inspired by stylish women in my life and around the world; ordinary faces and things found in old photo albums, magazines, and around town. I am nostalgic for family gatherings, women's fashion in the early 1900's and by personalities I meet day to day. I take parts and pieces from current-day sources to create present moments, social commentary, and new personalities."

"My work is uplifting and appealing where every face has a unique personality," adds Merett. "It shows the deconstruction of beauty, an escape from reality. It's built on mundane fragments of daily life communicated in a way that feels debut national interview on The Sunday Show with Jonathan Caphart on MSNBC to discuss Just a Worm. Last month she read the book to children from across the country at the White House Easter Egg Roll.

In Just a Worm, after being called "just a worm" by two children, Worm embarks on a journey through the garden to prove them wrong. Along the way, Worm encounters several insects and other creatures, each of which has important qualities. But what can Worm do? Just a Worm offers a heartwarming message of discovery and self-worth.

Boyd wrote Just a Worm for everyone who has ever compared themselves to others and felt that they have fallen short.

Work by Marie Boyd

Kirkus Reviews had high praise for Just a Worm, "The cleverness of this story lies in its lighthearted, effective dissemination of information about various insects as well as earthworms. It doesn't hurt that the expressive little worm is downright adorable, with emotions that will resonate with anyone who has felt unimportant."

Work by Marie Boyd

The exhibit at Richland Library Main is funded in part by the South Carolina Arts Commission which receives support from the National Endowment for the Arts. The exhibit is also funded in part by a generous award from the John and Susan Bennett Memorial Arts Fund of The Coastal Community Foundation of South Carolina. Boyd also thanks Richland Library and Greenwillow Books, an imprint of HarperCollins Publishers, for their support.

In addition to writing and quilling, Boyd is a law professor at the University of South Carolina. She lives in Columbia, SC, with her husband Jaime Harrison and their two kids. She was one of four artists selected to participate in the Columbia Metropolitan Airport's 2022-2023 Art in the Airport Program.

Whether farm-raised or factory-made, traveling from kitchen to mouth, what one eats is often a means of understanding time, place, and people. The Art of Food: From the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation brings together works from some of the most preeminent postwar and contemporary artists who used food as their subject matter.

This exhibition explores the many identities of food in daily life: whether a source of pleasure, a reason for gathering, a mass-produced commodity, or a reflection of social ideologies and divisions. The Art of Food features works from important postwar artists including Andy Warhol, Robert Rauschenberg, Roy Lichtenstein, David Hockney, John Baldessari, Ed Ruscha, and Jasper Johns, alongside the work of contemporary artists, like Alison Saar, Lorna Simpson, Enrique Chagoya, Rachel Whiteread, and Jenny Holzer, among others.

The Art of Food features more than 100 artworks in mediums including drawings, paintings, photographs, prints, sculptures, and ceramics by 37 artists.

Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center in Asheville, NC, Offers Exhibit Focused on the College's Links to Mexico

Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center (BMCM+AC) in Asheville, NC, will present Black Mountain College and Mexico, on view from June 2 through Sept. 9, 2023. A reception will be held on June 2, from 5:30-8pm.

Black Mountain College (1933–1957), a small but remarkably influential liberal arts school in rural North Carolina, had important links to Mexico that until now have been little investigated. A crucible of twentieth-century creativity, BMC galvanized and inspired artists and intellectuals from around the world, while Mexico's innovations and age-old traditions - in fine and applied arts, architecture, poetry, music, performance, and more - dovetailed with, and indeed drove, global impulses toward modernism and beyond.

Among the many key BMC figures whose lives were importantly touched by experiences in Mexico were Anni and Josef Albers, Ruth Asawa, John Cage, Jean Charlot, Elaine de Kooning, Buckminster Fuller, Carlos Mérida, Robert Motherwell, Charles Olson, Clara Porset, M.C. Richards, and Aaron Siskind.

In turn, engagements with BMC and its legacy have played a significant role in shaping contemporary approaches to art in Mexico, evident in the works of Jorge Méndez Blake, Iñaki Bonillas, Abraham Cruzvillegas, Jose Dávila, Gerda Gruber, Lake Verea, Gabriel Orozco, and Damián Ortega, among others.

The exhibition BMC/MX features works by these and other prominent contemporary Mexican artists alongside a selection of historic works by BMC artists, highlighting the ways in which ideas and modalities are translated across materials, space, and time.

Related programming, planned in collaboration with Mexican artists, features a series of public events, including a performance by artist (and BMC/MX co-curator) David Miranda to take place at Different World; an exhibition visit (in Spanish and English) with BMC/MX Project Director Eric Baden; and a series of experiential art events in the BMCM+AC library.

The exhibition is accompanied by the book Black Mountain College and Mexico (forthcoming late summer 2023), which investigates the people, ideas, and practices linking BMC and Mexico during the life of the school, as well as resonances between BMC and the work of contemporary Mexican artists. With contributions by BMC/MX's curators, as well as by artist Abraham Cruzvillegas, design scholar Ana Elena Mallet, and author and activist Margaret Randall, this fully illustrated volume brings new light to this complex and underexplored subject.

BMC/MX is an investigation into modes of communication - the arenas in which new ideas and alliances may come to be - between Black Mountain College and Mexico, between past and present, between form and idea.

BMC/MX's Project Director Eric Baden is a photographer and from 1994 to 2022 was professor of photography at Warren Wilson College in Swannanoa, NC. He is the founding director of photo+, a multidisciplinary arts event held in Asheville, NC.

Artist and educator David Miranda is curator at the Museo Experimental El Eco (Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México, UNAM), and teaches at the Escuela Nacional de Pintura, Escultura y Grabado "La Esmeralda" in Mexico City.

Diana Stoll is an editor, writer and curator who works with institutions such as The Museum of Modern Art and the J. Paul Getty Museum. She has served as an editor at Aperture and Artforum magazines, and contributes writings to prominent arts publications.

Founded in 1933, Black Mountain College was one of the leading experimental liberal art schools in America until its closure in 1957. After the Bauhaus in Germany closed due to mounting antagonism from the Nazi Party, Josef and Anni Albers readily accepted an offer to join the Black Mountain College faculty. During their 16-year tenure in North Carolina, the Alberses helped model the college's interdisciplinary curriculum on that of the Bauhaus, attracting an unmatched roster of teachers and students including R. Buckminster Fuller, Elaine and Willem de Kooning, John Cage, Merce Cunningham, Mary Caroline (M.C.) Richards, and Robert Rauschenberg.

The Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center (BMCM+AC) was founded in 1993 to celebrate the history of Black Mountain College as a forerunner in progressive interdisciplinary education and to celebrate its extraordinary impact on modern and contemporary art, dance, theater, music, and performance.

The Museum is committed to educating the public about the history of Black Mountain College and promoting awareness of its extensive legacy through exhibitions, publications, lectures, films, seminars, and oral histories. Through our permanent collection, special exhibitions, publications, and research archive, we provide access to historical materials related to the College and its influence on the field.

BMCM+AC provides a forum for multi-faceted programming in a dynamic environment in downtown Asheville. Our goal is to provide a gathering point for people from a variety of backgrounds to interact - integrating art, ideas, and discourse.

Groveswood Gallery in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Josh Coté

Groveswood Gallery in Asheville, NC, will present Inquiry: Wire Sculptures by Josh Coté, on view from June 24 through Aug. 13, 2023. A reception will be held on June 24, from 2-5pm.

Groveswood Gallery invites you to step into the dreamlike animal kingdom of Bakersville, NC, artist Josh Coté. His solo exhibition will feature several large-scale, outdoor wire animal sculptures.

"The selected works for this exhibition will showcase the culmination of everything I have learned as a wire sculptor," says Coté. "So the title of the show, Inquiry, seemed a perfect fit as it describes my curiosity and love of wire."

In addition to the steel and iron sculptures he's known for, Coté will also be presenting a new style of sculptures handcrafted from recycled aluminum electric wire. Some notable mentions include an 8-foot-long rhino (filled with blue glass bottles), a 6-foot-tall penguin, a large wolf, and a goat filled with recycled cans, among others.

Josh Coté has always been immersed in art. His grandparents were both oil painters, and his father was a watercolorist. He grew up "on the road" in the '60s, '70s, and '80s, traveling to art fairs up and down the east coast with his family. As a kid, he was inspired by authors like Lewis Carroll, H.G. Wells, and Dr. Seuss, whom he credits for drawing him into "a magical dream world."

After studying painting and drawing at the University of Michigan's School of Art & Design, Coté became a self-taught scul-

tor. He's best known for his fanciful wire sculptures of wild and mythical creatures, created using only needle-nosed pliers and a hammer. The wire is cold-worked, painstakingly hand-manipulated, and wrapped and woven to create the desired structure. His finished works are much like pen and ink drawings in sculptural form, and many of his pieces include antique found objects that evoke a sense of child-like nostalgia.

Mark Bettis Gallery in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Nabil El Jaouhari

The Mark Bettis Gallery, located in the Wedge Studios in Asheville, NC, is presenting The Impermanence of Things, featuring works by Nabil El Jaouhari, on view through June 24, 2023. A reception will be held on June 10, from 5:30-7:30pm.

Nabil El Jaouhari's second solo show at the Mark Bettis Gallery showcases work inspired by the Japanese concept of "Mono No Aware," translated as "an empathy towards things," or "the pathos of things." The show highlights the concept through its biomorphic and organic forms that remind one of nature. Using unconventional raw materials like tar and asphalt combined with his signature wood burning and a limited palette, the paintings have a light and an ethereal quality that stands as a reminder of the ephemeral quality of life and nature.

Originally from Lebanon, El Jaouhari studied fine arts at the Lebanese University in Beirut before moving to the United States in 2009 to complete his MFA in painting and printmaking at the University of Missouri.

in child portraiture. In between my commission work, I ‘paint outside the lines’ using the same knowledge of painting skills: use of composition, edges, color, value, temperature of light and color. The same skills can be used to move viewer eyes around an abstract or a landscape or a portrait.”

“With forty plus years of painting children’s portraits with a heavy hand in landscape portraits, I’ve eventually worked my way to letting go of figures within the landscape for a pure landscape,” adds Hargrove. “Over time of painting landscapes, details go away until I pretty much was painting abstracted landscapes. Currently, I’ve been experimenting with pure abstract without any landscape or figurative reference within the painting.”

“An artist’s career never stays static if one is continually learning and experimenting with mediums, form, and techniques. We experiment. We grow. We change. We keep repeating the process as we mature in our work and in our lives,” says Hargrove.

in the art they create.” Surrounded by 12 gorgeous acres, much of woodblock printer Kent Ambler’s work depicts the wildlife and woodlands around his home. Each woodcut brings to life a memory or a moment drawn from the richness of his environment.

Potter Shawn Ireland creates rustic yet refined functional wares from a variety of natural materials. Wild clay and mineral additions add a deep sense of place to his clay and glazes, while wood firing allows for unpredictability in the glaze and results in an aged look. He is well-known for his animalware: vases, candlesticks, and bowls often in the shape of animals or with animal features that were inspired both by his beloved pottery mentor Douglass Rankin and historical pottery of the Etruscan culture.

Perennial favorite Liz Sullivan uses bright colors and delightful imagery to give us snapshots of the natural world. Her work often feels very intimate, like you’re viewing a private moment meant only for a bee and its flower, or the conversing birds on a branch. Doug Frati’s visually arresting wood carvings exude reverence for the wildlife surrounding his Maine home; each precise cut he makes, an homage, each artwork the creation of a quiet observer, respecting the natural order of things.

A curated collection of painting, pottery, wood carvings, & woodblock prints, many of American Folk’s beloved artists will be taking part in this exciting show, including Kent Ambler, Liz Sullivan, Jack Klippel, Tres Taylor, Shawn Ireland, Doug Frati and Cornbread. Pink Dog Creative in Asheville, NC, Features Works by Mark Flowers Pink Dog Creative in Asheville, NC, will present Under Tones, featuring works by Mark Flowers, from June 17 through July 16, 2023. A reception will be held on June 17, from 5-7pm.

In his first one-person exhibition since before the pandemic, 68 year-old veteran artist, Mark Flowers continues to evolve in his style.

In March of 2021, while visiting Baltimore, MD, Flowers rode a commuter train from downtown out to the suburbs and back. He held his cell phone to the window and recorded still images as the train moved. The series of forms in motion and spontaneous imagery are the foundation of this new work. It was supported by the North Carolina Arts Council materials grant. The main part of the exhibition includes the "Baltimore Series" paintings.

Work by Mark Flowers

"Any artist wants to evolve, and I feel this is another moment of growth for me. As it's always been, the challenge now is to make a visual composition that will engage myself and hopefully an outside audience. My many years of making art have made me more focused and confident. I have gotten to a place where I can improvise and care less about the rules I artificially set years before. This new approach is more challenging for me, which in turn has invigorated the studio atmosphere," said Flowers.

Work by Mark Flowers

Mark E. Flowers earned his BFA in Studio Arts from The University of South Carolina in 1977 and his MFA in Painting from Western Michigan University in 1979. He has exhibited his work throughout the United States and in Europe. His work can be found in 28 public and over 350 private collections. Throughout his career he has won numerous awards for his art in both regional and national competitions. In 1980, just out of graduate school, he was awarded the South Carolina Artist Fellowship Award. In 2003, he was named one of 100 Art Notable Alumni for the Centennial Celebration at Western Michigan University. Most recently, he was awarded a residency at the Golden Foundation in New Berlin, NY. He has taught art at the secondary and college levels for 42 years. He retired from teaching in 2019.

