Work by Michael Brodeur

Upstairs Artspace, (Celebrating 40 Years) 49 South Trade Street, Tryon. Through Aug. 7 - "Jane Allen Nodine: Reflections in The Age of Pandemic" and "Still Life: Contemporary Interpretations". Jane Nodine started making art last March in response to the pandemic when states ordered people to stay home and businesses to close. "It was a way to cope, to express fear of the virus, and eventually, to celebrate the hopes of life and a future," she explains. The achievement of her concentrated effort is amazing -- nearly 30 works. Some paintings depict a layer of shriveled texture that is overtaken by rich colors seeping up and around to drown out the negative. Nodine's message: "We will prevail!" "Still Life" offers expanded interpretations of an art genre that dates back to the Middle Ages, even earlier. Many of the show's artists enjoy turning heads by creating outside the box! They are: Michael Brodeur and Nancy Jaramillo, painting; Jo Carol Mitchell-Rogers, photography; Steven Chapp, monoprint, etching -- all from Greenville; David Yaghjian, painting, Columbia; Ursula Gullow, painting, Asheville; Arden Cone, painting, Tryon. This was the show that would have taken place during Wilmington's annual Azalea Festival, the 38th annual juried show for the WAA. We were all so disappointed when our annual show and sale had to be canceled because of the covid-19 pandemic. Our show committee had worked so hard and we were only a week away from opening. Rather than keep everyone in suspense until events became more settled, we heeded the suggestions that we publish the show. So visit the show on a portion of our new website and share with all your friends. In an effort to support members of our community who need help with basic needs, the WAA is donating 10% of the Spring Show sales to Mother Hubbard's Cupboard in Wilmington. You can view the show at this link (<http://wilmingtongallery.org/welcome-2/>). Just pick categories from the menu at the top of the page.