In 2004, he and Kristy Higby, his life-long artist partner, purchased a hand-made log cabin just north of Asheville, NC in the community of Alexander. They spent ten years renovating the cabin and in 2009, built a large studio on the property. In the summer of 2014, they relocated permanently to the property they affectionately call "Mountain Tea".

Randy Shull and Hedy Fischer are creating a colorful sensation on Depot Street in Asheville's River Arts District. The former textile manufacturing and warehouse building at 342-348 Depot Street has been transformed into an exciting mix of artist studios and retail spaces.

Pink Dog Creative shares the neighborhood with New Belgium & the Wedge Breweries, 12 Bones Smokehouse and hundreds of local artists. Pink Dog has 33 artists working in their studios, GRIND Coffee Bar, Fresh West Wood Fired Pizza, Vivian Restaurant and A.C.E. Bicycles. Pink Dog raises funds and awareness for people and organizations working to make our communities more equitable and just, including Southside Rising, Youth Artists Empowered and the Edington Center, among others.

Toe River Arts Studio Tour, in WNC Takes Place - June 2-4, 2023

"There's something breathtaking and awe-inspiring about driving through the mountains of western North Carolina, nature herself showing that she is the original artist.

It doesn't matter if you live up the hill or across the state, the Toe River Arts Studio Tour, on June 2-4, 2023, 10am to 5pm, provides an adventure for the intrepid seeker of the art experience.

The art is as diverse as the artists with the tour featuring the work of glassblowers, jewelers, printmakers, potters, fiber artists, ironworkers, painters, sculptors, and woodworkers.

Artist studios are exciting places to visit because they offer a glimpse into the dynamic processes used to create a finished piece. Every artist has their own way of telling a story, inviting visitors to ask questions, hold their work, and share a moment. You can count on the studios being as unique as the artists: the building off to the side of the house, or across the field or down the road or right off the main road or down a gravel one-lane. Two-stories with a gallery space or small and cozy with a table set up or cleared off for display. Still there are others that devote a corner to each artist sharing the space.

Just 40 minutes north of Asheville and two hours from Charlotte & Greenville, the Studio Tour makes for an exciting day trip. However, with 88 studios and 10 galleries to visit, the Toe River Arts Studio Tour becomes a great weekend mini vacation. Both Chambers of Commerce in Burnsville-Yancey and Mitchell County provide information on lodging, eateries, and other local events. Additionally, Toe River Arts is incredibly grateful to Explore Burnsville for being the event sponsor.

For more than a quarter century, the Toe River Arts Studio Tour has intrigued those who make the journey to visit places of inspiration and creation. Situated between Roan Mountain which boasts the world's largest rhododendron garden and Mt. Mitchell, the highest peak east of the Mis-issippi, the Toe River Arts Studio Tour is a free, self-guided journey of the arts. This arts adventure through Mitchell and Yancey Counties will take visitors along the meandering Toe River, across its many bridges, around barns, acres of fields and miles of forests all while visiting the talented studio artists who often take inspiration from the mountains they call home.

The June Studio Tour Exhibition is on view in the Kokol Gallery, in Toe River Arts' Spruce Pine location, through June 4, 2023. This exhibition gives visitors an opportunity to have a glimpse into each studio and plan their route. It's also a great place to begin the tour or take a break from a day of non-stop art and artists.

Join artists, staff, and the volunteers who make the tour the best and one of the longest continually running self-guided tours in the country, as we toast the beginning of the season during our "Meet-the-Artists" reception on June 2, from 5:30-7:30pm.

"Every year is unique. The artists change, and the work evolves. I'm always excited when the boxes arrive - to see a new artist's work or the evolution of a more seasoned artist" said Kathryn Andree, who has been Toe River Arts Exhibits Coordinator for over a decade. The participant shows are the biggest exhibits during the year, averaging over 150 pieces on pedestals, tables, walls, with a few bigger pieces relegated to the floor. They are the most diverse, with media ranging from 2-dimensional to glass, clay, wood, and fiber - something for every palate, every wallet.

Guide booklets are available.

Blowing Rock Art and History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, Features Artists from Artists Alley

The Blowing Rock Art and History Museum (BRAHM) in Blowing Rock, NC, is presenting Artists Alley: Building a Creative Community in Blowing Rock, on view in the Rankin West Gallery, through Nov. 11, 2023.

This exhibition illustrates an essential, animating force in Blowing Rock's artistic history: the small community of Artists Alley. Located on a single eponymous road just minutes from Main Street off Highway 221, Artists Alley emerged in the late 1950s and would ultimately host a varied yet tightly knit band of artists and craftspeople living and making alongside one another for over 60 years.

How and why do people come together to form a community? Solidarity, friendship, and mutual support? And why do artists, in particular, do the same?

Featuring works by and stories of such local icons as Philip Moose, Herb Cohen, José Fumero, Frank Sherrill, Lynn Jenkins, Barbara and David Ballesty, and John Brady, this exhibition narrates these artists'

Blowing Rock Art and History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, Features Works from Gardena High School

The Blowing Rock Art and History Museum (BRAHM) in Blowing Rock, NC, will present GIFTED: Collecting the Art of California at Gardena High School, 1919-1956, on view in the Fort & Atwell Galleries, from June 20 through Dec. 30, 2023.

GIFTED: Collecting the Art of California at Gardena High School: 1919-1956 was developed for the hundredth anniversary of the Gardena High School Art Collection (GHSAC) in 2019 and illustrates the unlikely history of a communal approach to collection-building and a microcosm of California's modern art history. BRAHM is pleased to announce that it will be hosting this exhibition in the summer of 2023. This will be the first occasion that the Gardena Collection has been exhibited on the East Coast and further cements the Museum's role as an important site for interpreting early American Modern painting, including Impressionism, figurative, landscape and genre painting. Accompanying the exhibit is a catalog of over 200 pages with color plates of the entire collection and interpretive analyses of its historical background and artistic significance.

A century ago, an exceptionally focussed art collection was born out of the recommendation of a school principal. He urged the senior class of Gardena High School to gift the school with an original landscape painting by artist Ralph Davison Miller. Thus began an unprecedented annual tradition:

For nearly 40 years, each senior class selected, purchased and donated works of art to the school, ultimately amassing an exceptional permanent collection of paintings. Each gift was carefully selected and purchased from an artist of note, often reflecting historical content from that year. The high level of sophistication demonstrated by the students' choices was the result of the aesthetic discourse and collaboration nurtured by the school.

Today, the Gardena High School Art Collection is widely acknowledged as one of the nation's outstanding collections of early 20th century California art, with works by some of the state's most celebrated artists. Through more than 40 paintings, GIFTED traces the history of Southern California art in the early 20th century, when plein-air painting and the Arts and Crafts movement were flourishing, and chronicles the school's ambitious efforts within the wider cultural scene of Los Angeles at that time.

GIFTED: Collecting the Art of California at Gardena High School, 1919-1956 is organized by the GHS Art Collection, Inc. in association with the Gardena High School Student Body and curated by Susan M. Anderson. BRAHM's presentation of this exhibition is generously supported by the Miriam & Robert Hayes Charitable Foundation. Additional funding was provided by Our State Magazine.

The Seagrove area is a tight-knit community of potters. They fire some or all of their work in wood fire kilns.

Others have been drawn to the community after studying in faraway places like Estonia and Japan; or at Alfred College in New York and the High Mowing School in New Hampshire; or closer-by at East Carolina University and NC State University. They continue to learn from and support one another as artists.

University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, Offers Works From Its Collection

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, is presenting Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories, on view at the Weatherspoon Art Museum's 1st Floor: Louise D. and Herbert S. Falk, Sr. Gallery, Sculpture Courtyard, 2nd Floor: The Gregory D. Ivy Gallery, Weatherspoon Guild Gallery, and Gallery 6, from June 3 through Spring 2024.

How might the Weatherspoon better engage with museum participants to share fuller and more inclusive stories of American art? This question sparked an eighteen-month-long curatorial and programming project starting in January 2022. We've been listening to people as they share what matters to them in the museum, and we've created this installation of the museum's art collection based on what we learned.

Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories presents 43 artworks from the Weatherspoon's collection of more than 6,500. Each was chosen in response to what more than 4,000 community members told us they care about. These visitor responses - which ranged from poems to doodles to personal statements were gathered in multiple ways. Within the Inquiry Hubs, for example, the visitor engagement team coordinated pop-up gallery performances and facilitated collection-based inquiry and play. One thing we heard repeatedly: caring requires doing. As one museum visitor wrote, "I show my family I am there for them through actions." We chose to organize this installation around the broad theme of caring—of being there—using four spaces dedicated to what we heard people care about: FAMILY, COMMUNITY, PLACE, and MEMORY.

Staff also focused on how the museum's own learning and growth could be made visible in this installation. We listened to the art department professors who said the collection lacked examples of social practice art, then acquired photographs of community performances by artists Dread Scott and Lorraine O'Grady. You'll find them in the COMMUNITY and PLACE rooms, respectively.

We reviewed the physical needs of objects in our collection and sent an iconic light-based sculpture by artist Tom Lloyd for specialized electronic repairs. It now shines a light on issues of social justice in the MEMORY room. We discovered, in dialogue with a contemporary artist, how stories about people who impacted the Weatherspoon itself might lead to the creation of new artwork. You can see Angela Fraleigh's painting inspired by famous art collectors Etta and Claribel Cone in the FAMILY room.

Another word that we encountered repeatedly while reading visitor responses was "connect." We hope that you find Making Room to be a place to connect with yourself, with works of art both new and familiar, and with your family and community. This installation is at once the culmination of a project and a waystation on an ongoing journey of learning by do-

University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, Features Photographs from Collection of Bank of America

The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, NC, is presenting Shared Space: The New Era (1987-2019) | Photographs from the Bank of America Collection, on view at the Weatherspoon Art Museum's 2nd Floor: The Bob & Lissa Shelley McDowell Gallery, through Aug. 5, 2023.

Shared Space: The New Era (1987-2019) | Photographs from the Bank of America Collection acts as a time capsule, traversing an evolving social landscape through photographs and video created over the span of more than 20 years. The exhibition features 35 images by 23 international artists who explore how the physical spaces in which we interact have evolved alongside our increasing access to a virtual "global village." The works illustrate the ways in which our homes and backyards, city streets and plazas, ports and airplanes, and urban and rural landscapes have grown into collective spaces through communication avenues such as the World Wide Web and social media, as well as globalization.

The images range from depictions of masses of people congregating in public spaces to environments physically transformed by the demands of a global economy. The photographs also illustrate some of the adverse effects of our fast-paced technological age, particularly the impact of humankind's ever-expanding footprint and the dysfunction and discord that can lurk beneath surfaces. Shared Space is ultimately open-ended, inviting us to reflect upon the exponential growth of our collective "shared space" and imagine the unbounded common areas of our future.

Britain, India, Iran, Italy, Japan, Mexico, the Netherlands, and Switzerland offer a view into the complexities of this era through photography and video – visual modes of communication made ubiquitous by new technologies. Shared Space explores the ways in which our homes and backyards, city streets and plazas, ports and airplanes, and urban and rural landscapes have evolved through globalization of our communications and collective space.

Greg Cox, Bank of America's Triad President, Senior Vice President in Global Commercial Banking, said "At Bank of America, we believe in the power of the arts to help economies thrive, educate and enrich societies, and create greater cultural understanding. We are pleased these works loaned through the Bank of America Art in our Communities® program will provide inspiration for the Weatherspoon Art Museum's visitors and the many UNCG students who enjoy the Weatherspoon as well."

Cone Memorial Endowed Director of the Weatherspoon Art Museum, said, "As a hub for innovative teaching and learning, the Weatherspoon is an inclusive and dynamic catalyst for people's engagement with art and one another. Partnering with Bank of America to present this diverse collection of contemporary photography, we collectively create an opportunity for visitors to experience these artists' perspectives while considering their own."

The exhibition acts as a time capsule, its point of departure 1987, the year US President Ronald Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev signed the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Treaty (INF), a historical nuclear arms agreement. This event, along with the fall of the Berlin Wall and the dissolution of the Soviet Union, marked the end of the Cold War and a new era of globalization. Included in the exhibition is an actual fragment from the Berlin Wall, marking the moment in 1989 when East and West Berliners were able to communicate and traverse freely across the former boundary. Parallel to these events was a technological revolution with the rise of the World Wide Web, which created a vast digital world without borders.

"This exhibition will truly resonate with anyone who experienced the emergence of the World Wide Web and personal access to such technologies as smart phones and iPads. These photographs were created at the cusp of this new reality and indicate what artists were drawn to both technically and thematically at this historical moment," says Elaine D. Gustafson, Curator and Head of Collections and Facilities at the museum. She organized the exhibition's presentation at the Weatherspoon.

She adds that the exhibition presents a rare chance to see work by such renowned photographers in one fascinating exhibition. "It focuses on an international cast of artists who were major practitioners of the medium, so it's a unique opportunity to view work by these artists in one place at one time," she notes. "The majority of the images are large scale and were produced with large-format cameras. As a result there is a level of detail that is spellbinding. I think visitors will be amazed by what the photographs capture and convey."

Artists represented in the exhibition include: Hans Aarsman, Olivo Barbieri, Wout Berger, Edward Burtynsky, Gregory Crewdson, Philip-Lorca diCorcia, Ken Fandell, Günther Förg, Ben Gest, Andreas Gursky, Jitka Hanzlová, Barbara Klemm, Sze Tsung Nicolás Leong, Bertien van Manen, Shirin Neshat, Walter Niedermayr, Gabriel Orozco, Thomas Ruff, Tokihiro Satō, Raghubir Singh, Beat Streuli, Thomas Struth, and Massimo Vitali.

This exhibition was loaned through the Bank of America Art in Our Communities Program. Additional funding generously provided by Margaret and Bill Benjamin.

Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, Offers New Exhibitions

The Reynolda House Museum of American Art in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting several exhibitions including: Black Mountain College: Seedbed of American Art, on view in the Northwest Bedroom Gallery, through June 25, 2023; Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda, on view in the Master Bedroom Gallery, through Dec. 31, 2023.

The exhibit Black Mountain College: Seedbed of American Art is on view in the Northwest Bedroom Gallery.

Black Mountain College, which was open in western North Carolina from 1933-57, was a site of collaboration among people, practices, disciplines, and performances that generated astonishing creativity and continues to spark innovation among contemporary writers and artists. It was a college for free spirits, where both faculty and students could explore new ways of learning and fresh approaches to the varied subjects that comprise the liberal arts.

This exhibition is curated by Thomas Frank. Dr. Frank is professor emeritus from Wake Forest University and an editor of the Black Mountain Studies journal. He has selected works by former students and faculty of the short-lived experimental college from the collections of Reynolda and Wake Forest, including Josef and Anni Albers, Jacob Lawrence, Lyonel Feininger, and Robert Rauschenberg.

The exhibit Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda is on view in the Master Bedroom Gallery.

"Into a daybreak that's wondrously clear / I rise." Maya Angelou's poem "Still I Rise," published in 1978, was an assertion of dignity and resilience in the face of oppression. In the 1980s, Angelou used Reynolda as her stage, sharing words of humanity, survival, and triumph. But before her, numerous Black lives impacted and intersected with the story of Reynolda. Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda examines the lives of the Black women and men who helped shape Reynolda as it evolved from a Jim Crow era working estate into a museum for American art.

Flora Pledger and Lillie Hamlin, circa 1930

From 1912 through the 1950s, during one of the most repressive climates for Black people in North Carolina history, Black men and women navigated Reynolda's segregated spaces—farming the land, constructing buildings, and working as domestic staff within Reynolda's walls. During this era, segregation, the exploitation of Black labor, and laws that regulated Black behavior affected the lives of all individuals in the Reynolda story, whether at Reynolda or at the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

While the struggle for equality did not end with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the story of Reynolda pivoted to one of a public cultural institution. When it opened its doors in 1967, Reynolda's intersection with Black lives shifted as the young, fledgling museum provided a venue for Black artists to celebrate their art. Artists such as Jacob Lawrence, Romare Bearden, and Maya Angelou transformed the historic setting into a stage for their art and teachings. Through art, letters, photographs, and audiovisual recordings, Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda examines Reynolda's complicated past in a space designed for reflection and healing.

This exhibition has been made possible in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities. An exhibition partner is the Winston-Salem (NC) Chapter of the Links, Incorporated.

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, Features Works by Karen Kopf and Jessica Tefft

Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem, NC, is presenting two new exhibitions including: D.C. al Fine, featuring new works by Karen Kopf, on view through July 1, 2023, and Peaceable Kingdom, featuring new works by Jessica Tefft, on view through July 1, 2023. A reception will be held on June 2, from 7-9pm and an Art Crush will be held on June 16, from 7-9

Karen Kopf is inspired by Jazz, classical, and rock music, merged with the natural world to create a sensory experience rather than a narrative one. Sketching the natural forms in the world, she then composes the painting by overlapping individual forms to create more forms within the whole. The result is a web of conflicting energies with many intricate textures.

Gold, silver and copper leafing is used liberally throughout the works. The overall impression of the paintings is a tactile and luminous interpretation of the energy within forms in nature.

After studying painting in Austria for a year, Kopf established a studio in Marbella, Spain on the Costa del Sol. Five years under the bright Spanish sun added an intensity to the colors of her palette and a wide range of experiences and exhibitions to her career as a professional artist. Her works from this period are in collections all over the world.

Upon returning to the US, she painted in upstate New York, where she was resident director of Guy Park State Historic Site. Eventually she moved to Winston-Salem where she earned a Master's degree from Salem College and worked for twenty years as a teacher while she and her husband raised two sons. She currently exhibits at Artworks Gallery in Winston-Salem.

A framed print of the Peaceable Kingdom by Edward Hicks hung in Jessica Tefft's living room when she was growing up.

Work by Jessica Tefft

The lion's eyes appeared to watch over her. Later, she realized Hicks' painting was a visual sermon promoting spiritual and earthly harmony. In addition to being a painter, Hicks was a Quaker minister, and his works were based on Isaiah 11:6-9: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them."

When Tefft created this new body of work, she thought about how the Peaceable Kingdom would look today in our gun-crazed country. These works express her thinking on how the things we hold most beautiful are also the most targeted.

Tefft is an artist and professional photographer based in Winston-Salem. She believes art offers her the language to explore themes of trauma and healing. She also sees art as a lens through which to interpret current events. She worked as a photojournalist in Washington, DC, and elsewhere and has exhibited and won numerous awards for her work.

Photojournalism took her from Cuba to the Alaskan wilderness, and then the presidential campaign trail. She assembled and edited an entry for coverage of the DC sniper that was a Pulitzer Prize finalist. She graduated from Wake Forest University with a degree in studio art and is currently working toward a master's in public administration. She is the founder and executive director of The Art SHAC, a creative reuse nonprofit providing affordable art supplies to her community.

“I met the NGO MAG which works to reclaim the area strewn with bombs,” adds Petralla. “I met the members of an association that do its utmost to raise funds and handcraft prosthetics for the thousands of people who need them, and I have been to some villages where bombs are recycled. Working in the field, while exploring and interviewing Laotians, I discovered the existence of dozens of large caves which were not only a refuge but also a home for thousands of Laotians, even in the years following the war. Some became hospitals and schools.”

Sunset River Gallery in Calabash, NC, Features Works by Members of Studio 8

Sunset River Gallery in Calabash, NC, is presenting Diversity by Studio 8, featuring works by its members, on view through July 1, 2023. A reception to meet the artists is set for June 16, from 5-7pm. Studio 8 is a group of artists who paint together weekly at Sunset River Gallery. It includes: Judi Moore, Brenda Riggins, Vicki Neilon, Linda Karaskevics, Donn McCrary, Rachel Sunnell, Barbara Kohn, and Linda Hester.

Studio 8 formed early in 2020, evolving from another painting group at the gallery. The show is a selection of new works in various styles and media. The pieces range from conceptual to traditional to contemporary.

Viewers will see vibrant acrylic landscapes by Rachel Sunnell. She also created a conceptual piece for the show, which is titled Who Do I Reflect? It features a series of mirrors with faces superimposed on them. Brenda Riggins, who is known for her portraiture in watercolor, has also created a number of acrylic coastal scenes.

Judi Moore is working large for this show and will be showing a 36” by 36” hydrangea painting. Barbara Kohn began painting with watercolor, then switched to oil, and now loves the immediacy of soft pastels. Vicki Neilon works in both watercolor and acrylic, and currently enjoys combining abstract with representational, resulting in her distinctive stylized images.

Work by Rachel Sunnell

Linda Hester also paints in both acrylic and watercolor. She says, “I absolutely love the peace and calm that comes when I am working on a painting. Painting has allowed me to see my environment in a totally new way. It’s a joy to see ideas come to life on paper or canvas.” Linda Karaskevics has recently found a passion for painting Carolina coastal scenes. She says acrylics allow her to work more quickly, resulting in a spontaneous brush or painting knife application. Her painting style is impressionistic realism.

Individually speaking, the talents of this group are impressive. Collectively, the artists pull from each other’s energy, humor, and love for diverse art styles. Says Donn McCrary, who is known for his use of vibrant colors and simple designs and is the only male in the group, “These girls don’t hold back! Their critiques are direct and helpful.”

A strong supporter of both the Sunset River Gallery and the community, Studio 8 recently stepped up as a major sponsor for the Hearts + Arts fundraiser for Lower Cape Fear LifeCare, which will be held at the gallery on June 2.

Located in coastal Brunswick County, Sunset River Gallery caters to both area visitors and a growing local community of full-time residents seeking fine art for their homes and businesses. University of North Carolina at Wilmington, NC, Features Works by Dorothy Gillespie

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington, NC, is presenting Dorothy Gillespie: Portraits and Self-Portraits, on view in the CAB Art Gallery, through Sept. 1, 2023.

UNCW's CAB Art Gallery is partnering with the Dorothy Gillespie Foundation and the Radford University Art Museum, to showcase portraits and self-portraits by 20th century American Artist, Dorothy Gillespie. This one-of-a-kind exhibition is an opportunity to view never before seen Dorothy Gillespie portraits and self-portraits.

Gillespie was well known as a painter, sculptor, and installation artist whose work encompassed many significant 20th-century trends in art, including abstract expressionism, decorative abstraction, site-specific installations, the women's movement, and art in public spaces. She pioneered joyful new directions for metal sculpture and is best known for large-scale, colorfully painted arrangements of cut aluminum strips that radiate, undulate, or curl like giant arrangements of ribbon, enchanted towers, or bursting fireworks.

On display will be portraits of Gillespie's colleagues and friends, along with many unseen self-portraits, and the iconic aluminum sculpture, "Summer Jazz", inspired by many visits to see "Phantom of the Opera" on Broadway.

In conjunction with the CAB Art Gallery's Dorothy Gillespie: Portraits and Self-Portraits exhibition, Cape Fear Community College's Wilma W. Daniels Gallery will host an exhibition, Dorothy Gillespie, featuring a retrospective of her artworks, on view through Aug. 25, 2023. Other Gillespie artworks will also be exhibited around the Wilmington area throughout the summer of 2023.

In addition to her demanding studio work, Gillespie served as a Distinguished Professor of Art, Radford University, Radford, VA, 1997-99; on the Board of Trustees, Maryland Institute, College of Art, Baltimore, Maryland 1996-99; on the Board of Trustees, Maitland Art Center, Maitland, FL 1996-99; and on the Art in Public Places Committee, Broward Cultural Affairs Council, June 1993-June 1994; and as Visiting Artist, Radford University, Radford, VA, 1981-83 where she initiated the University's permanent art collection through a gift of her own work and where her work is now archived, also she was a Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellow from 1985-1993. During that period, she made week-long visits to small private colleges throughout the country and gave public lectures, coached and taught young artists. Early in her career, Gillespie contributed to the women's art movement through her work at Artist in Residence, Women's Interart Center, New York, NY 1972 and her lecture series at the New School for Social Research, New York, NY 1977.

Gillespie is the subject of numerous reviews, critical essays, film and radio interviews and a book Dorothy Gillespie published by the Radford University Foundation Press.

Confluence-Connections in Fiber, curated by Susan Kranyik, is a fiber art show with works from compelling, award winning fiber artists from around the country including: Patricia Turner, Penny Mateer, Beverly Smith, Susan Lenz, J. Bruce Wilcox, Richard Lunz, Mary Mazziotti, R'hea Roland-Singer, and Robin Lynn Haller.

Patricia Turner of Sarasota, FL, will be here to discuss her work with our guests on June 2, the opening night. Turner uses her fiber art to call attention to tough and grim subject matter such as lynchings and racism.

Work by Patricia Turner

Work by Susan Lenz

Beverly Smith of Charlotte, NC, makes art quilts and states, "It is a characteristic of my work to focus on themes from the Antebellum South that address past taboos and controversial issues".

Susan Lenz, a fiber and installation artist from Columbia, SC, is showing works created during the pandemic that haven't yet been shown in a public exhibit.

Mary Mazziotti of Pittsburgh states, "I make artwork, often textile based, on the frailty of Life and the inevitably Death. This genre is called memento mori..."

Robin Lynn Haller, an associate professor in the Textile Design Program at East Carolina University, is a master weaver that uses the latest technology combined with hand dyed fibers to create remarkable works. She has exhibited nationally and internationally and has won multiple awards including two-time Best of Show Award in "Fiber Celebration", Colorado.

J. Bruce Wilcox of Denver, CO, creates abstract fiber works. "I am not a quilter. I do not make quilts. I do not think like a quilter."

Duke University in Durham, NC, Features Works by Andy Warhol

Andy Warhol, "Grace Jones and Unidentified Man", n.d. Gelatin silver print, 6 1/16 x 8 13/16 inches (15.4 x 22.4 cm). Collection of the Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University. Gift of The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts, 2008.9.127. © The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts, Inc. / Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York.

Duke University in Durham, NC, is presenting Andy Warhol: You Look Good in Pictures, on view at The Nasher Museum of Art, through Aug. 27, 2023.

For Andy Warhol, the camera was a device through which he saw the world. The artist was rarely without one, whether it was his beloved portable Polaroid SX-70 instant, a conventional 35mm single lens reflex, or the movie cameras with which he made hundreds of films. Photographic imagery - his own, other artists', and everyday mass-produced commercial photographs - was the foundation for nearly his entire artistic vision and output.

Andy Warhol: You Look Good in Pictures explores the breadth of the artist's relationship with photography through several distinct bodies of work including screenprints of celebrities, all of which were taken from photographs, a group of Polaroids and black and white snapshots illustrating his social circles, and an early silent film of the curator Henry Geldzahler from 1964.

Often re-photographing and re-imaging

the same subjects over and over again, Warhol focused as much on the act of photography as he did the people in the images. One of the disarming things about Warhol's image-making process was the way in which he often disregarded established photographic conventions such as composition, exposure, and other technical elements that make a "good" photograph. He constantly documented his life and those around him in candid pictures with a freewheeling manner and once quipped, "My idea of a good picture is one that's in focus and of a famous person."

Today, Warhol's work feels more prescient than ever. He would have no doubt loved social media networks, aesthetically enhancing digital filters, and delighted at the ubiquity of smartphones capable of spreading images across the globe at the touch of a button.

Craven Allen Gallery in Durham, NC, Features Works by Chieko Murasugi and Renzo Ortega

The Craven Allen Gallery in Durham, NC, is presenting Sequential: New Work, featuring works by Chieko Murasugi and Renzo Ortega, through July 8, 2023.

Painting is a sequential endeavor. A painting consists of a sequence of brush strokes, a series is a sequence of paintings, and a body of work is the culmination of the artist's production. Every painter is also indebted to the long succession of painters who preceded them. In this exhibition, painters Chieko Murasugi and Renzo Ortega, arriving from very different backgrounds and pictorial approaches, create works that speak to the idea of sequence, both within the canvas and outside of it, all the while expressing their vision of what painting means at this moment.

Murasugi employs personal symbols and visual illusions within an abstract language to access the realm of ideas. She visualizes the notion of chance by using a computer program to "roll the dice" and introduce randomized elements into ordered sequences and patterns. In these paintings, selected features are randomized within both traditional and novel patterns to create a balance between predictable and unstable perceptions.

Murasugi frequently employs the hexagon, a Japanese symbol of longevity and a shape that holds personal significance. By chance, her parents narrowly escaped the fires from M-69 incendiary bombs dropped on Tokyo during WWII, bombs housed in hexagon shaped containers. In other paintings, Murasugi incorporates the recently discovered Einstein hat shape that is based upon the hexagon and creates tile patterns that do not repeat. Lack of repetition is a crucial characteristic of randomness.

Work by Chieko Murasugi

Renzo Ortega's painting practice consists of consistent, repetitive processes, which is how he masters his craft. He believes that a constant pictorial rhythm has existed since the beginning of human existence. He relates rhythm with heartbeats and connects paintings with bodies' frequencies. For Ortega, this consistent sequential rhythm exists in the masterworks of the history of easel painting.

For example, in the drumroll-like strokes of bold impressionist brushwork, in the obsessively revisiting over and over color sequences of Van Gogh, in the endless different point of view approach on the same theme of modernism, to the tremendous progressive line of twentieth-century pictorialisms, which unleashed a free-minded contemporary painting that is the result of an infinite loop of expression through painting's physicality.

The Sequential exhibition invites the observer on a visual journey, generating an organic relationship between the artworks and the gallery's visitors. Through the dynamics of color, form, ideas, and narratives, Chieko Murasugi and Renzo Ortega seek to generate a dialogue and the experience of art appreciation with the audience.

Murasugi offered the following statement, "As a trained scientist, my explorations often begin with a question. In most paintings shown here, my question was: can one detect random/chance events within an ordered field? My answer so far, not surprisingly, is yes and no, it varies with the circumstances. It depends, for instance, upon the location, salience, and relative quantity of the random elements. As I continue these investigations, I ponder to what degree chance affects lives, and whether random events receive due credit. These, of course, were my original questions."

Work by Renzo Ortega

Chieko Murasugi was born in Tokyo to a mathematician father and artist mother, and immigrated to Canada with her family when she was three years old. Growing up in Toronto, she studied Social Psychology (BA, McGill U) and Visual Arts (BFA, York U) before earning a doctorate in Experimental Psychology, specializing in Visual Perception (PhD, York U). She was awarded an NSERC Postdoctoral Fellowship to conduct visual neuroscience research on monkeys at Stanford University. After publishing several scientific papers, she began an independent painting practice in San Francisco while raising two children with her neurophysiologist husband. She moved to the NC Triangle in 2012. In 2019, she received an MFA in Studio Art from UNC-CH, and co-founded BASEMENT, an artist-run experimental project space in Chapel Hill.

Murasugi has exhibited her paintings and mixed media works widely in galleries and museums, including Greenhill, and the Ackland, Wiregrass, Weatherspoon, and Mint Museums. Her paintings can be found in public and corporate collections, such as Duke University, City of Raleigh, TIAA, and Honeywell. Chieko is the recipient of Wildacres, Black Mount College and Art Center (digital), and Hambidge residences, as well as an Ella Fountain Pratt Emerging Artists Grant and grants from the Orange County Arts Commission and the NC Arts Council. Her art practice is featured in Liza Roberts' 2022 book, "Art of the State: Celebrating the Visual Art of North Carolina."

Renzo Ortega offered the following statement, "Art generates bonds and belongs to people's memories. My artwork reflects the sociopolitical and geographical context where I live. In Lima-Perú, where I grew up, the Andes' colors melt with urban chaos. I lived in a multicultural New York for 16 years. I now live in North Carolina, where the landscape view transformed the colors of my palette. These transitions have influenced my art practice; I embody freedom in the various styles that coexist in my paintings, and I believe painting is an infinite loop of life itself, a vast universe of artistic creation."

"In North Carolina, I have been working on a series of paintings about my impressions of our current times," adds Ortega. "My native heritage, empowered by my immigrant experience, solidifies my American identity that connects and acknowledges the lands of the original people that have been here in the past, is part of the present, and constructs a prominent future. I believe my artworks belong to the Southern region and are part of the American Painting's journey that started thousands of years ago, survived the European encounter, adapted to the modernist twenty-century, and are embedded now with our digital contemporaneity."

Renzo Ortega (Lima, Peru 1974) is an artist based in Carrboro, NC. He received a BFA in painting from the Escuela Nacional de Bellas Artes del Peru (1999), studied at the Art Students League of New York (2000-04) and has his MFA in painting from Hunter College (2014). Ortega's recent solo exhibitions have been at TW Fine Art in Palm Beach (2022) and LUMP Gallery in Raleigh, NC (2021). Renzo's artwork has been exhibited in museums such as the NASHER Museum of Art (Durham, NC, 2022), Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art SECCA (Winston-Salem, NC, 2020), the Works on Paper: 2017 Exhibition at The Weatherspoon Art Museum in Greensboro, in the S-Files Biennial at El Museo del Barrio (New York 2007) and Queens International Biennial at the Queens Museum in 2006.

In 2013, as a Kossak Travel Grant recipient, Ortega traveled to Berlin to study German Expressionism, and also in 2015 traveled to Honduras as a part of the US Department of Cultural Affairs Cultural Envoy Program. He partook in the Visiting Artist Residency at the Rubenstein Arts Center at Duke University in 2019, and in 2020, he was the inaugural artist of the New Wave Art Wknd artist-in-residence program in West Palm Beach.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, Offers Exhibition Focused on Peck Collection

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, NC, is presenting Focus on the Peck Collection: Studying with Rembrandt, on view at the Ackland Art Museum, through Aug. 6, 2023.

Rembrandt van Rijn understood drawing as the foundation of the visual arts. This Focus on the Peck Collection installation presents works by Rembrandt, Philips de Koninck, and Abraham Furnerius that illustrate and exemplify the drawing exercises Rembrandt assigned his pupils. Through the completion of these exercises, students perfected their ability to draw from life and learned to create naturalistic images and compositions in the style of their master.

In January 2017, the Ackland Art Museum received its largest gift to date when Sheldon Peck (UNC-Chapel Hill, BS '63, DDS '66) and his wife Leena donated their extraordinary collection of 134 mostly 17th-century Dutch and Flemish master drawings, as well as significant funds for the stewardship of the collection, new acquisitions, and an endowed curatorial position in European and American art before 1950. At least one example from the collection is always on view at the Museum, but because these works of art on paper are light-sensitive, we rotate a select number of drawings with other objects from our permanent collection in an ongoing display called Focus on the Peck Collection.

Sheldon Peck, a native of Durham, is a double alumnus of the University, receiving his undergraduate degree from Carolina in 1963 and his doctorate from the UNC School of Dentistry in 1966. He and Leena enjoyed distinguished careers as prominent orthodontic specialists and educators in the Boston area.

The Peck Collection started as a collaboration between Sheldon and his late brother Harvey and continued as a joint interest shared with Leena. The result of over 40 years of exceptional connoisseurship, scientifically rigorous analysis, and dedicated pursuit, the Peck Collection stands as an internationally significant achievement. Sadly, Leena Peck passed away in January of 2019, followed by Sheldon Peck in April of 2021.

Philips de Koninck, Dutch, 1619-1688, "A Man in a Cloak, Facing to the Left", c. 1650-60, pen and brown ink and brown wash on paper, 2 13/16 x 1 5/8 in. (7.1 x 4.1 cm). Ackland Art Museum, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Peck Collection, 2017.1.48.

Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, Offers New Exhibit

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts in Hillsborough, NC, will present From Earth To Sky, featuring terra cotta pottery vessels by Garry Childs, artistic fine furniture by Pete Rodrigues, and watermedia collage paintings by Nancy Smith, on view from June 27 through July 23, 2023. A reception will be held on June 30, from 6-9pm.

Garry Childs' artwork is formed on a potter's wheel from terra-cotta clay. After the clay has stiffened up enough to handle, but is not completely dry, he applies glazes and then carves patterns through the glaze into the damp clay. When completely dry the pots are fired in a gas kiln to a little over 2,100 degrees.

"In the past few years I have been applying some local clays directly to the pots in a liquid form. These clays are used straight from the ground with all the naturally occurring impurities and organic material to provide interesting surface textures," says Childs.

Work by Garry Childs

"The shapes and forms of my work have become more and more important to me," says Childs. "We often refer to parts of pots like parts of the human body. Neck, shoulder, belly, foot and lip are used for both. I see people in the curves of the shapes. Many have what I think of as a feminine form with slow soft curves. Put your arms around one, you'll see what I mean."

"I still feel new to the gallery and to the art world as a whole," says furniture maker Pete Rodrigues. "For the last 25 years, I have created pieces out of wood. Becoming a resident artist in the gallery has allowed me to be more creative, using my imagination and discovering possibilities."

Rodrigues is excited about his new wall art that will be a part of From Earth To Sky.

Work by Nancy Smith

"These artistic designs consist of contemporary shapes and are held to the wall with magnets. The magnets give an opportunity for each piece to be hung in any way on the wall, allowing those who purchase them to continue the creative process. Also in the show will be some of my new furniture designs, and floating shelves that are both artistic and functional," adds Rodrigues.

For painter Nancy Smith inspiration for this show did not come easy. "I was going through a major life transition and my creative spirit was on hiatus. The deadline for paintings was looming large and I had started none." To soothe herself, Smith spent time in nature taking walks in the woods.

"Surrounded by trees, I listened to the music of a flowing stream and bird song. I felt peaceful, sustained, and nurtured," says Smith. "Ideas began to take root and grow. The paintings in this show are an expression of my emotional experience while communing with earth and sky."

The Hillsborough Gallery of Arts is owned and operated by 21 local artists and represents these established artists exhibiting contemporary fine art and fine craft. The Gallery's offerings include oil, acrylic and watercolor paintings, metal sculpture, figurative sculpture, ceramics, photography, montage, digital art, mixed media, jewelry, glass, and handcrafted furniture. The gallery is located on N. Churton Street, Hillsborough, NC 27278.

The exhibition showcases new work by North Carolina-based contemporary painter, Damian Stamer. Stamer depicts barns, abandoned buildings and other vernacular structures of the rural South often in large scale, and his heavily layered canvases blur the line between abstraction and representation as they seek to express the solemn beauty of the old and overlooked. Galleries 1, 4, and 5, Permanent Exhibition - "18th and 19th Century American Paintings and Sculpture". American paintings, from colonial portraits to Civil War-era landscapes, occupy the Gibbes Main Gallery. The paintings collection is complemented by examples of neoclassical sculpture on view in the Campbell Rotunda, and decorative art objects on loan from the Rivers Collection. Gallery 5, Permanent Exhibition - "Miniature Portraits". The first American miniature portraits were painted in Charleston, and today the Gibbes is home to one of the most prestigious portrait miniature collections in the United States. Containing more than six hundred objects, the collection spans nearly two hundred years and represents the work of over a hundred artists. Small enough to fit in the palm of the hand, these tiny portraits were treasured remembrances of loved ones in the age before photography. Presented in state-of-the-art display cases, and in viewable storage drawers featured miniatures include works by Mary Roberts, Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Charles Wilson Peale, Pierre Henri, Edward Greene Malbone, George Engleheart, and Charles Fraser. Gallery 6, Permanent Exhibition - "20th Century American Regionalism and the Charleston Renaissance". At the turn of the twentieth century, American artists looked to their European counterparts and beyond as they developed identifiably American artistic movements. Two particularly strong influences during this time period were French Impressionism and Japanese woodblock prints. Another prevailing theme during this period was the growing interest in American subject matter. American regionalism and social realism played important roles in the development of art in Charleston, which flourished as a destination for artists, particularly during the years of 1915 to 1945 a period now known as the Charleston Renaissance. Gallery 7, Permanent Exhibition - "Modern and Contemporary". Modern and contemporary art in America encompasses a wide range of styles, subject matter, and media. As a whole, the diversity of modern and contemporary art reflects the rich and varied heritage of our nation and the lowcountry region. Works in this gallery were created over the past forty years by artists who are native to the area, who have worked here, or who have created objects that reflect the complex story of the region. The works are grouped to reflect several themes including the southern landscape, the human figure, abstraction, and the legacy of slavery in America. Visiting Artist Series, Session II: Through June 11 - "Robin Howard and Ransome". Using space and movement as materials, Robin Howard's sculptures explore the intersections of motion and stillness, something-ness and nothing-ness and striving and contentment. Intentionally non-representational, her sculptures give the mind a place to rest. Howard uses wooden geometric shapes to construct assemblage sculptures and then adds kinetic elements with glass, clay and wood beads on wires. Ransome's practice originates with the story of his grandparents, who were sharecroppers in North Carolina. While the pictorial narratives he creates are personal, the symbols are universal and interplay with larger social, racial, economic and political realities. All of his works are abstract, even when figurative, and he creates collages with acrylic paint and found, made and purchased papers. Session III: Aug. 28 – Oct. 8 - "Javonte Jenkins and Nathan Durfee". Javonte Jenkins describes his art style as, "very surreal with cartoonist flares expressed to display the personality within each individual piece." This ramifies through a series of powerful imagery, whimsical perspectives and compelling truths that will surely redefine modern art through new, stylized aesthetics. With a background in children's book illustration, Nathan Durfee now uses that aesthetic to convey the nuances and complexity of the human experience. Many of his whimsical characters are faced with tough yet universal decisions, conveying a sense of security in an unsure world to the viewer. Ruth and Bill Baker Art Sales Gallery, Through June 11 - The Gibbes Museum of Art welcomes Charleston-based artist Robin Howard and New York-based artist Ransome for session II of the Visiting Artists program, in residence now until June 11. Robin will hold open studio hours on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10am-2pm and Sat., from 11am-2pm, and Ransome's open studio hours will be Tue. and Wed. from 11am-4pm for the public to see these artists at work. See below for more information, and please let me know if you are interested in featuring any of these artists or the Visiting Artists program. Using space and movement as materials, Robin Howard's sculptures explore the intersections of motion and stillness, something-ness and nothing-ness and striving and contentment. Intentionally non-representational, her sculptures give the mind a place to rest. Howard uses wooden geometric shapes to construct assemblage sculptures and then adds kinetic elements with glass, clay and wood beads on wires. Driven by a conviction to live much more simply, Robin explores the concept that less is more, peace is a more worthy pursuit than happiness and what isn't there may be just as important as what is. Originally from a small coastal town in North Carolina, Ransome is a New York-based multimedia artist. His practice originates with the story of his grandparents, who were sharecroppers in North Carolina. While the pictorial narratives he creates are personal, the symbols are universal and interplay with larger social, racial, economic and political realities – the history of his family is the history of Black America, which is the history of America. All of his works are abstract, even when figurative, and he creates collages with acrylic paint and found, made and purchased papers, a nod to growing up in a rural community where recycling was common. Museum Shop - Now offering the inventory of the Tradd Street Press, reproductions of works by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner among other exhibit related art objects. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-5pm. Admission: Yes. Contact: 843/722-2706 or at (www.gibbesmuseum.org).

Part one of America's First Museum: 250 Years of Collecting, Preserving, and Educating began on Dec. 17, 2022, and displays objects that span its impressive history. Charleston played a critical role in the Revolutionary War. South Carolina was the wealthiest of the thirteen rebellious colonies and Charleston was its key port to maintain its trade with the outside world. The British would make three attempts against the city during the Revolutionary War. Their defeat at the Battle of Sullivan's Island on June 28, 1776 was a crucial patriot victory, which convinced many that independence could be achieved. The Siege of Charleston, meanwhile, was the longest siege of the Revolutionary War and the largest battle in South Carolina. Columbia Museum of Art, Main & Hampton Streets, Columbia. Through Oct. 22 - "Constantine Manos: A Greek Portfolio". Born in Columbia to Greek immigrant parents in 1934, Constantine Manos traveled to Greece in the early 1960s, where he photographed the everyday lives of villagers over a period of three years. The resulting body of work, first published in 1972 as "A Greek Portfolio", solidified the photographer's reputation and quickly earned international recognition. In 1978, he donated 50 of those prints to the Columbia Museum of Art, a selection of which is on view in this exhibition. Manos' account captures the beauty, simplicity, and hardships of rural Greek life with the sensitivity of one with familial ties to that country. In intimate images exploring love, loss, faith, and family, the artist prompts reflection on the nature of human relationships and the connections between land and labor. Through Sept. 3 - "Bullets and Band-aids: A Veteran Anthology". Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia, Bullets and Band-aids: A Veteran Anthology features stories and art that look at returning home after war to the newly unfamiliar "normalcy" of civilian life after the chaos of combat, asking: "What is my next step?" Each work in the exhibition is the result of a creative partnership between artist and veteran to process and honor a veteran's wartime experiences. Together they celebrate our common humanity through storytelling and art. Featured artists include: Jason Henry Anderson, Haley Beann, Kara Bender, Gina Langston Brewer, Jessica "JB" Burke, G. Florence

Florence County Museum, 111 West Cheves Street, across the street from the Francis Marion University Performing Arts Center, Florence. Ongoing - "Kindred Spirit: The Personal Worlds of William H. Johnson". William H. Johnson (1901 - 1970) was a man between worlds: raised in the rural South, but educated in New York; black, but his unknown father was white; American-born, but lived much of his adult life in Europe. This diverse heritage gave Johnson a unique perspective and insight, but at times it was also a difficult shadow which followed him as he traveled the world in search of his true artistic voice. Eventually, after many years away from his hometown of Florence, SC, Johnson returned to the United States. Although living in New York, his art began to focus almost entirely on the lives and experiences of African Americans in the rural South. "My travels taught me that an artist must live and paint in his own environment... This development shall continue for the rest of my life, and it is the painting of my people," said Johnson in 1941. Special Exhibits Gallery, Through Aug. 13 - "Legend: Francis Marion in the Pee Dee." This exhibit will focus on the military career and subsequent legends and legacy of General Francis Marion (1732 - 1795). The exhibition will feature a selection of important 19th century American artworks depicting Marion and his militia during the Revolutionary War, with interpretive emphasis on how Marion's activities in the Pee Dee region of South Carolina contributed to the folkloric "Marion mythos". These artworks will be requested as loans from major national public & private collections. As much as possible, the exhibition will also incorporate historical artifacts recently recovered from archaeological sites associated with Marion's local military activities. Loans of available authentic primary source archival materials such as documents and maps will be explored, to the extent that they would sustain the exhibition's objectives by adding meaningful support to the overall thesis. Education Gallery, Through Aug. 13 - Featuring a multi-dimensional exhibition highlighting archeological sites alongside the lore of the Snow's Island Community. Inspired by Steven D. Smith's book, "Francis Marion and the Snow Island Community", and the artwork of James H. Palmer. Work by Joseph Smolin

Greenville Center for Creative Arts, 25 Draper Street, Greenville. Main Gallery, June 2 - July 26 - "Invisible Planet," featuring works by Virginia Russo and Joseph Smolin. A reception will be held on June 2, from 6-9pm. An Artist Talk will be offered on July 11, beginning at 6pm. "Invisible Planet" is an imaginary world that represents untouched beauty and the raw wonder of creation. Russo created "The Planet" which aims to be a refuge for neuro-divergent people who suffer from sensory issues and overstimulation. This world in her work is a mysterious and ethereal land filled with mountains, cliffs, mushrooms, and an ever-present orange sun. Smolin's experience growing up half-Jewish in the Deep South - Birmingham, AL - is reflected in his symbology and exploration of identity issues. His flamboyant and androgynous characters, as visitors on "The Planet", challenge gender norms and societal expectations. Smolin's work delivers condensed psycho-symbolic imagery that deals with themes of identity, religion, oppression, and conformity. Loft Gallery, June 2 - July 26 - Featuring an exhibit of works by Suzanne Harned. Community Gallery, Through June 28 - "Messages From the Past," featuring works by Caroline Hughes and Deborah Poretz Grove. "In Messages from the Past," Caroline E. Hughes and Deborah Poretz Grove test the processes that connect us to each other and our past. Through textures and patterning, we see how textiles, prints, and technologies can be a connecting force to bring understanding and advance towards the future. Hughes investigates personal experiences with place and community through large scale textile works. Aspects of rural living are present in her work. Hughes places an emphasis on her history in those settings as a catalyst for connections and shared experience. Grove uses semiconductor plates as metaphors for extending personal memories and connecting people all the time everywhere. In her many series of work, deeds, titles, letters, and family photos, from 1890 - 1950 are juxtaposed by references of semiconductor prototypes of the 1990s to further elaborate on the idea of memory extension. The Shop at GCCA - In celebration of our eighth anniversary, Greenville Center for Creative Arts is thrilled to announce the opening of our official gift shop! Orangeburg

Cecil Williams Civil Rights Museum, 1865 Lake Drive, Orangeburg. Ongoing - Established in 2019, the exquisite ultra-modern facility displays 1000 images of the Civil Rights Movement, but from the perspective of The Epochal South Carolina Events That Changed America. The massive archives comprise the largest collection of images of this type among all museums in the United States; including the Atlanta based High Museum which archives 300 images. The images were created by the founder, Cecil Williams, who began photography at age 9 and covered almost all historically significant events in South Carolina; from 1950 Briggs v. Elliot in Summerton, thru the 1969 Charleston Hospital Workers' Strike...and Beyond. From 1955 through 1969, Williams was a freelance journalist for "JET" magazine. His images have appeared in thousands of magazines, newspapers, historical publications, and motion picture productions. The museum design itself is part of the founders' DNA because; upon graduating from high school, Williams wanted to attend Clemson University to study architecture but denied because of his race. He then purchased a drafting board and through the years, designed three residences; including one featured in "EBONY", and the museum's design which has evolved into a living history facility. Spartanburg Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. The downtown cultural district area is often bustling with events and pedestrians, and the pedestrians rely heavily on a multitude of crosswalks to safely traverse the downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. For more info visit (<https://www.chapmanculturalcenter.org/pages/blog/detail/article/c0/a1555/>).

An artist's talk will be held on June 15. The Wet Plate Collodion Process, is a "dialogue" between the rendered photographic images and the materials of the medium he uses. "The images in this exhibition explore the beautiful tonality of wet plate collodion photography as well as the accidents that may occur with this chemical process," says Hiott, a graduate of Wofford College in Spartanburg who also received an MFA in photography and digital media from Parsons School of Design. Ongoing - The Collective features a twenty thousand square foot facility offering affordable studio space, retail space, three galleries, a full ceramics studio, printery, and works by 50 local artists. ing art, printmaking has many similarities to the scientific method. Scientists, engineers and others in related fields work through similar steps in conducting experiments and attempting to prove or disprove a hypothesis. Intersecting Methods is a portfolio that brings together the arts and the science to create collaborative prints by partnering a printmaker with a collaborator. Hours: 7am-midnight, daily. His ties to the Spartanburg community originate from his longtime employment at Milliken and Company. Tait was born in Old Town, Maine in 1917 and graduated from the New Hampshire Institute of Arts and Science. In the late 1940s, he moved to New York City where he designed an exclusive line of ladies' handkerchiefs for the department store B. Altman, now considered vintage, collectible items. He also became associated with the American Artist Group designing Christmas cards, an occupation which he kept up throughout the majority of his artistic career. Krisel was a distinguished artist, architect, and teacher as well as a loving father and husband. Though Krisel may not be a household name among Spartanburg residents, he has made a significant artistic contribution to the Spartanburg community. Born in Brooklyn, NY in 1920, Krisel's interest in art and design started at a young age. He attended the American Artist School in New York city as a teenager where he met renowned modern artists, including Piet Mondrian, who greatly influenced his abstract style. After studying architecture at the New Bauhaus in Chicago from 1946-1949, he received his graduate degree from Illinois Institute of Technology in 1952. The following year, he began working for architectural firm Skidmore, Owings and Merrill when Roger Milliken hired them to design Milliken's new research facility in Spartanburg. Upon realizing Krisel was also a sculptor, Milliken hired him to design the spray fountain outside of the facility which functions as a recycler of air conditioning water. He then went on to design the Trident Fountain located outside of the Papadopoulos building on Wofford College's campus. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 10am-7pm & Sat, 9am-3pm. Work by Bruce Nellsmith

City Art, 1224 Lincoln Street, Columbia. Main Gallery, Currently on view - Featuring original paintings by Bruce Nellsmith. "I do not object to interpretations of my work that emphasize landscape or figurative elements, although such references are not my primary objectives. I recognize, however, that artists are influenced by their environments. I spend a lot of time on the coast, especially Edisto Island and Charleston, SC; although highly abstract, these works reflect the strong light, brilliant color of the waterways, shipyards, and ports that draw my attention," says Nellsmith. "The work as I see it, is driven by my constant need to refresh, adjust, destroy, and then resurrect an essentially abstract vocabulary of line, color, and shape. I have become, as of recent, almost obsessed over the characteristics of every mark, every edge; yet I cannot accept a movement in the composition that does not contain a certain raw or edgy quality about it. It is this that gives the work a furtive or shifty quality that keeps me engaged. This working and re-working process gives the paintings their life, their own independent histories. Having described my process as such, I am still pleased that my work is large enough to contain some of the severe beauty of nature and its force, (as the critic, Jeffrey Day once described it) for we are, after all, ingredients in this." Ongoing - Featuring works by Jane Aldridge, Jim Arendt, Randolph New Armstrong, Penny Baskin, Jo Dean Bauknight, Robbie Bell, Kimberly Betchman, Tarleton Blackwell, Angela Bradburn, Betty Bramlett, Joe Byrne, Carolita Cantrell, Kathy Casey, Anne Cunningham, Bob Doster, Gerard Erley, Claire Farrell, Amy Fichter, Tim Floyd, Michael Fowler, Teri Goddard, Harriet Goode, Vanessa Grubbs, Randy Hanna, Shelley Hehenberger, Mana Hewitt, David Kessler, Jan Kransberger, Robert Lyon, Rena MacQueen, Doug McAbee, Fred McElveen, Esther Melton, Max Miller, Lee A. Work by Jeanette Louise

Art & Light Gallery Annex, Pendleton Street, 1211 Pendleton, Flatiron Building, Greenville. Through July 1 - "In The Garden," featuring works by Jeanette Louise. "In the Garden" started three years ago when Louise welcomed her second child. Working with graphite and charcoal were appealing mediums, as they only required short sitting periods. Engulfed in caring for her two young children, Louise's greatest moments of peace came from slowing down to either draw or work in her garden. When the Covid pandemic began a year later, she was faced with new personal challenges. The black and white florals that she created during this time that make up this collection represent the range between hope and despair. These were some of the themes that filled her household as her family navigated the uncertainty that the pandemic brought. Flowers are offered both in celebration and in hardship. The monochromatic element between light and dark reflects this relativity. Ongoing - Featuring an individual artist for a two month period. Hours: by appt. only. Greenwood

Works by Fran J Davies

Main & Maxwell, 210 Main Street, at the intersection of Main Street and Maxwell Avenue Greenwood. June 1 - 30 - "Seascapes, Earth Tones and Pearls," highlights the work of painter, Fran J Davies of Charleston, potter Bob Taft and jeweler Sheila Crowder, both of Greenwood. A reception will be held on June 29, from 5-7pm. Creating art has been a lifelong passion for Fran J Davies and she has been drawing for as long as she can remember. Growing up outside NYC, she was influenced by early trips to art museums and the Broadway posters created by Milton Glaser, Jim McMullen, and Paul Davis. Bob Taft has been creating pottery for over eighteen years, and can always be surprised by the outcome. Sometimes firing a piece doesn't go as planned because the kiln will always have its say. A piece you think is great going in, can die in the stress of the fire. A good piece can rise to greatness. It's a gamble, and that keeps the process interesting to him. Artist Sheila Crowder is a self-taught painter and jeweler. Her jewelry pieces at Main & Maxwell focus on the use of fresh water pearls and chinoiserie beads. She combines the two with gold and gemstones to create beautiful and contemporary wearable art. She has been designing jewelry for over thirty years. Ongoing - A gallery and retail shop specializing in local South Carolina artists offering handcrafted art, pottery, jewelry, fiber and gifts for all occasions. Asheville Art Museum, 2 South Pack Square at Pack Place, Asheville. Appleby Foundation Exhibition Hall, Level 1, Through Aug. 21 - "Altruistic Genius: Buckminster Fuller's Plans to Save the Planet". The exhibition brings the inventions and designs of R. Buckminster Fuller to Western North Carolina and introduces visitors to Fuller's strategies for the sustainability of humans and the planet relating to housing, transportation, mathematics, and engineering. This exhibition features two major suites of prints by Buckminster Fuller among other remarkable works from his multi-decade career and is presented in three sections: Inventions; Synergetics; and Black Mountain College and Lasting Influence. The Inventions portfolio, assembled in 1981 from Fuller's career of explorations along with several existent models, represents Fuller's foresight. The Van Winkle Law Firm Gallery, Through July 24 - "Pulp Potential: Works in Handmade Paper". Paper is an essential part of the art-making process for many artists, serving as the base for drawing, painting, printmaking, and other forms of art. As a substrate, paper can vary in weight, absorbency, color, size, and other aspects. Since industrialization, paper has primarily been produced through mechanical means that allow for consistency and affordability. What happens, then, when an artist chooses to return to the foundations of paper, wherein it is made by hand using pulps, fibers, and dyes that reflect the human element through variations, inconsistencies, flaws, and surprises? Certain artists have sought out these qualities and embraced them, making paper not just a support on which to work, but fully a medium in and of itself. "Pulp Potential: Works in Handmade Paper" was organized by the Asheville Art Museum and curated by Hilary Schroeder, former assistant curator, with assistance from Alexis Meldrum, curatorial assistant. Special thanks to Dieu Donné, New York, NY. Explore Asheville Exhibition Hall - Level 3, June 16 - Oct. 23 - "The Art of Food: From the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation". Food is culture. Whether farm-raised or factory-made, traveling from kitchen to mouth, what one eats is often a means of understanding time, place, and people. "The Art of Food: From the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation" brings together works from some of the most pre-eminent postwar and contemporary artists who used food as their subject matter. This exhibition explores the many identities of food in daily life: whether a source of pleasure, a reason for gathering, a mass-produced commodity, or a reflection of social ideologies and divisions. "The Art of Food" features works from important postwar artists including Andy Warhol, Robert Rauschenberg, Roy Lichtenstein, David Hockney, John Baldessari, Ed Ruscha, and Jasper Johns, alongside the work of contemporary artists, like Alison Saar, Lorna Simpson, Enrique Chagoya, Rachel Whiteread, and Jenny Holzer, among others. Ongoing - The Asheville Art Museum, the hub for 20th- and 21st-century American art in Western North Carolina, has re-opened to the public. Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center, 120 College Street, Asheville. June 2 - Sept. 9 - "Black Mountain College and Mexico". A reception will be held on June 2, from 5:30-8pm. Black Mountain College (1933-1957), a small but remarkably influential liberal arts school in rural North Carolina, had important links to Mexico that until now have been little investigated. A crucible of twentieth-century creativity, BMC galvanized and inspired artists and intellectuals from around the world, while Mexico's innovations and age-old traditions—in fine and applied arts, architecture, poetry, music, performance, and more—dovetailed with, and indeed drove, global impulses toward modernism and beyond. Among the many key BMC figures whose lives were importantly touched by experiences in Mexico were Anni and Josef Albers, Ruth Asawa, John Cage, Jean Charlot, Elaine de Kooning, Buckminster Fuller, Carlos Mérida, Robert Motherwell, Charles Olson, Clara Porset, M.C. Richards, and Aaron Siskind. Ongoing - An exhibition space dedicated to exploring the history and legacy of the world's most acclaimed experimental educational community, Black Mountain College. This new installation will feature over 200 works that highlight our holdings in traditional art: woodcarving, pottery, dolls, basketry, weavings and furniture. The subject of this ongoing exhibition is craft history – that of the Southern Highland Craft Guild and the Studio Craft Movement. Wells Fargo of Asheville has donated Hardy Davidson's Carvings to the SHCG's Permanent Collection. Hailing from Swannanoa, NC, woodcarver Hardy Davidson became a Guild Member in 1944 and was awarded Life membership in 1973. The Bank of Asheville commissioned these carvings sometime between 1930 and 1940, according to Hardy Davidson's great nephew, Glen Campbell. Almost eight decades later, the carvings have found a new home at the Folk Art Center on the Blue Ridge Parkway. "We are pleased to donate the wooden carvings by Hardy Davidson to the Southern Highland Craft Guild," said Neal DiQuattro, District Manager for Wells Fargo in Asheville. Focus Gallery, Through Aug. 21 - "Inspiring Motives," featuring works by: Mike Malone (clay), Joanna White (fiber), Richard Flottemesch (wood), Asia Mathis (clay), and Cheryl Mackey Smith (clay). Blowing Rock Art and History Museum, corner of Chestnut and Main streets, downtown Blowing Rock. Fort & Atwell Galleries, June 20 - Dec. 30 - "GIFTED: Collecting the Art of California at Gardena High School, 1919-1956". The exhibition was developed for the hundredth anniversary of the Gardena High School Art Collection (GH-SAC) in 2019 and illustrates the unlikely history of a communal approach to collection-building and a microcosm of California's modern art history. BRAHM is pleased to announce that it will be hosting this exhibition in the summer of 2023. This will be the first occasion that the Gardena Collection has been exhibited on the East Coast and further cements the Museum's role as an important site for interpreting early American Modern painting, including Impressionism, figurative, landscape and genre painting. Accompanying the exhibit is a catalog of over 200 pages with color plates of the entire collection and interpretive analyses of its historical background and artistic significance. Canon Gallery, Through July 9 - "Geometry with Feeling: Ida Kohlmeyer in Two & Three Dimensions". This exhibition features the work of Ida Kohlmeyer (1912-1997), most recognized for her role in the vanguard of abstract painting in the American South. Taking up the brush during middle age, Kohlmeyer quickly developed a distinctive vocabulary of organic and geometric forms that she deployed with often irrepressibly bright colors. While abstract expressionist painting is now fully integrated into the canon of American art, it was a controversial turn for an emerging New Orleans artist in the 1950s and 1960s. Despite this, Kohlmeyer pursued abstraction with an enduring desire to tease out the intellectual and emotional underpinnings of this frenetic approach to painting. Upper Floor, Through Sept. 3 - "A Hundred Years of Horses: Celebrating the Centennial of the Blowing Rock Charity Horse Show". Claire Hartsook Boyce presenting the Hunter Championship Award to her daughter, Joan Boyce, pictured with her horse, Numbers, 1976. Photo print courtesy of the Blowing Rock Charity Horse Show Foundation. In 1923, one of Blowing Rock's most beloved traditions began as a small tournament on the hill behind Green Park Inn. A century later, the Blowing Rock Charity Horse Show has transformed into a monumental event on a beautiful preserve that draws equestrians from across the country due to its reputation for being an exceptionally "fun" show for participants and spectators alike. A Hundred Years of Horses commemorates this growth and success through stories and objects illuminating the history of BRCHS. Schaefer Gallery, Through Aug. 6 - "Earth & Fowl: Chickens and Other Poultry in Clay". The ceramic objects found in this exhibition are obviously of a kind. Birds have long been a common subject for sculptural objects meant for the home. In particular, domestic poultry—ducks, geese, guineas, pigeons, and turkeys, with chickens chief among them—are animals that have been deeply integrated into our visual culture. They are signs and symbols of prosperity, familial health and wealth, and avatars in children's stories and more recently of agricultural independence. Their likeness can be found on wallpaper and china patterns, decorative hand towels, mass-produced porcelain figurines, and nearly any other decorative object we might associate with the home. They are also a perennial subject in North Carolina's rich pottery tradition. Rankin West Gallery, Through Nov. 11 - "Artists Alley: Building a Creative Community in Blowing Rock". This exhibition illustrates an essential, animating force in Blowing Rock's artistic history: the small community of Artists Alley. Located on a single eponymous road just minutes from Main Street off Highway 221, Artists Alley emerged in the late 1950s and would ultimately host a varied yet tightly knit band of artists and craftspeople living and making alongside one another for over 60 years. Ongoing - the BRAHM will host exhibits, educational programs and classes that promote the visual arts, history and heritage of the mountains of western North Carolina. "Parts of a Whole" by Renee Cloud

Turchin Center for the Visual Arts, Appalachian State University, 423 West King Street, Boone. Hodges Gallery, Through June 3 - "FLUX: Signe Stuart". Stuart says, "Flux alludes to natural and manmade networks from rivers, neural pathways and quantum fields to systems of transportation and communications, everything interconnected and in flux. My visual vocabulary emphasizes line: single lines emerging from material; low relief line patterns forming flux fields and networks of relationships. Recent cut paper works, drawing/sculpture hybrids, generally consist of 2 or more overlapping panels hung away from the wall to create shadows. The cut paper works have evolved into achromatic works, unintentionally referencing the unified field theory of everything. Light is an auxiliary medium, creating subtle and changing thresholds between the visible and invisible." Community Gallery, Through June 3 - Say:Word, a site-specific installation by Renee Cloud & de'Angelo DIA. "Say:Word" is visual dialogue between artists de'Angelo DIA and Renee Cloud. This multimedia collaboration is a hybrid of exhibits, "Not Another Word" and "Dichotomy," used to examine misrepresentation, cultural appropriation, and the significance of cultivating your own narrative and distribution of those narratives. The artists' visual and poetic words are a reflection of excavated intimate and public conversations, journal entries, and social media debates. This exhibition title, "Say:Word" represents the numerous questions raised when presented with shocking or almost unbelievable narratives and statements. The title serves as a rhetorical question, challenging the viewers to consider, "if we are processing the same reality, how are we coming to a diversity of conclusions?" Gallery A and Petti/Peiser Galleries, June 2 - Nov. 4 - "Circular Solutions: CENTER Award + Grant Recipients 2021 & 2022". Cary Arts Center, 101 Dry Avenue, Cary. Cary Arts Center Gallery, Through July 8 - "New works by Jan-Ru Wan: Yearning to Breathe". A reception will be held on June 30, from 6-8pm. Our world faces natural disasters, viruses, and man-made tragedies that disrupt our daily lives, cause displacements, and distort beliefs and hampers progress. Survival and finding our bearings within this constant chaos is the common theme of this exhibition. Using objects as metaphors, I transform them through various textile techniques, such as shibori, screen printing, hand stitching, machine embroidery, and construction. With them I address a range of human experiences, including longing, loss, constraint, chaos, and provide a voice for those who cannot speak for themselves. The title is derived from Emma Lazarus' sonnet inscribed on the Statue of Liberty. To learn more visit (www.janruwan.com). Cary Arts Center Principal's Hall, Through May 14 - "Janine B. LeBlanc: Plush". Janine LeBlanc worked for more than 20 years as a graphic artist. She returned to the graduate program at the College of Design at NCSU, intending to become a textile designer, but found museum work and bead weaving instead. Using 11/0 seed beads, and an o-loom peyote stitch technique, she explores fabric patterning from both the collection of the Gregg Museum of Art & Design and contemporary textiles. Plush fabric, depicting faux fur and orals, is re-interpreted into patterns using the BeadTool computer program. Janine enjoys the detachment that happens when objects are removed in multiple steps from their original form and reworked into another medium. Through July 8 - "Origins of PRIDE: Stonewall Uprising". Retired from teaching elementary students in Texas about two and a half years ago, Yerby moved to Raleigh, to be closer to family and found herself revisiting an artform that she had enjoyed for several years before. Most of the beads are 11/0 glass seed beads and they are applied one at a time. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 9am-10pm & Fri.-Sat., 9am-11pm. Contact: 919/469-4069 or at (www.townofcary.org).

I use the photo to create the under painting in an acrylic medium on canvas. I then paint additional layers with oil, leaving some of the under painting peek-

Chapel Hill - Carrboro

Philips de Koninck, Dutch, 1619-1688, "A Man in a Cloak, Facing to the Left", c. 1650-60, pen and brown ink and brown wash on paper, 2 13/16 x 1 5/8 in. (7.1 x 4.1 cm). Ackland Art Museum, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Peck Collection, 2017.1.48.

Ackland Art Museum, UNC - Chapel Hill, Columbia & Franklin Streets, Chapel Hill. Through July 30 - "Beyond Wood: Works from the Collection of Rhonda Morgan Wilkerson '86 (PHD)." Since 2018, the Ackland has exhibited five long-term installations of works from Rhonda Wilkerson's distinguished collection of African art. These have focused on an individual artist, on types of objects, and on specific functions. This presentation takes a different approach by highlighting a variety of materials, ones that differ from the wood of masks and figurative sculptures, more conventional works of art that have long been favored in museum displays of the arts of Africa. In contrast, the objects in Beyond Wood are made with materials associated more with utilitarian uses: glass, metal, and clay. They include a diviner's beaded necklace of the Yoruba culture (present-day Nigeria), an ornamental knife of the Konda culture (present-day Democratic Republic of the Congo) and two terracotta portrait heads from the Akan culture (present-day Ghana). This installation has been organized by Michael Baird, 2022 Joan and Robert Huntley Scholar at the Ackland, and PhD student in art history. Through Aug. 6 - "Focus on the Peck Collection: Studying with Rembrandt". Rembrandt van Rijn understood drawing as the foundation of the visual arts. This "Focus on the Peck Collection" installation presents works by Rembrandt, Philips de Koninck, and Abraham Furnerius that illustrate and exemplify the drawing exercises Rembrandt assigned his pupils. Through the completion of these exercises, students perfected their ability to draw from life and learned to create naturalistic images and compositions in the style of their master. Museum Store Gallery (Franklin and Columbia Street), Store hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5:30pm & Sun., noon-5pm. Drawn entirely from the museum's holdings, this exhibition brings together 125 works by over 50 artists who were active in Europe alongside Picasso and shared his dedication to innovation and experimentation. Fourth Floor Gallery, Ongoing - "Yasumasa Morimura: Ego Symposion". Over the past forty years, Japanese artist Yasumasa Morimura has explored constructions of identity and representation in his photography, film, and performance work. Through skilled use of makeup, costumes, props, and digital manipulation, Morimura transforms himself into renowned artists, iconic works of art, and influential historical figures, primarily from the Western canon. One of the most celebrated contemporary photographers of the late 20th century, he has photographed himself in the guise of Johannes Vermeer's "Girl with a Pearl Earring" (1665), a variety of famous works by artists such as Francisco Goya, Frida Kahlo, and Édouard Manet, and recognizable portraits of Albert Einstein, Marilyn Monroe, and Mao Zedong, among others. Third Floor Gallery, Ongoing - "Sculpture from the Bechtler Family Collection". The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is the only museum in the Southern United States dedicated to European and American Modern Art and its legacies. Capturing a remarkable era of art history from the collection of the Zürich-based Bechtler family, the Bechtler Museum of Modern Art collection includes works by some of the most important and influential figures of modernism. Featuring 28 key works of art and nine sculptures from The Bechtler Collection, this intimate exhibition is displayed throughout two of the museum's galleries. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miro, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon., Wed.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Sun. noon-5pm; and open until 9pm the 1st. and 3rd. Fri. of each month. Contact: 704/353-9200 or at (www.bechtler.org).

Bill and Patty Gorelick Gallery, at Central Piedmont Community College's Cato Campus, Cato III, 8120 Grier Road, Charlotte. Through June 16 - "Calmly Flaunting," featuring works by Sam Spees. Samuel Spees' pursuit of perfection is the foundation of his inspiration as an artist and why he is drawn to glass as a process. "Each of us renders the world through a distinctive lens. This observation is biased in many ways, pertaining to memories and experiences, in addition to our own emotional construct. This body of work is evidence of how I decipher the beautifully perfect world around me. It is shaped with pieces of glass, both found and purposely made, that have been previously pulled, pinched, and cut. When melted together, they seamlessly flow throughout the body, creating a colorful vignette of time and memory. These landscapes of pigment yield a much deeper understanding of my perception, helping to explore distortion in pattern, together with my emotional connection to color in our natural world." Through June 16 - "Bennett Waters Fine Art" Waters says, "I began painting after retiring from a long advertising career. I wanted to create something I could touch and hold, not just ideas. I paint primarily in oil and have spent nearly 20 years exploring how colors and shapes can become my new words. My subjects and series of artwork are varied but bend primarily toward two far flung viewpoints: capturing urban streetscapes and capturing the aerial perspectives of the earth. I choose subjects that can let me explore deep saturated color, the rhythms of shapes and movement, and the lines that connect them. Perspective is important to me in my compositions, as indicated in the subjects I choose and the way I paint them." Work by Stacy Crabill

Bill and Patty Gorelick Gallery, at Central Piedmont Community College's Central Campus, North Classroom, 1320 Sam Ryburn Walk, Charlotte. Through June 16 - "Things That Fall in Your Path," featuring works by Stacy Crabill. Crabill says, "Sweets, text, and vintage photos of interesting people are all things that intrigue me. The colors and shapes of candy, as well as its packaging, has such power over our senses. I am constantly exploring the sources of our desire for sugar, delving into the concurrent roles played by clever marketing and our body's physical response. The thoughtful utilization of text also plays a role in my work. Whether it is a list of ingredients or witty words, the use of words and letters is an ever-present means of communication. Most recently I have incorporated interesting vintage images of figures. Photos from the past evoke a sense of questioning about the lives and personalities of those who came before us. My work strives to combine all of these seemingly unrelated elements to create a world in which their relationships become connected in a new and somewhat believable space." Hours: open while campus is open, but reservations help us alert our security team to visitors, provide directions to the galleries, and COVID-19 security protocol instructions to the visitors. Bill and Patty Gorelick Gallery, at Central Piedmont Community College's Harper Campus, Harper IV, 315 W. Hebron St., Charlotte. Through June 16 - "The Ceramic Art of Joseph Sand. Joseph Sand (b. 1982, Austin, MN) trained as a sculptor at the University of Minnesota, receiving a B.F.A. in 2006. During his undergraduate courses, he studied for one year in Italy, followed by another year in England after receiving a very competitive, college-wide scholarship. While in England, he worked alongside many prolific potters, including Svend Bayer and Clive Bowen, which heavily influenced his direction as an artist, taking up functional pottery as a means of personal expression. He completed a three and one-half year apprenticeship with Mark Hewitt in December of 2009 and now resides in Randleman, North Carolina. His work combines the styles of traditional, Southern alkaline glaze ware and East Asian design, among others.

Using two wood-fired kilns, both salt and ash glazed wares are produced, ranging in size from very large sculptural vases to planters and a variety of beautiful, functional tableware. In 2015, Joseph expanded his creative range to include large, hand-built sculptural ceramics. Through Dec. 8 - "Layer and Lines," featuring works by Sudie Rakusin. Rakusin says, "Being an animal activist and feminist, my artwork flows from what moves me and from where I find beauty: women, animals, the earth, color, pattern and light. My art represents the deep connection I feel with these elements. Through my artwork I create a world as I would like it to be, where harmony exists between animal and human, and where nature thrives. My work includes pen and ink drawings, papier-mâché sculptures, abstracts in cold wax and oil, and 3-dimensional oil on canvas paintings featuring women and animals. "Art is where I go for refuge, replenishing, and how I pay homage to what sustains me. This body of work is cold wax and oil on wood panels. The properties of cold wax fascinate me and keep me curious; how the underlying layers inform and alter the layers applied over them, how incising and scraping and glazing make more changes. I know I am wielding the palette knife and mixing the colors, but what happens on the panel is beyond my control. I'm learning how to be fine with the state of 'not knowing.'" Secluded in his new home during the onset of the pandemic, he sought comfort in his painting, focusing on florals and landscapes. He started working on a series of paintings based on the parks and scenes he and his wife enjoyed during their daily walks in their new surroundings. Painting helped him feel grounded and provided a sense of hope. Newman says, "In this time of uncertainty – emotionally, politically, and physically – it's my hope that others might interpret their own sense of solace and hope for the future with gifts as simple and as powerful as the flowers and landscapes we discover in our own backyards" Hours: open while campus is open, but reservations help us alert our security team to visitors, provide directions to the galleries, and COVID-19 security protocol instructions to the visitors. Work by Rosalie Torres-Weiner

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Art of the Ancient Americas collection on the second floor of the Museum, Through Oct. 31 - "Guiding Winds," an installation by Rosalia Torres-Weiner, curated by Jennifer Sudul Edwards. The installation is part of the "Interventions Series", a new series at the Mint in which contemporary works are placed amongst permanent collection installations to create a critical dialogue between past and present. The history of humanity is a story of movement - groups migrating over land and water, carrying their ancestral practices with them. Traces remain, even when a tribe has moved on or hostile outsiders try to erase those traditions. Stories and symbols integrate, creating cultural strata that create a timeline of all who lived on a land. The maps and explanations throughout museum galleries illustrate this - sometimes overtly, other times subtly. Ongoing - "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". From crocks, jars, and jugs to pitchers, candleholders, and vases, "turning pots" is one of the oldest and richest craft traditions in North Carolina. For more than 200 years, members of the Cole family have been potting in central North Carolina - Randolph, Moore, Lee, and Montgomery counties. Six generations of Coles, and no fewer than 18 individuals, are represented in The Mint Museum's permanent collection. More than 60 highlights of their wares are included in the installation "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". One reason for its long-term success is that making pottery has so often been a family tradition in the state. Fathers taught the art of forming, glazing, and firing clay objects to their sons, and in later generations also to daughters, who in turn taught their children, and so on through the decades. These family dynasties not only helped to keep the potting craft alive, but ensured continuity in techniques and craftsmanship, as well as introduced artistic innovations in succeeding generations. "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters" presents a visual history of "turned pots" and the family that helped turn North Carolina into one of America's centers for handmade, traditional pottery. Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers, Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kojo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic works. Presented by Müller Corporation, Craft in the Laboratory also celebrates a reinstallation of the Mint's Craft + Design Galleries—the first since 2010. Co-curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of Craft, Design, and Fashion Annie Carlano and Assistant Curator for Craft, Design, and Fashion Rebecca Elliot, "Craft in the Laboratory" includes 100 works from the Mint's collection that are made from precious metals, wood, steel, polymers, and even agricultural waste, that emphasize the preciseness of science used to craft works of art. Made by nationally and internationally renowned artists, the objects are organized by material and subject throughout the galleries. Now - The Mint Museum's new four-story installation "Foragers" offers a transcendent experience while celebrating the tradition of women as makers and providers. Unlike anything ever seen at The Mint Museum before, Brooklyn-based artist Summer Wheat's "Foragers" is a monumental piece of public work of art spanning 96 windows, four stories, and 3,720 square feet at Mint Museum Uptown's Robert Haywood Morrison Atrium. The myriad of vibrant panels that give the illusion of stained glass and celebrates the tradition of women as makers and providers. "Foragers" is part of a larger exhibition "In Vivid Color," which brings together four innovative contemporary artists—Wheat, Gisela Colon, Spencer Finch, and Jennifer Steinkamp—who create works celebrating the power of color and its ability to permeate the space around us. Their work is juxtaposed with a selection of paintings and works on paper, drawn primarily from The Mint Museum's permanent collection, which showcase artists' more traditional exploration of color. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown houses the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. Durham Arts Council Building, 120 Morris Street, Durham. Allenton & Semans Galleries, Through June 4 - "Extra-Spectral". The exhibition's colors cannot be evoked with a single wavelength of light, but rather by a combination of wavelengths. From the technical challenge of re-creating color to the ultra-personal choice of which hues to include to the fact that, as Josef Albers noted, we can never even see color as it physically is, making it the "most relative medium in art," the relationship of the Artist to color is as complex as possible. This exhibit highlights several NC-based artists that, on the surface, use colors that are "extra" (which is where their commonality ends) to evoke their intent through a combination of this color with forms and imagery as well as the concepts embedded in color's many identities. Artists featured include: Jane Cheek, Jerstin Crosby, Zach Storm, Tonya Solley Thornton and Leif Zikade all require color to play a primary role in their work and their relationship to an audience. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-9pm & Sun. 1-6pm. Contact: 919/560-2787 or at (www.durhamarts.org).

The works reflect the restorative potential of our connection to nature and exemplify how essential both biodiversity and cultural diversity are to our survival. Participating artists include: Terry Adkins, Firelei Báez, Radcliffe Bailey, Rina Banerjee, Christi Belcourt, María Berrío, Mel Chin, Andrea Chung, Sonya Clark, Maia Cruz Palileo, Annalee Davis, Tamika Galanis, Allison Janae Hamilton, Barkley L. This exhibition is organized by Trevor Schoonmaker, Mary D.B.T. and James H. Semans Director, Nasher Museum. Through Aug. 27 - "Andy Warhol: You Look Good in Pictures". For Andy Warhol, the camera was a device through which he saw the world. The artist was rarely without one, whether it was his beloved portable Polaroid SX-70 instant, a conventional 35mm single lens reflex, or the movie cameras with which he made hundreds of films. Photographic imagery—his own, other artists', and everyday mass-produced commercial photographs—was the foundation for nearly his entire artistic vision and output. "Andy Warhol: You Look Good in Pictures" explores the breadth of the artist's relationship with photography through several distinct bodies of work including screenprints of celebrities, all of which were taken from photographs, a group of Polaroids and black and white snapshots illustrating his social circles, and an early silent film of the curator Henry Geldzahler from 1964. Ongoing - The Collection Galleries feature rotating installations of the Nasher Museum's extensive holdings of historical art. Eight galleries, as well as the entrance to Wilson Pavilion, are dedicated to the museum's strengths, which represent a brief history of human creativity from different times

The images range from depictions of masses of people congregating in public spaces to environments physically transformed by the demands of a global economy. 1st Floor: Louise D. and Herbert S. Falk, Sr. Gallery and Sculpture Courtyard, 2nd Floor: The Gregory D. Ivy Gallery, Weatherspoon Guild Gallery, and Gallery 6, June 3 - Spring 2024 - "Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories". How might the Weatherspoon better engage with museum participants to share fuller and more inclusive stories of American art? This question sparked an eighteen-month-long curatorial and programming project starting in January 2022. We've been listening to people as they share what matters to them in the museum, and we've created this installation of the museum's art collection based on what we learned. "Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories" presents 43 artworks (see cover for a few selections) from the Weatherspoon's collection of more than 6,500. Each was chosen in response to what more than 4,000 community members told us they care about. These visitor responses—which ranged from poems to doodles to personal statements—were gathered in multiple ways. Within the Inquiry Hubs, for example, the visitor engagement team coordinated pop-up gallery performances and facilitated collection-based inquiry and play. Weatherspoon Atrium Mural, Ongoing - "Pause and Breathe, We Got This," a mural by Sheena Rose. This exposure in her youth pushed her to re-create the colorfully lit environment in her adulthood. She studied Neon

Design at The School of The Art Institute of Chicago, and started her career in the neon sign industry. Drattlo studied the craft of neon under multiple master benders, fine-tuning her skill set in tube bending and neon processing. Her neon art is heavily influenced by traditional neon sign making. Drattlo believes strongly in preserving the craft of neon while pushing the boundaries of the advertisement medium. The American Cowboy is more of a Myth than a man who herds cattle, it is an illusion of a set of ideas that are presented to the world as a way to strive. These ideas include, but are not limited to: being honest, hard working, be a gentleman, be tough, and be short and to the point. The cowboy, like the American dream, is something that has been assembled to present to the masses as a way they should forge themselves to become something better. The construction of the American cowboy is based on fact and fiction, it is always changing and repositioning itself with the passing of time. The Myth of the American Cowboy has had the ability to embed itself on a global scale, muddying the waters of what is glorified and what was fact. Campbell's work builds upon these aspects presenting information to viewers in a way that allows for a personal discovery into the world of the mythos of the American Cowboy. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 9am-5pm. Contact: 919/821-2787 or at (www.artspacenc.org).

Gregg Museum of Art & Design, The Historic Chancellor's Residence, NC State University, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, Raleigh. Black/Sanderson Gallery, Through July 23

- "True Likeness," presents an exhibition of contemporary portraits from diverse makers in a variety of media including video, photography, painting, collage, installation, sculpture, printmaking, and drawing. Artists, some familiar, others more on the fringe of the art world, hail from all over the United States. Their own identities, and those presented through their works, provide a snapshot of who we are as a country. As the exhibition took shape over the last few years, as overt and coded hate speech became congruent with one of the most divisive elections of our time, it became apparent that highlighting and celebrating diversity was paramount. Adams and Woodson Galleries, Through Oct. 7 - "This is Not: Aldwyth in Retrospect," curated by Mark Sloan. Now in her mid-eighties, the artist Aldwyth has lived and worked alone in an octagonal house overlooking a salt marsh on one of South Carolina's sea islands since 1980. For most of her adult life she has maintained her seclusion from the larger art world while utilizing the history of art and ideas as a catalyst for complex found-object sculptures and increasingly epic-scaled collages that often recall medieval manuscripts writ large. This retrospective spans nearly seventy years of Aldwyth's work, beginning with photography and moving through experimental painting, assemblage, and collage while touching on personal themes and fascinations that have remained remarkably consistent throughout her career. A tireless innovator, Aldwyth's self-imposed rules both limited and liberated her, allowing her work to be self-contained and self-referential. Each piece is an illustration of the description that defines it, and vice-versa. Historic Residence, Ongoing - One of NC State University's most historic buildings is now the permanent home of the Gregg Museum of Art & Design. The Historic Chancellor's Residence, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, along with a 15,000 sq. ft. addition, increases the museum's visibility while significantly adding to its exhibition and programming space. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm. The Gregg does ask that larger groups (15+) call ahead at (919) 515-3503, to avoid crowding in the galleries. Contact: Zoe Starling, Curator of Education at 919/513-7244 or at (<https://gregg.arts.ncsu.edu/>).

North Carolina Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. Through July 23 - "Michael Richards: Are You Down?" Richards's visionary sculptures and drawings, created between 1990 and 2001, engage Blackness, flight, diaspora, spirituality, police brutality, and monuments in his largest retrospective to date. "Michael Richards: Are You Down?" takes its name from one of the last artworks the artist created. In his sculptures and installations, Richards gestures toward both repression and reprieve from social injustices and the simultaneous possibilities of uplift and downfall, often in the context of the historic and ongoing oppression of Black people. Flight and aviation were central themes for Richards as an exploration of freedom and escape, ascendance and descent. These themes are especially evident in Richards's engagement with the legacy of the Tuskegee Airmen, including his well-known sculpture "Tar Baby vs. St. Sebastian" (1999)—a version of which has been on continuous display at the NCMA since 2003. Through Aug. 6 - "Ruth E. Carter: Afrofuturism In Costume Design." Academy Award-winning costume designer Ruth E. Carter has defined generations through her work in film and TV. Her art adds dimensionality, flair, and culture to the characters she envisions, giving power to the incredible actors who wear her designs. Her vibrancy and attention to detail in costuming is integral to translating stories of race, politics, and culture to the big screen. From humble roots in Massachusetts, Carter has helped style the Afrofuturism movement for almost 40 years. Creating pieces for films such as "Black Panther", "Malcolm X", "Selma", and "Do the Right Thing", Carter has designed costumes for legends like Oprah Winfrey, Denzel Washington, Chadwick Boseman, Eddie Murphy, Angela Bassett, and Forest Whitaker. Ongoing - "Break the Mold: New Takes on Traditional Art Making". The exhibit showcases contemporary artists who use traditional modes of art making and crafting to tackle timely subject matter. Work by Arden Cone

Upstairs Artspace, (Celebrating 40 Years) 49 South Trade Street, Tryon. Through June 16 - "Time's Witness: Work by Arden Cone & Millicent Kennedy". This exhibition of 3-dimensional artwork "offers a deep and sometimes dark look into humanity by way of the objects we utilize, attach to, and eventually discard." "Upstairs Artspace is excited to have these two young people present their creative work in our gallery," Board of Directors President Patti Trobaugh said. "Some of the pieces are very unusual; some are beautiful; all of them are thought provoking. If you want to see humanity through found objects and through these artists' life experiences, please visit. You'll leave with a better understanding of the world and of yourself." The found objects referenced or incorporated into this exhibition, resurrected from near disposal and raised into cultural significance, have outlived their intended use by years or even decades. Time's Witness speaks to history in relation to human artifacts, investigating what they alone, or we as a society, have weathered. Both artists acknowledge memory, and even trauma, by way of its touch upon objects, people, and societies. Through careful recording, obsessive documentation, and laborious artmaking processes, Kennedy and Cone delve into the narratives told through the traces we leave behind. Hours: Tue.-Sat., noon-5pm. "Lugar de Encuentros/Place of Encounters", is a new and important exhibition celebrating the work of six LatinX North Carolina based artists. North Carolina is home to a rich diversity of voices, and this is reflected in its community of Latin American artists. Work from "Place of Encounters / Lugar de Encuentros" often straddles two worlds, reflecting both birthplace and chosen home, exploring both tension and harmony in the relationship between the two. From film to installation art to paintings to photography, this exhibition delves into the variety of migrant experiences, offering a space for connection, a chance to encounter another's experience through art. The LatinX community in North Carolina has swelled from 1.2% in 1990 to 10.7% of the total population in 2020, reshaping the demography, economy, and culture of the state. Reflecting and celebrating community lies at the very heart of Cameron Art Museum's mission, making "Lugar de Encuentros/Place of Encounters" a necessary and important exhibition for Wilmington, the state, and the entire Nuevo South. Through Nov. 12 - "Traer a Luz/Bring to Light". Winston-Salem

Work by Karen Kopf

Artworks Gallery, 564 N. Trade Street, Winston-Salem. Through July 1 - "D.C. al Fine," featuring new works by Karen Kopf, and "Peaceable Kingdom," featuring new works by Jessica Tefft. A reception will be held on June 2, from 7-9pm and an Art Crush on June 16, from 7-9pm. Karen Kopf is inspired by Jazz, classical, and rock music, merged with the natural world to create a sensory experience rather than a narrative one. Sketching the natural forms in the world, she then composes the painting by overlapping individual forms to create more forms within the whole. The result is a web of conflicting energies with many intricate textures. A framed print of the "Peaceable Kingdom" by Edward Hicks hung in Jessica Tefft's living room when she was growing up. The lion's eyes appeared to watch over her. Later, she realized Hicks' painting was a visual sermon promoting spiritual and earthly harmony. In addition to being a painter, Hicks was a Quaker minister, and his works were based on Isaiah 11:6-9: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them." Ongoing - The gallery is the longest running cooperative gallery established by artists for artist members, showing 12 exhibits per year in the heart of Winston-Salem's Art District. "Still I Rise: The Black Experience at Reynolda" examines the lives of the Black women and men who helped shape Reynolda as it evolved from a Jim Crow era working estate into a museum for American art. Ongoing - Collection of 18th through 20th century art, sculpture, American art, and pottery. This exhibition is organized by the Hilliard Art Museum, Lafayette, Louisiana and curated by Benjamin M. Hickey, Curator of Exhibitions, Hilliard Art Museum, University of Louisiana at Lafayette. The exhibition is co-sponsored by Blanco Tackabery Attorneys and Counsellors at Law. Portraiture as a genre holds a grand position within the history of art and has for centuries been employed to glorify White monarchs, leaders, icons, and religious figures. Louisiana-based artist Vitus Shell creates portraits that challenge this tradition, while also sharing a concern for the historical representation of Black bodies. For example, the composition of his portraits includes faux gold gilding and oval or circular picture windows – stylistic trends often found in Byzantine and Renaissance portraiture to indicate power, status, and the eternal. Potter Gallery, Through Aug. 20 - "Emilio Rojas: tracing a wound through my body," a multimedia exhibition of works by Emilio Rojas. The exhibition is the first traveling survey of the contemporary and multidisciplinary practice of artist Emilio Rojas (b. 1985 Mexico City). The exhibition brings together works spanning the past decade including live performances and interventions, documents of performance sustained in video and ephemera, photography, sculpture, installation, and poetry. Recognizing the act of tracing dualistically, tracing a wound through my body both reexamines the artist's corpus and reckons with the legacies of colonial and border traumas. For Rojas, such reckoning renders palpable visible and invisible wounds through the radically political instrumentalization of his body. Overlook Gallery, Through Aug. 27 - "Lauren Strohacker: Old Red, I Know Where Thou Dwellst," a site-specific multimedia exhibition exploring the ongoing struggle for survival of red wolves. The three-part exhibition is comprised of an installed multi-sensory experience in SECCA's Overlook Gallery, an outdoor sound installation on SECCA's grounds, and a series of free projection-based events occurring at SECCA and sites across Winston-Salem. Admission is free, with a suggested $10 donation. Red wolves are facing a second extinction in the wild. The last known group of wild individuals are known to roam in and around the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in eastern North Carolina. For red wolves, the state of North Carolina is both haunted and hallowed. The first court-recorded wolf bounties began in the state in 1768. Just over two centuries later, North Carolina became the first state to revive the species from wild extinction when two breeding pairs of red wolves were released into the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in 1987. This dichotomy of eradication, restoration, and the ongoing struggle of the species is the inspiration for this exhibition. Ongoing - Founded in 1956, the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art offers a front-row seat to the art of our time. Through visual art exhibitions, education, music, film, dance and theater, SECCA starts conversations that engage diverse communities and perspectives. SECCA
